The silk quilt that has been on exhibition in the window of Judge Blakeley's drug store for some time will be raffled off tonight, Oct. 29th, at 8 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Vanderpool, of Dalur, were in town today on their way home from a two-weeks visit with Mr. Vanderpool's brother-in-law, Mr. G. W. Carey, of North Yakima.

While working on the Brown wood-saw last Saturday the left hand of George Rose came in contact with the saw, which badly lacerated all the fingers and nearly severed the middle finger from the hand. The injured hand was attended to by Drs. Geisendorfer and Logan, who hope to save all the fingers with the possible exception of the middle one.

Martin, the 10-year-old son of Rev. O. D. Taylor, had the misfortune this morning to break his leg below the knee. The lad was coming to school on horseback, and while passing under the flume at the garrison the animal stepped on a slippery plank and fell with the boy's leg underneath. He was taken to Mr. White's near by, where his injury was attended to by Dr. Logan.

Recorder Gates had occasion to make a trip up Mill creek this morning, and before going he tacked to the door of his office a type-written card announcing the fact and stating the hour when he would return. Some wag interlined the card in pencil so that it read: "Gone up Mill creek to gather mushrooms. Leave your orders for them with J. H. Jackson." The Chronicle has the honor of applying for the first gallon, but is not dead certain if it will ever get them.

Glenn Allen, son of Andy Allen, who has been for the past year in the employ of C. L. Phillips, has accepted a position in one of the leading mercantile establishments of Moro and will leave for that place tomorrow. Glenn is a young man who is deservedly well thought of by all who know him here, and he goes to his new home with the best wishes of a host of Dalles friends and acquaintances.

We have had fresh strawberries in The Dalles market in limited quantities with very little intercession for the past two months and John Dalrymple brought to town this morning, from the Floyd place, samples of a second crop of apples taken from a tree in the Floyd orchard. They are of the Red June variety and are about the size of hantam eggs. Mr. Dalrymple says there are about a hundred of them on the tree.

A little commotion occurred Saturday night at the Farmers' feed yard, when a horse that was sold during the day to a sheepman by parties out in the Ten Mile neighborhood, was found missing, with every evidence that he had been stolen. The animal was found yesterday on the range near his old home, and the owner can only account for his disappearance from the stable on the supposition that the boy who sold him, rather than hoof it home afoot, made free to take him from the stable when no one was looking, and having ridden him home, turned him out on the road.

In a short paragraph in Saturday's Chronicle reporting the rejection by the county court of two petitions for liquor licenses from the Mosier precinct on the ground of a technical error in the published notices, an injustice was inadvertently and unintentionally done to Attorney F. W. Wilson, as the wording of the paragraph could without violence be construed to mean that he was responsible for the error. The truth is, Mr. Wilson was not called in the case till the question of error had been raised in the court, and then, after reading the notice, he advised the petitioners that the objection of the opposing counsel was well taken.

There is said to be more solid laughter in "A Wise Guy" than in any farce comedy since Charles Hoyt wrote "A Trip to Chinatown" and foisted it upon the amusement-loving public. For an entire year this play, "A Wise Guy," has convulsed the theater-goers in the East, and it is now making its first western trip. As to plot, there isn't much to worry anyone. There is a piano-mover, a rough genial chap who provides a very great deal of fun by getting himself into all sorts of ridiculous situations, in trying to palm himself off as the father of an heiress, who is badly in need of a paternal relative, or who thinks that she is, which with a woman is tantamount to the same thing. Then there is a lot of clever specialties, and more than this, there is a chorus of some exceedingly pretty and shapely young women. "A Wise Guy" is to be the attraction at the Vogt tonight.

Dave B. Lewis' big production, "Uncle Josh Spruceby," will be the offering at the Vogt on Saturday evening, Nov. 3d. The Chicago Daily Journal comments as follows: "The comedy drama, 'Uncle Josh Spruceby,' drew two immense crowds yesterday to the Bijou, and the standing room only sign had to be displayed. 'Uncle Josh' keeps the audience smiling throughout the performance, and the company of thirty-five people is excellent. Up-to-date specialties and pretty musical numbers are introduced during the action of the play. The cast is a capable one. This is the fourth time this popular production has been seen at the Bijou, and if the approval of the audience is any indication it will be seen here many more times."

"How about scarlet fever in the city?" was asked of a prominent physician this morning. "It is increasing," was the answer. "Why shouldn't it? Children are allowed to attend the public schools while they are scaling off, the most dangerous period of the disease, so far as contagion is concerned. It is never safe to allow scarlet fever patients to come in contact with others till from thirty to forty days after the attack. The physicians are in no sense to blame for this laxity. It is notorious that in many cases of members of families in which there are scarlet fever patients make no hesitation of going about their business and mixing with other people. In some cases the exempt children of families in which there are well-defined cases of scarlet fever attend the public schools as usual and no one seems to care. If any objection is made the answer is, 'Oh, well, it's only scarletina and won't hurt anybody.' In one case I asked the parents of a patient why a red flag had not been put out as ordered. The answer was, 'We have no red material to make one with and the city, it seems, is too poor to furnish it.'"

"Kelly's Kids" opened last evening at the Metropolitan to a crowded house and made fun for many people, says the Telegram of October 15th. It is a farce with just enough plot to carry it along, and the many complicated situations of the stage people and the specialties they introduced pleased the audience, which was liberal with applause. The opening performance was most successful, and promise crowded houses for the remainder of the week. The first two acts are laid in the East Side of New York, and the closing act in the Waldorf-Astoria. A slumming party in the tenderloin district and a schoolroom in the same vicinity furnish plenty of opportunity for humorous scenes. Phil Ott, as Kassius Kelly and Howard Boulden as Loney Pickelenicker, are responsible for many of the obstacles to smooth sailing which crop up in the course of the play. In the third act Richard and Martin Griffin give a pleasing entertainment with their musical novelties. The famous newsboys' quintet and the four carnations assist in the musical specialties. The second act closes with something new in a dance by the entire company, aided by the latest effects in electrical stage appliances. At the Vogt opera house tomorrow night.

Frank Tyler, an employe of The Dalles scouring mill, is the author of one of the most powerful arguments that the pending campaign has evolved on the reasons why a free American should vote for Bryan. Of the twenty hands employed in the mill eighteen are republicans and two Bryanites. Frank is a republican and, in that respect, as the profane would say, a hot number. It can be readily inferred that among a lot of workmen whose wages depend to a large extent on the continuance of McKinley prosperity political controversy should, once in a while, run high. The other day Frank pinned the two democrats to one of the walls of the mill and propounded the question: "Come now, speak out like men and tell us why you are democrats?" "Because," said one of them, "because the democratic platform—because the democratic platform—because the democratic"—and there he stopped. "Just so," said Tyler. "You are in favor of the democratic platform because you are in favor of Bryan, and you are in favor of Bryan because you are in favor of the democratic platform." If any Oregon Bryanite can give a better reason for the faith that is in him The Chronicle would like to hear it.

THE "IDLE" SOLDIERS.

"This country has a hundred thousand soldiers walking around in idleness."—W. J. Bryan.

Walking around in idleness.
Whoever the flag is assailed;
Meeting the foe with an idle might
That never yet have failed.
Lawton, and Liscomb, and Logan, too—
"Caption—the list is long—
Went to their death in 'idleness,'
And their 'idleness' was wrong.
Grant and Sherman and Sheridan—
Why should we call the roll?
They idled away in the idle fight—
In fights that tried the soul,
"Walking around in idleness—
Braving the leaden hail,
What of the glow of a nation's pride?
Is that but an idle tale?
"Walking around in idleness."
Over the Pekin road;
Scorned and worn by the galling sun,
Lugging an idle load,
Fighting with idle energy,
Cheering with idle breath—
Thinking with idle love of home,
And dying an idle death.
Private Smith, with an idle groan,
Come to a home above;
At 4 idle tears mark the idle woe
And the idle mother's love.
"Walking around in idleness."
Lawton and Liscomb, too;
Legions more will come idly when
There are idle deeds to do.
—Baltimore American.
