month last year, is $125 a month now; but you deny it.

You stand on the track waving your danger signal, warning the engineer that the prosperity track and the McKinley bridge are unsafe.

When wheat was 40 cents, you said it ought to be 80. When it had advanced to 80 cents, you said it ought to be $2.

No one begrudges you, Mr. Bryan, the fortune you have gathered in the last year; but Nebraska people would be prouder of you if had made it in some legitimate enterprise that would have helped others as well as yourself. They would be obliged to you now if Obstatinate would step aside and let the pilgrims pass.

Outlook is Bright.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The campaign, practically closing tonight, gives every indication from reports received here that McKinley will have more electoral votes than four years ago. Of the states claimed in the East, there is no longer any question about New York, and it is evident that Maryland and Delaware will be carried by small pluralities. Bryan's two days in Chicago have caused some uneasiness among republicans as to the result in that city, because he has met there, as he did in the East, large and enthusiastic crowds. At the same time it is believed that the Bryan excitement will subside in the two days between now and election, and republicans are working every way to counteract the influence of Bryan's visit. Indiana is considered the most doubtful state, owing to the conflicting reports and claims. At the same time, the evidences point to its going for McKinley.

Some startling figures were presented to Coker in New York last night, when a poll by Tammany leaders showed that Greater New York, including everything below the Bronx, was not likely to give Bryan more than 20,000. This is less than republicans have been claiming, but the tendency of the voters has been toward the republicans. The republicans do not fear landslides, roorbacks or any other form of political manipulation, and are confident of success Tuesday.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the universe." So will every one who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the throat, chest or lungs. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottle free at Blakeley's drug store; every bottle guaranteed. 5

"For three days and nights I suffered agony untold from an attack of cholera morbus brought on by eating cucumbers," says M. E. Lowther, clerk of the district court, Centerville, Iowa. "I thought I should surely die, and tried a dozen different medicines but all of no purpose. I sent for a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and three doses relieved me entirely." This remedy for sale by Blakeley, the druggist.

Acker's English Remedy will stop a cough at any time, and will cure the worst cold in twelve hours, or money refunded. 25 cts. and 50 cts. Blakeley the druggists.

It Happened in a Drug Store.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of cough medicine that I did not have in stock," says Mr. C. R. Grandin, the popular druggist of Ontario, N. Y. "She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that she could take a bottle of the remedy and after giving it a fair trial if she did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine and advised her to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I consider that a very good recommendation for the remedy." It is for sale by G. C. Blakeley, the druggist.

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. A trial size will be mailed for 10 cents. All druggists sell the 50c. size, Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y.

The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation. With Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against Nasal Catarrh and Hay Fever.

THOROUGHLY GOOD COTTON COMFORTS

Buying Cotton Comforts is risky business. It's mighty easy to get the cheap-no-account, shoddy-filled apologies for bed-clothing which soon wears in holes and becomes "bunchy." But we sell the "Snow Flake" and "Downline" Cotton Comforts, which are made by the largest and best-known manufacturers of this class of goods.

The filling is put in evenly and smoothly, and so fastened that it will stay that way during the life of the covering.

And the coverings! You never saw such a host of unique and attractive patterns in every conceivable color-combination and effect.

Prices? Well, they're mighty modest. These examples will give you an idea of the line:—

QUESTIONS TO ANSWER

Lincoln Man's Interesting Letter to Mr. Bryan—Suggests That He Be Practical—Says He Has Never Done Anything for Labor and Denies Prosperity When It is Evident.

Three years ago this month the Nebraska State Journal gave space in its editorial columns to a letter written by J. W. Johnson, of Lincoln, to W. J. Bryan. It was republished in the Oregonian, and a copy of it preserved by August Danielson, of this city. The letter is full of meat, and was in part as follows:

To W. J. Bryan—Dear Sir: You are touring this state as a pretended friend of Nebraska and of Nebraska people. If you really desire the prosperity of Nebraska people, why do you deny the prosperity that has already come to them? Why do you seek to take away the new hope that has come, and to turn back the tide of confidence which is rising in the public mind?

The business energy of the people is awakened, and they are moving forward in all lines of industry. Why do you straddle yourself over the way and seek to turn the procession back? If you had been elected president instead of McKinley, and if under your administration a general advance in farm prices and a renewal of industry had set in, and if these battered conditions had been especially conspicuous in Ohio as they are today in Nebraska, do you think McKinley would today be chasing from town to town through the state of Ohio trying to discourage the people and organize them into opposition and distrust?

Can you consistently pose as a statesman and a patriot while acting in the capacity of an obstructionist, dogging the heels of industry like a bushwhacker who hangs on the flank of an advancing army? In "The Pilgrim's Progress," by John Bunyan, there is a character whose mission was similar to yours. He would lurk by the wayside where the pilgrims were passing on their way from the City of Destruction, and, falling into conversation with them, would seek to turn them back. He would point out that just ahead was the Slough or Despond, into whose mire they were likely to sink. Beyond this slough was a mountain that was fisible to fall upon them. Beyond the mountain was a hill of difficulty, and at the top was a narrow pass, where hungry lions waited to devour them. Beyond the lions was a roaring dragon, from whose belly poured out fire and smoke. There was a giant waiting at the mouth of his cave, there was a dark valley where hobgoblins and evil spirits hissed and fluttered, and if any pilgrim, by dint of extraordinary courage, succeeded in escaping all these evils, still there was a deep, dark river at the very end of the way which never could be crossed.

Mr. Bryan, you pose as a friend of labor. Did any workman ever get a dollar of your money? Did you ever evolve a practical plan that gave any laboring employment? Labor wants a practical friend, who can evolve a practical plan, and then put it into execution. Buckstaff thought of a brickyard. He carried the thought into action, and for many years gave employment to labor in making brick. Look down O street, and you can see Buckstaff's brick, but what have you done for this city? Where is your mark in this town?

You, Mr. Bryan, have gathered in the last few months over $100,000 from those whom you designate as the "down-trodden and toiling masses." Not a dollar of this money has found its way back into any poor man's pocket, and not a cent of it is risked in any labor employment industry. The result of your connection with the down-trodden masses is $103,000 out of their pockets into yours, but not a dollar out of yours into theirs.

The anvils are ringing at Havelock, and the men in full force are working overtime; but you deny it. At Plattsmouth and at Omaha the labor pay-roll is double what it was a year ago; but you deny it. At McCook, where the pay-roll was $14,000 a month last year it is $28,000 now; but you deny it. At Nebraska City, where the Burlington's shipping business was $11,000 a month last year, it is now $33,000 a month; but you deny it. The railroad engineer whose monthly pay check was $75 a Jack Rabbit Coming East.

The jack rabbit that before the war lived almost entirely on the sandy plains of the west is working its way eastward. A few were seen, now and then, 25 years ago in western Kansas, but now it has almost reached the Mississippi river. Until the plains were settled, Mr. Jack Rabbit fed on the wild plants of the region, but with the breaking of the sod he got his first taste of corn. He concluded that corn was a more agreeable diet than cactus and sage brush, and he has been diligently working eastward, where corn is plentiful. The jack rabbit does not multiply as rapidly as the cotton tail, but he can hold his own. The barbed wire fence must be a great source of comfort to him, too, for he can readily get through it himself, while dogs and men and horses are delayed by it long enough to allow him to make his escape.—Little Chronicle.

Protecting the Trees.

A beginning has been made with forestry in the United States. New York has adopted measures to protect the headwaters of the Hudson. In the Adirondack park 2,500,000 acres are reserved, of which 1,000,000 is owned by the state, as much more is in private game preserves and the remainder in the hands of those who will sell to the state when they can get their price. Cornell and Yale conduct practical schools of forestry.—Little Chronicle.

Corn Pudding.

To a pint of corn pulp add a pint of milk, stir in the well-beaten yolks of four eggs, a teaspoonful of salt, pepper to taste. Mix thoroughly, lastly add the stiffened whites and bake in a moderate oven in a greased dish for one hour. A delicious accompaniment to roast meat.—Washington Star.
