

DO YOU REMEMBER?

A few years ago during the hard times brought on by democratic policies there was a commonwealth army marching across the United States to the national capital to appear before congress and demand that labor be provided for the workmen of America. Do you remember that? Many of these men had families in this state and they were compelled to go east in the hope of securing the opportunity to earn a few crusts of bread, and while they were away their families were left to the tender mercies of the free soup houses and the organized charity societies. Do you remember that? These men marched and stole rides on the railroads and fought the deputy marshals—the democratic marshal, too, by the way—in their determined effort to convince the democratic president that the people were starving and were unable to get work. Do you remember that? The man who was at the head of that commonwealth army was named Coxey. Do you remember him? Have you heard of him commanding commonwealth armies across the United States since McKinley was elected? Have you heard of him agitating the nation in the interest of the workman? The Union knows that you have not. Do you know where Commander Coxey is at work? In the little city of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, where the editor of the Union was born, the erstwhile commander-in-chief of the commonwealth army is establishing big steel works; he is putting in a plant that will employ a large number of men, and he is on the high road to prosperity. Do you know what that means? Merely that the good times brought on by the McKinley administration have been beneficial to the rich and poor alike; to the laboring man and the employer of capital, and that under his wise administration the poor man can become the rich man if he is endowed with the brains and the business capacity. Did you ever think of that before?—W. W. Union.

THE INS AND THE OUTS.

A president has not been re-elected since 1872. For twenty-eight years the popular verdict has swung with unfailing regularity from party to party. In 1872, Grant was re-elected. In 1876, Tilden carried the country by a popular majority of more than 250,000, and to this day perhaps a majority of the voters believe that he was counted out and ought to have been president. In 1880, the republicans carried the country, but in 1884 Cleveland was elected. In 1888 Cleveland failed of re-election, and was defeated by Harrison. In 1892 Harrison failed of election and was defeated in turn by Cleveland. In 1896 the democracy went out of power and McKinley was elected.

Here is evidence of a deep-seated disposition on the part of the majority of the American voters to play one party against the other.

It is true that the surface indications point strongly to the re-election of McKinley. But there are depths of public sentiment which can not be sounded until the ballots are cast and counted. Undercurrents are swirling which may upset all surface calculations and land Bryan in the White House. A big surprise may be in store for the country. It may be the re-election of President McKinley by unexpected majorities or it may be a landslide for Bryan. There is a quiet vote, running into the millions, which refuses to be canvassed by the party workers of either party.—Spokesman-Review.
