

Et tu Nebraska.

Four years more of a full dinner pail.

We have met the enemy and they are ours.

A motion is now in order to make the vote unanimous.

McKinley will do business at the old stand for the next four years.

The next issue on the program is the Thanksgiving turkey and how to get it.

The election of McKinley is the repudiation of Bryan and all his works. Bryan will never be heard of again as a presidential candidate. Sixteen to one is dead and buried beyond the possibility of a resurrection. The demagog that wept over the dead beat and the lazy and shiftless and had not a kind word for the thrifty and energetic has been rebuked. In the hands of a republican administration confidence will be maintained and labor, as well as capital, will receive its just recognition and reward.

TOLD BY FOOTPRINTS.

Tell-Tale Shoes Worn by a Man in a Party Searching for a Murderer.

"The part played by footprints in the frightful tragedy near Ilwaco reminds me," said a New Orleans railroad man, relates the Times-Democrat, "of a most remarkable affair which happened a good many years ago in south Georgia. The keeper of a little store near the Florida line was murdered one night and the place set on fire. Several negroes were suspected and the whole countryside turned out to search for evidence. In the rear of the burned store was a marshy place, in which the footprints of the murderer were plainly discernible, showing that he had worn a pair of heavy brogans, the right heel of which seemed to have been split in a very peculiar manner directly across the middle.

"Among the searchers was a well-to-do young farmer, and as soon as he saw the footprints he was horrified to recognize the marks of his own shoes which he had on at that very moment. The split heel was the result of a chance blow with an ax while cutting wood, and the impression in the marshy soil was absolutely unmistakable. The ground was worked up to a pitch bordering on frenzy, and, realizing his extremely critical position, the young man had presence enough of mind to make some excuse and slip away. He went straight home, put on another pair of shoes, hid the old ones and rejoined the party.

"Two or three days later the crime was traced by certain circumstantial evidence to a negro who worked on his farm. The fellow broke down and confessed and incidentally cleared up the mystery. On the night of the murder, according to his story, he had noticed the brogans on the porch of the farmhouse and appropriated them, intending at the time to merely rob the store and fly the country. After killing the storekeeper he changed his plans and came home, thinking to divert suspicion by remaining quietly at work. Consequently he returned the shoes where he found them.

"After he had made this confession the farmer told his own story and produced the tell-tale footgear. Heaven only knows what might have happened had he been caught with them on his feet the first day of the search."

A Strange Find. While a squad of workmen were employed in constructing a large dry dock at Cherbourg they made a strange discovery. For some time they had used an enormous oak log as a sort of fulcrum in moving about the granite blocks, and one day this log suddenly burst open under an extraordinary pressure. To the amazement of the workmen a stiff parchment fell out, together with a shower of gold and silver coins. There was a grand rush to secure the prize, but in the end the workmen had to turn over the find to a magistrate. It was ascertained that the log had been originally part of a fortification, and that at the time of the laying of the first stone Louis Philippe had placed the document and coins in the log.—Golden Days.
