Portland is getting ready for a Pacific Coast and Oriental Exposition to be held there in 1902. The success of the recent street fair has confirmed previously entertained opinions that an industrial exposition on a large scale could be made a success.

John Hays says they can't run a bluff on him. A man stepped up and offered to bet his socks that McKinley and Roosevelt would be elected. John says "I'll go you one on that proposition," and proceeded to take off his No. 11 shoes and produced the socks, the other man took a new pair of socks from his pocket and the bet was up, and John went around with "cold feet." We feel just a little sorry for the stakeholder.—Grass Valley Journal.

L. Evans, P. Henningsen, M. Dichtmuller and — Godbersen, of Mosier, this morning shipped a carload of dried prunes to Minneapolis, Minn. The car contained 22 tons and was shipped on commission, the shippers obtaining an advance of $1500 on the car or 3 1/2 cents a pound.

Dr. J. Hudson, of this city, and Dr. O. C. Hollister, of Portland, yesterday removed a large tumor from the breast of C. W. Barzee, of Langhin's Bluff Addition. The operation was quite successful and today Mr. Barzee was getting along nicely. The tumor was the growth of three or four years.

Mutton and wool come high in Klickitat. Charles McAllister, of Glenwood, recently sold to Charles McAllister, Sr., of North Yakima, 600 head of lambs at $4 per head, 400 ewes at the fabulous price of $6 per head, and the balance of the flock, 700 head, at $4 per head, and 20 head of fine French Merino bucks at $25 per head. They were taken to North Yakima to add to Mr. McAllister's flock of blooded sheep.

Parties having business with B. A. Gifford, the photographer, need have no hesitation in meeting him on account of scarlet fever in his family. Mr. Gifford was away from home when his little boy took ill and when he returned and found his house quarantined, as his presence in the house was not necessary, the attack being of a very mild nature, he thought it best to room down town till all danger from infection is over.

A Chicagoan just returned from a tour of the far West saw the following location notice on a mining claim in the Grand Encampment, Wyoming: "We found it, and we claim it by the right of founding it. It's our'n. It's 750 feet in every direction, except southwest and northeast, and there is 300 feet on each side of this writ'n. It's called the Bay Horse, and we claim the spurs, and we don't want nobody jumping on this Bay Horse—that's what these trees is around here for, and we've got the same piece of rope that we had down in old Missouri."

The dance given Friday night by the ladies of The Dalles to their gentlemen friends was, by all accounts, a most enjoyable affair. The dancing room and refreshment room were handsomely decorated with bunting, Japanese umbrellas and lanterns, potted plants, and in the latter room a profusion of flowers, many of which were tastefully arranged about the wall in Indian baskets. The dressing rooms were also made comfortable with rugs, easy chairs, etc. The windows of the dancing room were fitted up into inviting cozy corners. In one corner of the hall lemonade was served, while during the entire evening ice cream and cake were dispensed in the refreshment room. The Birgfeld orchestra discoursed the most tempting music, and dancing, which commenced at 9:30, was continued until 1 o'clock. In true leap year style the ladies chose their partners, and in all respects acted as the gentlemen are supposed to do in all fin de siècle affairs of the kind, only with far greater success in every respect than the gentlemen could ever hope to achieve.

An inquest was held this morning over the remains of Michael McAllister, who died in a room back of the Germania saloon at 9 o'clock Sunday morning. McAllister was a stranger here. He entered the saloon Saturday and passing into a back room sat down in a chair. About an hour after he was found lying on the floor suffering intensely. A doctor was called in and prescribed for him, but remarked to some of the inmates of the saloon that he had never had a similar case that did not prove fatal. The man continued suffering without intermission till death came to his relief. There was no evidence that he had been drinking. He appeared to be something of a tramp. He claimed to have a wife and mother in North Dakota, but at what place in that state could not be learned. The evidence of the attending physician showed that the man had died from asthma, and the jury returned a verdict to that effect. McAllister was about 45 years of age.

"The general result in this state is no more than was expected with the single exception of the governor," said National Committeeman G. H. Baker, of Goldendale, who is in Walla Walla attending United States court, to a Union reporter: "There has been a great deal of talk in the fusion press about Hanna carrying the election with money. I want to say that Washington was carried for McKinley without any financial assistance from Mr. Hanna or the national committee. I notice also that Mr. Bryan remarks that there was coercion and intimidation and that voters were purchased. Mr. Bryan never was right. He has always had the faculty of getting on the wrong side of every subject he tackled. Washington voters were neither bought, intimidated nor traded. They voted as they thought and the result was the biggest republican victory the state has ever known. The fact is the people have grown tired of Mr. Bryan's tiresome tales of troubles to come.

A Dastardly Outrage.

A series of most scoundrelly acts was perpetrated Saturday night on the property of the Christian church of this city. When the superintendent of the Sunday school entered the church yesterday morning to get things ready for Sunday school he found that someone had gained entrance to the building by forcing open the basement window. The heating stove in the vestry was turned upside down. The heating stove in the auditorium was dragged eight or ten feet out of position, disconnecting the stove pipe, which had fallen on the floor and been jammed and crushed till it was rendered useless. The two big Rochester lamps in the auditorium were found hidden in the basement, jabbed full of holes as if with the handle end of a large file, and also rendered useless. The oil in the lamps had been poured out on the floor, leaving large blotches six or eight feet in diameter. Of the ten or twelve smaller lamps the burners were taken out of all but two and crushed out of all shape, as if with one's heel, on the floor.

The superintendent immediately gave the alarm, and it is hardly necessary to say that the members of the church were surprised and indignant beyond measure, and made no bones of identifying the wanton destruction of property with the troubles they have been having over the pastoral relation. Whether they are right or wrong time may tell, but it is devoutly to be hoped that the perpetrators of this series of cowardly and contemptible acts may meet the punishment they so richly deserve.

Mr. C. E. Bayard has tacked a notice on the church building offering a reward of $25 for the detection of the perpetrator of the crime.

Considerable complaint has been made at various times, and especially since the scarlet fever epidemic began, of the condition of the closets, or rather cess pools, of the brick school house on Court street. In justice to the directors it is proper to say that they have again and again had the matter of connection with the city sewers under consideration, but were deterred only because the expense involved in any adequate improvement was more than they felt justified in imposing on the taxpayers. Not long ago they had an estimate made by a competent architect as to the cost of putting in patent closets that would be frost-proof, which meant that they must be put in a frost-proof building. The estimate was so far beyond their reach at that time that the project had to be temporarily abandoned. Since then lime has been used freely and everything done that could be done to maintain good sanitary conditions short of the abandonment of the cesspools and the adoption of patent closets. The directors now feel that the time has come when they must act. They have under consideration the erection of a brick addition to the school building on the south side, to have its entrance from the inside. This is regarded as the only feasible plan within a reasonable limit of expense. They assure THE CHRONICLE that the improvement will be pushed to completion as fast as men and money can do it.

Says the Portland Telegram of Nov. 5th: "The Hottest Coon in Dixie" is drawing large crowds at Cordray's theater this week. Last evening the election returns were announced from the stage as rapidly as they showed anything tending toward the final result. This was a feature that pleased the patrons of the theater and one which they appreciated. The specialties in "The Hottest Coon in Dixie" are lively, and the performance never lags. No sooner does one turn conclude than it is followed by another equally good. There are two acts that are crammed full of musical numbers, and many new songs are introduced. Miss Hawkins, the soprano, is the star of the company, and deserves the applause she receives nightly. She sings several songs that always strike a responsive chord, and has made an impression with the musical people who have heard her. In the organization there are some of the best colored comedians in the country. They are fun makers of a new variety, and their work is different from white entertainers in several respects." At the Vogt tomorrow night.
