Two old women from Missouri drove up to the toll gate of one of the bridges across the Missouri at Leavenworth and asked the man in charge how much the toll was. "Twenty-five cents for a man and horse," said the gatekeeper. "Well, then get out of the way; we're two old women and a mare. Get up, Sadie." And the man stood in open mouthed wonder as the old women drove off.

We have a fruit, vegetable and grain farm combined, for sale cheap. It consists of 80 acres of rich loam and can be irrigated, a large creek running through the place, besides several never failing springs; about 1500 bearing fruit trees, three acres of grapes and other small fruits; well improved in the way of buildings and fences; would make an ideal fruit, truck and dairy farm; only four miles from the city. This is the chance of a lifetime. Inquire of Hudson & Brownhill.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Glenn have spent the past week at Seaview, from whence Mr. Glenn returned last night and Mrs. Glenn, who stopped over today at Portland, is expected home tonight. The temperature is warmer than it is at either Portland or Astoria and during all the time he was at the beach he never felt the need of an overcoat a moment.

The great demand for sheep in the Willamette valley is illustrated by the following item from the Eugene Guard: "J. H. Beckley placed a small ad in the Guard for a few days, wanting to let out 700 sheep on shares. He has received over forty applications by mail, on account of said advertisement, and from first-class men, and instead of 700 he will let out 1,500 head. The 700 bunch will arrive here from The Dalles Sunday for distribution, and the other 800 later. They are all picked sheep. He purchased them from Representative Albert Roberts, who formerly attended school here."

Yesterday afternoon as Rev. Paul Kruger was passing down Court street, opposite the brick school house, accompanied by his wife and two children, one of which he held in his arms, he stepped in a hole in the sidewalk, and falling backward, struck his head with great force, whether on the sidewalk or a rock is not known. He was taken to his home unconscious and was attended to by Drs. Logan and Ferguson, who pronounced his injury quite serious. At noon today Mr. Kruger had not recovered consciousness, save partially at long intervals, and the physicians have grave apprehensions of fatal results.

The marchioness of Bute, with her only daughter, Lady Margaret Clifton-Stuart, and her third son, Lord Colum Clifton-Stuart, are en route for Palestine. They have with them the heart of the late marquis of Bute for burial on Mount Olivet, in accordance with the desire of the deceased nobleman. The heart of King Robert of Bruce, who was an ancestor of the marquis of Bute, was conveyed by a Douglas for burial in the Holy Land. Special permission was given by the pope of the day to allow it to be extracted from the body according to the king's request. A legend says that the party were attacked by the Saracens in Spain and in a battle Douglas flung the casket containing his charge into the midst of the enemy, crying, "Onward as thou wert wont, thou noble heart; Douglas will follow thee." The gallant chieftain was killed, but Bruce's heart was subsequently recovered and taken to Melrose abbey, where it was interred.

Yesterday afternoon Professor Griffith, the hypnotist, performed the feat of finding a jack knife that had been hidden by a committee, consisting of H. W. Wells, Dr. Eshelman, A. S. Cathcart and Will Crossen, while the hypnotist was guarded by another committee, consisting of Ferd Dietzel, R. J. Gorman and W. Lauder, in the room back of Clarke & Falk's drug store. Then, blindfolded, the professor took the lines of the team used by the hiders of the knife, and following the circuitous route which they took when hiding it, pulled up in front of The Dalles Commission House, and climbing a telephone pole, found the knife where Will Crossen had placed it, on the top of the wooden awning. During the drive he was accompanied by the committee who hid the knife. No word was spoken from start to finish and the only contact the hypnotist had with his companions was a small copper wire fastened around his forehead and attached to the back, and incidentally to the committee men. Both committees were chosen from a crowd that gathered in front of Clarke & Falk's drug store, and every possible precaution was taken to prevent collusion between the committees and between them and the hypnotist. Tonight Professor Griffith will give his closing entertainment at the Vogt.

Circuit Court Proceedings.

The court was occupied yesterday afternoon and part of this forenoon with the case of Mrs. M. J. Hensel against Hans Hansen, J. P. Thomson and A. D. McDonald. The action was brought to recover the price of 9000 feet of lumber at $14.50 a thousand, the balance claimed to be due on a contract for 18,000 feet as the price of a saw mill bought by the defendants. Mrs. Hensel had come into possession of the claim by purchase; but in the transfer of the claim the husband of the owner of it had signed his wife's name without her being present or without her power of attorney. On the proof of this fact the court decided in favor of a motion of non-suit, and the jury was discharged for the term.

All the other jurors had been discharged last night. The remaining business of the term consists a few equity cases.
