

HO FOR THE FAR EAST.

The Portland Telegram feels like shaking hands all around; first, with Portland; second, with Oregon; third, with the O. R. & N. Co.; fourth, with the Pacific Northwest; fifth, with the Pacific Coast, and finally with the whole country.

This feeling of sociability can be explained in a few words: First, as a nation, we are going to hold the Philippine Islands; look after our interests in China, and be the leading factor in the development of Oriental commerce. This was settled by the last election.

Second, this coast faces the Orient. We are going to have the first fruits of that commerce. Portland, San Francisco, Seattle and Tacoma have a manifest advantage, geographically and even in a small degree climatically, over New York, Boston, Baltimore, Chicago, St. Louis and St. Paul. But the men of those cities are alive and awake to their opportunities. So are they of San Francisco and Seattle. So must those of Portland and Oregon be.

Third, Oregon, our region, extending into Southern Washington, Eastern Washington, Idaho and Montana. All the producers of this vast region are going to have a new market field, more competition among the struggling millions for our products, better prices, better living, better times.

Fourth, the O. R. & N. Co. Some months ago the Telegram confidently though cautiously predicted what has now happened. Mr. Mohler has kept his suggested word, and bettered it, as such men usually do. Already his company has bought four 9000-ton steamers to run between Portland and the Orient direct. This means a good deal; it means that Portland will be hereafter as well off and as independent in regard to Oriental commerce as San Francisco or Seattle. Mr. Hill can build as many and as big steamers as he chooses; the more the better; luck to him; but they will be duplicated or bettered all around by steamers running direct between Hong Kong, Yokohama, Kobe, Manila and Portland.

The Telegram had no doubt that this would be so; the materialization of the recent expectations and predictions is already coming to pass.

Raise all the crops you can, farmers; multiply your dairies; set out and cultivate orchards; build up all sorts of manufactures; we are living in the golden gateway through which Providence gives us a glorious glimpse of the opening twentieth century, and we scarcely realize, much less appreciate, the vision.

Just how much likelihood there is of getting together the discordant elements that masquerade under the common name of democratic party may be inferred from the following remark of the Eugene Guard, a thoroughly Bryanite paper, and one that undoubtedly represents the views of a large majority of so-called democrats: "When the last hair on the dog's tail can wag the tail and the rest of the dog, then Don M. Dickinson, Cleveland's post-master-general, and a few more of his standard of democracy, may reorganize the democratic party. However, the vote cast for Bryan is sufficiently large to convince any thinking person that there is no immediate, pressing need of such reorganization as the party would get from Dickinson and his comparatively few followers."

John P. Altgeld says that the election of President McKinley "means a triumph of bribery and corruption." Most of the other Bryanite leaders are manly enough to take their defeat for what it is—the verdict of the people—but in Altgeld's nature there is a vein of malice, bitterness and vituperation that never fails to make a characteristic display of itself at a time like this. Probably if the vote for McKinley had been unanimous Altgeld would have said the same thing. To his jaundiced imagination every man who votes for the opposite ticket is "bribed" or "corrupted" or "coerced" or otherwise dishonest.

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. A trial size will be mailed for 10 cents. All druggists sell the 50c. size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N. Y. The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation. With Ely's Cream Balm you are armed against Nasal Catarrh and Hay Fever.
