

The Wheat Trade.

There is very little doing in the wheat market at present, evidently most of the shippers who had not extreme bids reduced the same, and sellers are waiting for another spurt in prices before they let go any more. Some large lots have passed into exporters' hands at prices that could not be duplicated today. The market has again sagged back to its former self, and what business is being done is mostly of small lots that is usually being done at this time of the year. Tonnage is not coming in freely, and there is plenty of wheat both at Portland and on Puget Sound for a large number of ships to carry away. The recent heavy shipments have shown no effect on the stocks at either place. As fast as room is made at the warehouses, cars on the track are ready to unload to fill up the gap. There is no doubt that the market would be flooded with offers of wheat if the price would advance a few cents. The late rise shows that, as we predicted when wheat was selling at 33 cents, a two-cent rise would cause heavy offerings, and the same would be repeated on another rise. Sellers are getting full value on all the wheat they sell, if the exporter bases his purchases on 42-63 ships and at present cargo quotations in London. Reports from the interior state that farmers are paying considerable attention to farm work, and from the looks of these reports fall-sown acreage has been unusually heavy this year.

Millers in the Valley are good buyers for Eastern Oregon wheat. Their crop is so short that they are unable to buy at any fair price, and rather than pay very extreme prices, are buying wheat from east of the mountains; but, notwithstanding these two factors in the business, there is yet considerable wheat in the country, fully two-thirds of the crop being held by interior warehousemen and farmers. We quote club, Walla Walla, 54 cents; Bluestem, 57 cents, and Valley, 60 cents per bushel.—Portland Commercial Review.

The Sterling (Ill.) Standard makes the following try for an alleged offer of $1000 for the best rhyme for Michigan:

I knew a young lady from Michigan,
To meet her I never should wighigan,
She'd eat of ice-cream,
'Til with pain she would scream,
And she'd order another big dichigan.

The farmer doesn't have to solicit the patronage of anyone. He doesn't have to enter into competition like the merchant; he doesn't have to wrangle and warp the truth for living like others; he doesn't have to depend upon donations reluctantly doled out, like ministers; in short, he can be the most independent man on God's green earth if he manages his affairs on a business like manner. He has more time and opportunities for improving his mind; he has less allurements for corrupting his morals, and his occupation is conducive to the highest development of his physical powers; he can be no intimate terms with his own family, at peace with the world and he can worship God under his own grapevine and apple tree, none daring to molest or make him afraid.—Centralia News.
