The young members of the bar, of this city, have organized a club for the purpose of holding weekly discussions on questions of law.

Seats for the Dierke recital can be procured at Parkins & Menefee's. The price of admission has been placed at 50 cents so that all lovers of music can attend.

Do not forget that at the New Year's masquerade ball, at the Baldwin, prizes will be given for the best sustained characters and the most comical costumes.

E. E. Beaman, of Heppner, has a Hereford cow that has had three calves within the past ten months, and all are alive and thrifty, the most recent event being twins.

Granite has refused to allow a liquor license to a dealer who persists in keeping his saloon on the street. He claims the right to remain because he was there before the town was incorporated.

The following Old Fellows from Goldendale arrived here today and will attend the meeting of the local lodge to-night: Joe Stultz, C. A. Holder, L. A. Duncan, Wm. McEwan, Thurst Masters, W. T. Darch, C. M. Ryman and Donald Furry.

Why pay fancy prices to peddlers when you can get Estey or Mason & Hamlin organs, the best in the world, from your home dealers at $40 to $50 less than they are asking. Call at I. C. Nickelsen's music store.

Rev. D. V. Poling received a telegram this morning from Rev. C. F. Clapp, superintendent of the home missions of the Congregational church in Oregon, announcing that he would arrive here tomorrow and remain over Sunday. The announcement of the services conducted by Mr. Clapp while here will be made in tomorrow's CHRONICLE.

The other dealers in town cannot sell any pianos and organs. We are having things our own way. Of course we are almost giving them away, and we dare not rush into print with prices, as it would make them still more furious. Call at Nickelsen's music store, where the Wiley B. Allen Co., of Portland, are having their removal sale and turning the world upside down just now.

G. R. French, who owns an island of fifteen acres in the Columbia river, near Mosier, and makes a specialty of raising chickens, keeps about 200 hens. His chickens are not profitable, but he thinks if he could raise water from the river and irrigate a clover patch, to give the hens green feed in the dry season, that they would be more profitable.—Hood River Glacier.

The family of M. P. Isenberg held a reunion at his home in Belmont on Christmas day, says the Glacier. To say that all had a merry Christmas would be drawing it lightly. The Isenbergs know how to enjoy a reunion. The boys got M. P. out to the barn and made him dance a jig, and they do say that he hopped it down in good old Virginia style. In justice to M. P. it should be stated that the boys put up the cigars before he consented to dance.

The name of the team that will meet the Dalles boys on New Year's day is Portland Football Team, a regular organization that has met several elevens this season and thus far has not met defeat. Members of the local football organization, and others interested, will call on our citizens with tickets in the very near future. Help the town by assisting in meeting the expenses of bringing the team to The Dalles.

The members of Columbia lodge No. 5, I. O. O. F., anticipate an unusually pleasant meeting this evening at 7:30 o'clock. There will be work in the initiatory and first and second degrees, and they have been notified that a large delegation of brothers from Goldendale will be over to pay them a fraternal visit. It being the last meeting night of the year, and of the century as well, a full attendance is much desired.

Sunday being the closing Lord's day of the year, as well as the century, Rev. U. F. Hawk, of the Methodist church, extends a special invitation to the members of his church and the public at large to attend services on that day. Special music is being prepared for the evening service, and he hopes to see the church crowded at that time. Young people especially invited. If you have failed to consider the blessings which the Giver has bestowed on you throughout the year, do so at the services of the closing Sabbath of the year.

"If it is not true that we Americans regard money-making as the work for which life was given us, why, when we have millions, do we go on struggling to make more millions—and more?" writes "An American Mother" in the January Ladies' Home Journal. "It is not so with the older races. The London tradesman at middle age shuts his shop, buys an acre in the suburbs and lives on a small income or spends the rest of his life in losing it in poultry or fancy gardening. The German or Frenchman seldom works when past 60. He gives his last years to some study or hobby—music, a microscope, or it may be dominoes. You meet him and his wife, jolly, shrewd, intelligent, jogging all over Europe, Baedeker in hand. They tell you they have a curiosity to see this fine world before they go out of it."

Another Pioneer Gone.

Joseph Burger, an old and respected resident of The Dalles and a California pioneer of 1849, died at his residence in this city at 11:30 o'clock Thursday night, after an illness that began a year ago in an attack of paralysis that rendered him practically helpless ever since. The immediate cause of death was strangulated hernia, from which he suffered intensely during the three closing weeks of his life.

Joseph Burger was born sixty-nine years ago in Mansfield, Ohio. He crossed the plains to California in 1849 and for years was engaged in mining and other occupations in that state. He came to Oregon about thirty years ago, and for many years was engaged in the express business in this city. He was married sixteen years ago to Mrs. Belle Dickerson, who survives him.

The deceased was a hard-working, honorable man and a good and worthy citizen. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias for over twenty years, and the funeral, which takes place at 2 p. m. tomorrow from the residence on Third street, will be conducted under their auspices.

Ex-President Harrison Tries Golf.

When Edward Cox, editor of The Ladies' Home Journal, heard that ex-President Harrison was practicing golf on a links near Indianapolis, he took a new ball out of his golf-bag and expressed it to the general with the words, "Drive this."

In a few days came back a dispatch: "Thanks, I have. But doesn't a bottle of liniment go with each ball."
"Benjamin Harrison."

K. of P. Attention!

The officers and members of Friendship lodge No. 9, K. of P., are hereby notified to appear at the castle ball on Saturday, Dec. 29th, at 1 o'clock, to attend the funeral of our late brother, J. Berger. By order of the C. C.
D. W. VAUSE, K. of R. & S.

Division and Annexation.

Starting in some little paper in Eastern Oregon, a demand for the division of that state at the Cascades is being agitated, and newspaper comment all over the Northwest on the question, has become general. In view of this desire on the part of Eastern Oregon to break away from the domination of Portland, it may be highly interesting at this time to recall that about twenty-five years ago Walla Walla, says the Statesman, was agitating the question of breaking away from the domination of the Sound country and attaching herself to Oregon.

The files of the Statesman for 1875 and 1876 are filled with opinions along this line. Many petitions were circulated in Walla Walla, Waitsburg, Dayton and other portions of the Walla Walla country—for all that south of the Snake was so called—asking congress to annex this portion of Washington to Oregon. On December 13, 1875, Mr. Kelly, member of congress from Oregon, introduced a bill changing the boundary lines of Oregon so as to include all that portion of Washington territory south of the Snake river. As soon as a copy of that bill reached Walla Walla numerous petitions were circulated and generally signed, asking congress to pass the Kelly bill. The county commissioners of Walla Walla county forwarded a petition, as did many of the Granges of this section, for at that time the Granges were numerous and of considerable strength. It seemed to be the general consensus of opinion that this change would be beneficial to this section of the country.

Salt Has Wonderful Power.

Salt, just plain salt, or sodium chloride, as chemists call it, is about to take a new place in the world, for two university of Chicago professors, working in the quiet of their laboratories, have found that it is the long sought for elixir of life. They have found that sodium chloride, or salt solution, when graduated to the right proportions, will cause a heart which has ceased to beat to take up its rhythmic action and do its work again. In other words, they have discovered that a certain solution will revive life that is extinct.

Professor Jacques Loeb and Professor D. J. Lingle are the discoverers. The key word to the whole discovery is what these scientists have termed "ions."

Professors Loeb and Lingle have been experimenting all summer on the auricular and ventricular muscle, and have found that certain "ions," or electric current solutions, furnish life's prolonging principle which works on the heart muscles through the blood. Salt in the blood in certain proportions they have discovered to be the cause of the heart beat. The results of experiments of the Chicago professors have not become generally known yet, as they are preparing a story of their summer's work for publication.
