CORBETT AT HIS OLD TRICKS.

Of the contest now waging for the senatorship at Salem, the correspondent of the Astoria News writes his paper as follows. (The News, let it be remembered, is impartial to the extent that it is opposed to the election of both the candidates mentioned.)

"The friends of the several aspirants are conducting vigorous campaigns, and members of the legislature are besieged at all times. The Corbett crowd is said to have brought along plenty of money and several instances are already reported in which bribes have been offered. One staunch McBride man was approached last night, it is said, and offered $2500 if he would openly advocate the election of Corbett. He is said to have immediately reported the matter to McBride headquarters. That the anti-McBride faction expects to win by use of money is evident, but the opposition managers say the Corbett people have bought up all of the purchasable element already, and that further attempted use of money will be of no avail."

A correspondent of the New York Sun insists that all that any one needs to be healthy is to drink a teaspoonful of dissolved salt in a glass of water when he or she first arises, and then not to eat any food for about half an hour. He says that to drink it in vichy or even plain carbonated water, it is robbed of its most unpleasant taste, and that in a little while a person gets to like it. He says that millions of people have experimented with hot and cold water as a before breakfast drink, but not many have tried salt. He tells that in 1894 his heart action was so feeble that the pulse beat was almost constantly at about 44. He began the use of table salt and had complete relief from his lifelong stomach troubles within a week. He says that since then he has never had any trouble whatever with his circulation; that formerly he was very thin in flesh, but steadily gained with the use of the salt until his weight has increased thirty pounds. From a shadow he became almost stout, and had and still maintains a healthy, clear and fresh color; and though 60 years of age, is in feeling as young as at 40.

Governor Rogers makes a suggestion to the Washington legislature that THE CHRONICLE would very much like to see adopted on this side the Columbia. In his message delivered yesterday the governor says: "Without attempting to interfere, save in a strictly constitutional manner, with the peculiar province of the legislative department of government, I shall be permitted to observe that, in my opinion, each organized county, without regard to population, should be permitted to have at least one representative in the house of representatives. To deprive the small counties of this privilege would cause some injustice and much ill feeling." The districting law that hardly gives a county in Eastern Oregon a representative and latches Wasco to a district that extends from the Columbia river to California and from the Cascades to the Blue mountains is a fraud and an outrage, if the Apostle Paul were the author of it.

A New York trade journal is responsible for the following statements: "Queen Victoria owns $6,000,000 worth of mortgages on New York real estate, from which she derives an annual income of $250,000, and that she owns $3,000,000 worth of stock in American railroads. The Prince of Wales also owns $5,000,000 worth of American securities, while Emperor William has $3,000,000 invested in American railroad stocks, and the Czar has

$6,000,000 invested in a similar manner. It is stated that even the royal family of Spain has $2,000,000 in American securities. There has never been a time when American securities were sought after so eagerly, or considered so desirable an investment by foreigners."

Will the state legislature, which meets Monday, elect a man hostile to the administration, when the people have overwhelmingly decided in upholding that administration? Will it? Have conditions changed since November that the people of Oregon want a man in the United States senate to vote against what they voted for then? Hardly.— Burns Items.
