

ANOTHER "BOMBSHELL" FROM OUR GREAT REDUCTION SALE.

The Great Event is meeting with such favorable response that we have decided to make a bigger cut than ever.

...And Still They Go Down...

Despite the unfriendly elements, the happy throng still crowds our place for "plums." They know—the people do—that our stokes are merciless and our cuts are deep. When we say "our goods are cheap," we don't mean "cheap goods." There's as much difference between the former and the latter as there is between "an ardent lover" and a "lover of the ardent."

WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Representative A. S. Roberts arrived here from Salem on the noon train.

Lost—An Elk charm with the initials T. J. S. A liberal reward will be paid for its return to this office. j12-1w

The funeral of the late John Blakeney will take place from the residence of his son, James H., Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The poultry dealers of McMinnville have entered into an agreement to hereafter buy all poultry by the pound instead of by the dozen. This will induce the farmers to fatten their chickens before marketing them and to improve their breeds of poultry, says the Reporter.

The Portland football team arrived here last night. It is composed of a fine, husky lot of boys that it will be an honor to wallop. The game is on as we go to press. The stores are closed and the West End of town is deserted of everybody save the newspaper fraternity, who stick to their post not because they are stuck on sticking, but because they cannot help it.

Don't you imagine that it does not pay to advertise. W. T. McClure, of Mosier, the other day handed the CHRONICLE man a pair of silver framed spectacles that he picked up on the street, and before the pencil-shaver had time to write out an ad. announcing the find to the world, the owner called at the office, described his lost spectacles and carried them home rejoicing.

Mr. S. L. Brooks received a dispatch this morning announcing the death at Portland last night of his youngest and last living brother, Henry J. Brooks, aged about 59 years. The deceased had been in ill health for about a year and his death was not unexpected. He was an Oregon pioneer, having crossed the plains with his parents in 1850. Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Collins left this afternoon for Portland to attend the funeral. Mr. Brooks not feeling well enough to undertake the trip.

The U. S. civil service examinations will be held at several places in each state during March and April to secure young men and women for various positions. Last year upwards of 8000 such appointments were made without political influence. No fees are charged. Information about the places and dates of examinations can be had free by writing the Columbian Correspondence College, Washington, D. C.

The charming young lady stenographer in the office of a local justice of the peace had more offers of marriage yesterday than she is likely to have in the next ten years. The justice had occasion to be absent in the country for the day, and before leaving the young lady asked, "Now supposing somebody wants to get married when you are gone, what am I to do?" "Why, marry him, of course," said the justice. The story crept out, and if the lady refused to obey the injunction of the justice and is still in a state of single blessedness, it is not because she was not asked to marry somebody a score of times.

Sheriff Kelly has been on the hunt, for the last four or five days, of one C. A. Bell, a spectacle peddler, who recently borrowed a horse and buggy, worth $200, from W. H. Davis of Wapinitia, and made off with the outfit. It was found that Bell had passed through Goldendale the first of the week and, presuming that he was making for Yakima county, Sheriff Kelly telegraphed the Yakima sheriff to be on the lookout for him. Bell was located this morning at Zula and captured by the constable of that town. Jim Brown, of Victor, had been on Bell's trail and he has been authorized to bring Bell back here. The prisoner has agreed to come back without a requisition from the governor of Washington.

From the Hood River Glacier we get the following particulars of the death of the late J. R. Warner, of White Salmon, who died at his home last Tuesday. The Glacier says Mr. Warner was in his usual good health on that day and went out and shoveled some earth to mend the road, and soon after was taken down with heart failure and expired. J. R. Warner was a veteran of the civil war and served in the 52nd Massachusetts regiment. He was a member of J. W. Nesmith post, G. A. R., at The Dalles, and always took a deep interest in the work of the Grand Army of the Republic. He was a member of the council of administration, department of Oregon, and never failed to attend a state encampment of the G. A. R. He was 78 years of age.

It was in a Western town. There was a large audience to hear the morning service. The minister, desiring to learn the effect of the prosperous times on the congregation, asked all who paid their debts to stand up. Every man in the audience stood up with the exception of one rather dejected looking individual. He was dressed in a faded suit of black, and the patches on his pants were partly hidden by his long tailed coat. After all were seated, the minister asked for all who did not pay their debts to arise. The man with the faded suit arose slowly. All eyes were turned upon him. The minister in rather a severe tone asked him why he was the only man in the congregation who didn't pay his debts. He said: "I am the publisher of the local newspaper here, and all the brethren who just stood up are my subscribers and—" "Let us pray," said the minister.

The Hood River Glacier says Dr. Adams, of that place, has lately received a pressing invitation from publishers of a popular magazine in Portland, who say, "If you would take up the story of men, measures and incidents of pioneer life, telling the ins and outs of the whys and wherefores in a historical reminiscent vein whittling along closely to the historical, your articles would be a contribution to history that would be quoted for all time. A resume on this line we are very anxious to secure, and we know of no living mind that retains its youthful activity and wealth of words like yours. In fact, those who came here at the date you did are all dead or in their dotage. Those who write express but second-hand sentiments and assertions, coloring them to suit those whom they would flatter or condemn. Hoping that you will write for us, we are very truly yours." The Glacier says the doctor is rummaging around in his drawers to find and sharpen up the old goose quill that set all Oregon agog long years ago. THE CHRONICLE would be delighted to see something from the doctor's pen along the lines suggested; but isn't that an odd place where the old man keeps his goose quill?

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

An adjourned regular meeting of the city council was held last night at the council chambers. There was a full attendance of councilmen, and Councilman Gunning occupied the chair.

A tax levy of six mills was declared. Councilman Gunning, chairman of the committee on fire and water, to which was heretofore referred the matter of locating fire hydrants, recommended that a six-inch fire hydrant be placed at the east end of the Wasco warehouse, and also a six-inch hydrant near the location of the contemplated flouring mill. The council ordered that these hydrants should be placed as soon as the board of water commissioners shall have extended the water main on Second street to the site of the proposed mill.

Councilman Gunning also reported that the fire department was in immediate need of 500 feet of fire hose and recommended that that amount be purchased. The recommendation of the committee was approved. Three written bids of dealers in hose were submitted for the sale of the amount required, and the council accepted the bid of the Pacific Coast Rubber Company for 100 feet of Phoenix brand at $1 a foot, 200 feet from the Gutta Percha & Rubber Manufacturing Company, of the Maltese Cross brand, at $1 a foot; and 200 feet from Mays & Crowe, of the Live Oak brand, at 85 cents a foot. The bid of each party contains a guarantee that their hose will stand a 400 pound pressure to the square inch, when delivered, and each gave a warranty against any defect in material or workmanship for a period of four years. The department carries 3000 feet of hose and this is the first purchase since August, 1898.

W. R. Brown was awarded the contract to construct a ditch on Ninth street, between Lincoln and Pentland, for the purpose of draining the springs and stagnant water in that vicinity. The contract price is $36.

W. R. Brown was also awarded the contract for grading Clay street, between Court and D streets; price, $46.

The judiciary committee, to which was heretofore referred the communication of Rev. Paul Kruger, asking for damages for alleged injuries sustained by an alleged defective crosswalk, recommended that the request be denied. On motion the council unanimously adopted the recommendation of the committee.

By the unanimous vote of the council an ordinance was passed vacating that part of Monroe street lying between First and Second streets, except a portion of said street on the southeast corner measuring 25 by 40 feet.

The council ordered that a deed be executed in favor of W. A. Miller, for lots purchased by him from the city.

Portland Wheat Market.

Portland exporters were not inclined to quote above 55 cents for Walla Walla wheat yesterday, and, as the holders have not yet made up their minds to accept that figure, there was no business doing. The foreign market is lower, and exporters find it a difficult matter to get bids for cargoes. With the market in such a distressed condition, no one seems disposed to load up with tonnage, and ship brokers found it difficult to effect charters at the rates which have ruled since January 1st.

Wheat—Walla Walla, 55c; Valley, nominal; bluestem, 57@57 1/2c per bushel. In The Dalles market 48 cents is the best offering for No. 1.

PROPOSED GAME LAW CHANGES.

Suggestions Submitted to the Wasco County Delegation in the Oregon Legislature.

The following changes in the game laws of this state have been suggested by the local members of the League of American Sportsmen and others, and a copy of them sent to each member of the Wasco delegation in the Oregon legislature, with the request that the delegation shall endeavor to have them incorporated into the laws of the state:

First—All species of pheasants, including the native pheasants, or ruffed grouse, to be protected until 1905.

Second—One month open season for quail, from September 1st to October 1st.

Third—Open season for prairie chickens from August 1st to November 1st, instead of September 1st to November 1st.

Fourth—Silver gray squirrel, open season from August 1st to February 1st.

Fifth—Open season for salmon trout in navigable waters only, all times. All other species of trout from April 1st to October 1st. (Except the month of June, to allow trout one month to spawn.) Sale prohibited at all times. All trout to be not less than six inches in length and 124 trout to one day's fishing.

Sixth—The carrying of trout and game on the person of a hunter or fisherman, and in no other way, from the state of Oregon into Washington to be permitted upon the passage of a similar law by the state of Washington.

Seventh—The game warden and his deputies to have charge of the trout, protecting in addition to the game and forests. We also ask for a sufficient appropriation ($5000) to enable him to pay his deputies a small salary, which will mean better protection for our fish, song and game birds and forests.

Eighth—All other portions of the fish and game laws to remain as they now are except those changed by the O. F. & G. Association, of Portland, for the benefit of sportsmen in Oregon.

Ninth—No fines to be less than $50 or more than $1000, including imprisonment and costs or both, county commissioners to have power to shorten season's sale, at all times prohibited, of all game and trout.

Signed by the L. A. S. legislative committee.
