

THE SITUATION IS UNCHANGED

Nor is Any Important Change Expected During the Week.

Special to THE CHRONICLE] SALEM, Jan. 24, 1:53 p. m.—The vote today for senator was exactly the same as yesterday. The caucus last night resulted in nothing. Not only is the senatorial situation unchanged but no change is expected during the week. The house today passed a measure providing for an oil painting of Governor Geer for the House of representatives. The sum appropriated is $600. The senate today confirmed the governor's appointments of regents of the state normal schools.

Charity To a Girl. SALEM, Jan. 23.—By virtue of the generosity of the delegation from Multnomah county in the legislature, a purse was raised to pay the court fees for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of a German girl who was sentenced to the county jail for twenty-five days under a fine of $50 for the alleged stealing of some wearing apparel at Woodburn. The petition was heard before Judge Boise yesterday afternoon, and the girl was discharged. She has been assisted to some good clothing and several persons, including the Multnomah delegation, are interesting themselves to get work for her. The girl, whose name is Bertha Crader, had been working for a man in Woodburn, who failed to pay her according to a contract, and when she left she took a couple of waists with her of little value. The papers upon which she was arrested were entirely faulty, and the whole proceedings aroused considerable indignation.

Has Had Experience. LONDON, Jan. 23.—The Daily Telegraph publishes two editorials, under the captions "The Queen" and "The King." In the latter it says: "Most happily for him he has, with infinite credit to himself, passed through a period of probation in some ways more difficult and certainly more prolonged than that to which any successor to a throne in modern times has been subjected. He assumes the burden of his imperial task equipped with all invaluable experience which the most painstaking discharge of great duties could secure him during the lifetime of his august mother."

The Times says: "If anything can in some measure console the nation for the irreparable loss it has sustained, it is the well-founded conviction that the Queen has left behind her a worthy successor who may be trusted to walk in her footsteps." The Standard expresses regret that the Queen was not spared to see peace restored in South Africa. The Daily News says that Queen Victoria was always a peacemaker. It refers to the incident of her modifying in a pacific sense Lord Russell's dispatch in the Trent case.

Brave Men Fall. Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, Idaville, Ind. He says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he is all run down, and don't care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and good appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents, at Blakeley's drug store. Every bottle guaranteed.

When threatened by pneumonia or any other lung trouble, prompt relief is necessary, as it is dangerous to delay. We would suggest that One Minute Cough Cure be taken as soon as indications of having taken cold are noticed. It cures quickly and its early use prevents consumption. Clarke & Falk's P. O. Pharmacy.

EDWARD VII TAKES HIS TITLE

Hail to the King of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India.

LONDON, Jan. 23, 1 p. m.—The King-Emperor entered his capital at 12:55 p. m., and proceeded to Marlborough, after attending the first privy council, at St. James' Palace, at 2 p. m. when a decision was reached regarding the public proclamation of his accession, which, it is expected, will be read tomorrow at 10 a. m.

LONDON, Jan. 23, 3 p. m.—At the meeting of the privy council, the king took the title of Edward VII, King of the united kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and Emperor of India.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The house of lords and the house of commons assembled at 4 o'clock, and took the oath of allegiance to the new sovereign.

The king, at the accession ceremony, wore a military uniform. His brief speech was delivered with great earnestness, and was quite extemporaneous. It is expected it will be published later in official form. At the last moment the king decided not to attend the house of lords today.

The proclamation of the accession of His Majesty was signed by the princes present, the Duke of York first, then the Duke of Connaught, the Duke of Cambridge, Prince Christian, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Mayor and the other representatives of the city of London.

At 4:30 p. m., the artillery began firing salutes in St. James' park to signalize King Edward's accession to the throne. Among the incidents of the day was an imposing civic procession. The Lord Mayor and Alderman, accompanied by the city marshal, mace-bearer and other members of the corporation, escorted by a strong body of police, proceeded from the Mansion House, by way of the Thames embankment and Trafalgar Square, to St. James' Palace, in gilded equipages, with liveried outriders, including semi-state carriages, making a notable picture, which was witnessed by thousands of silent people, who filled the sidewalks along the entire route.

The King Makes a Speech. LONDON, Jan. 23.—The king's speech to the councillors was made in great earnestness. He said:

"I have decided to assume the title of King Edward the Seventh, in accordance with the wishes of my beloved mother, who united the virtues of supreme and domestic good with affection and patriotism of a wise, peace-loving monarch. I have a respectful desire to leave the memory of my father's name, Albert, to the exclusive treasury of my beloved mother. Notwithstanding personal desire, I cannot hope to do justice to the renown and virtues associated with Prince Albert's name, but I shall do my utmost to be worthy of my great position."

No Prince of Wales. NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—A dispatch to Tribune from London says: The Duke of York will not necessarily become the Prince of Wales that his father has ascended the throne. The principality was granted by Edward I to his son, afterwards to Edward II, and his heirs, kings of England. Consequently when the Prince of Wales succeeds to the throne, his princely title merges in his sovereignty. The new sovereign's eldest son is still Duke of York, but he becomes also Duke of Cornwall, this title descending to him from his father. It is generally assumed that the king will immediately confer his principality upon him as it is within his social prerogative to do so.

The King a Business Man. NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Alfred Harmsworth, editor of the London Daily Mail, in a dispatch from St. Augustine, Fla., to the Herald, says:

"As one deeply interested in the binding together of the 400,000,000 of British people, I cannot but realize that we have lost in our Queen a center of imperial sympathy that did much for cohesion and unity. Could any more potent spell be divined for the union of the divergent races that form our empire than the personality of a good woman? With you it has been your beautiful flag; with us the noblest of women.

"But the future has good in store for us. The world has passed from the realm of sentiment to the age of business, and in Edward VII we have one who is above all a man of affairs. Not enough is known on this side of the Atlantic of the marked aptitude of our king as a diplomatist, a negotiator and a hard-working business man. His only rival in this matter among the world's sovereigns in his nephew, William of Germany, and no one will gainsay the fact that for discretion and savoir faire Edward VII is more than a match for William II. It bodes well for the world's peace that the friendship that has always existed between our king and many of our statesmen will, as the result of the emperor's visit, now be firm 'twixt him and his German nephew.

"The three nations do not always see eye and eye; no treaty will ever link them, perhaps. But there will be that between them, it is to be hoped, which we of the workaday world know as a business understanding."

Persons who suffer from indigestion cannot expect to live long, because they cannot eat the food required to nourish the body and the products of the undigested foods they do eat poison the blood. It is important to cure indigestion as soon as possible, and the best method of doing this is to use the preparation known as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It digests what you eat and restores all the digestive organs to perfect health. Clarke & Falk's P. O. Pharmacy.
