

An Astonishing But True Story

"My home is in Sidney, Ohio. I have been nearer death with consumption than any other living person in the world, and I want you to read this, so you can tell others. I took a severe cold and neglected it, I grew worse all the time, and at the end of two years I had run into consumption. I coughed terribly, lost flesh, could not sleep, and became so dreadfully weak that I had to take to bed. In the following eighteen months I gradually reached the last stages of consumption. No less than seven physicians treated me and all gave me up saying I was incurable. I was absolutely helpless. The whole family wore themselves out caring for me. One day mother and sister came to my bedside, and said I had but a day or two more to live. Tears rolled down their cheeks as they sobbed the news. The doctors had declared I was in the last stage, and no human being could save me. I was willing to die, but before going to the cruel grave, I wanted to go out and see my dearly beloved town of Sidney once more. They told me such a thing was impossible—that I would surely die before I got back. But I insisted, and to gratify my dying wish, a carriage was fitted up with a bed of pillows, and to this I was carried and slowly driven around Court House Square. I got home more dead than alive. Through the mercy of Providence, someone brought a trial bottle of medicine said to be a consumption cure. No one imagined for an instant it was worth trying. But as a drowning person grasps at a straw, so I tried this medicine. I was better after taking two doses. Mother got more of the medicine and I took it, improving all the time. Today I am as well as any reader of this paper, and the medicine that cured me was Acker's English Remedy for Consumption. I declare before God and man that every word here printed is true."

This remarkable testimonial, on file in the office of Messrs. W. H. Hooker & Co., New York, proprietors of Dr. Acker's Celebrated English Remedy, is vouched for by them, as well as by prominent druggists of Sidney, Ohio.

Acker's English Remedy is sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee that your money will be refunded in case of failure. See No. 10 and 11 in U. S. and Canada. In England 18, 23, 29, 34, and 48, 64.

LEGISLATIVE HAPPENINGS

The Festive Tombstone Man Asks Protection—Hazel's Post Bill Killed—The Dalles Postage a Big Undertaking.

[Special Correspondence.]

The following named members of the house have placed themselves on record in matters pertaining to the prohibition of the sale of intoxicants at the state fair grounds during the session of the Oregon state fair. They are Allen, Black, Dresser, Eddy, Hawkins, Hunne, Ingram, Kruse, McQueen, Merrill, Montague, Nottingham, Smith, of Multnomah, Talbert, Thompson, of Multnomah, Vincent, Watson, Whitney and Speaker Reeder. The vote was taken on the measure providing for the licensing of saloons on the fair grounds by the state board of agriculture. The bill passed, however, by the votes of the remaining members, Stewart and Edeon being absent.

The senatorial situation on Tuesday is unchanged. The vote taken does not show the least sign or incident by which an inkling can be found pertaining to future action relative to this matter. It is thought, however, that Corbett and his followers will endeavor to prevent the election of any other candidate, and the chances are good for the senatorial fight to continue until the end of the session. However, it is believed that finally a senator will be elected and that it will not be Corbett. A number of staunch republicans, who are qualified to represent Oregon in the upper house of congress, are available for the position, and it is known that many who now support McBride, Hermann and Corbett will, at some future date, agree on some suitable candidate for the place.

Otto Schumann is a member of the lower house in the Oregon legislature; he is also a grave-stone dealer in Portland, and cuts inscriptions on monuments in two languages. In the pursuit of his chosen vocation he sometimes furnishes the stone, labor and necessary time used in placing memorial tributes over the last resting places of the departed and receives no pay for his expense, outlay and good intentions. To correct this evil the gentleman from Multnomah has introduced a measure providing for a lien to be taken upon such marking stones for sums equal to the amount for which they were contracted by those ordering them. In the practical, every-day usage of such a law, many pieces of monumental work would be removed from the grave for purchase money not paid. A local cartoonist grasped the idea and furnished a good likeness of Mr. Schumann, using the general view of a cemetery as a background. In this view drays and men were employed in removing headstones for money due, even though widows and friends besought with tears that the slabs be not taken away.

A measure, which is interesting several members to a great degree, is that pertaining to the postage railway at the dalles. While everyone understands the necessities of the occasion and the great number of residents of the state to be benefited by such a railway, it seems a large undertaking for the state to attempt at the present time. However, some action will undoubtedly be taken in regard to this matter during the present session.

The parcel's post bill, now pending in congress, is a measure which in actual practice would ruin the small country retail dealer, yet a memorial to congress praying for its passage almost passed both houses of the Oregon legislature. Had it not been for the efforts of certain newspaper representatives, who recognized the injurious nature of the bill, such a memorial would undoubtedly have gone to Washington from this state. The measure undoubtedly is being pushed through our national body of law-makers by the large city department stores of the country, which already are a menace to the retail stores in our smaller towns and villages. However, the memorial was practically killed yesterday in the house, when Heitkemper gave notice that he would call for a re-consideration of the measure today.

Mr. W. A. Hines of Manchester, Ia., writing of his almost miraculous escape from death, says: "Exposure after measles induced serious lung trouble, which ended in Consumption. I would not be without it even if it cost $5.00 a bottle. Hundreds have used it on my recommendation and all say it never fails to cure Throat, Chest and Lung troubles." Regular size 50c and $1.00.
