THE OREGON LEGISLATURE.

Corbett Gains One Vote and McBride Loses One.

Special to THE CHRONICLE.]

SALEM, Feb. 8.—There was a slight change today in the vote for senator, Corbett gaining Proebstel, who has hitherto voted for Lowell, and Roberts abandoning McBride and going back to Geo. H. Williams.

The house this morning passed Colvig's bill fixing the time for holding probate courts.

Butts' bill for licensing dogs was defeated, as was McAlister's industrial school bill and Brownell's woman's suffrage resolution.

In the senate the forenoon was occupied with routine work and the introduction of bills.

Senator Daley introduced a bill appropriating $8000 for the completion of the laws of Oregon.

Senator Kuykendall introduced a bill requiring the state treasurer to make semi-annual returns to the secretary of state of all warrants that have been paid by him during the preceding six months.

THEY GOT A SQUARE MEAL.

Newspaper Men, for Once, Got Filled Up, But the Liquid Refreshment Was Very Thin.

(Special Correspondent: ec.)

SALEM, Feb. 7, 1901.

One of the most happy events of the season occurred at Hotel Willamette last evening when the Salem Press Club entertained the visiting brethren, who are now in attendance at the legislature representing the press of the state. A splendid banquet was served, and during the evening, under Toast Master E. Hofer, of the Evening Capital Journal, the following toasts were given: "The Salem Press," by R. J. Hendricks, manager of the Salem Statesman; "The Country Press," by J. H. Fletcher, a veteran Oregon newspaper man; "The Bunch Grass Press," by C. L. Ireland, who lives in the country where they use mowing machines with sickles twenty feet long and harrows which cut a width of 120 feet. Clifford J. Owen, of the Evening Telegram, made a few very appropriate remarks on "The Afternoon Press," and was followed by the brilliant editor of the Astorian, J. H. Lighter. E. H. Flagg, of the Daily Sentinel, and Frank Davey, who reclines in the editorial chair of the Statesman, made several very pertinent remarks relative to the great power which the press wields in the making and unmaking of men.

The following committee was in charge of the reception: E. Hofer, F. F. Toeves and H. G. Guild.

The Salem Press Club is to be congratulated upon the success of this, its first annual reception, an idea which tends to bring closer together the members of the press, and will tend to obliterate the spirit of selfishness and jealousy, all too prevalent among those who are engaged in newspaperdom.

The banquet was conducted strictly on temperance principles, coffee being the strongest liquor on tap.

Yesterday morning while one of the denizens of the tenderloin district was in her cups a misunderstanding of some kind arose between her and her "fellow," and as he fled from her den she fired three pistol shots after him. Unfortunately nobody was hurt. No arrests and no prosecution, as usual. It is said the marshal has ordered the woman to leave town.

A big jackrabbit drive on the California plan is projected for March 5th, on Blalock Island, in the Columbia river. This island is about opposite Coyote Station, on the O. R. & N., and excursionists are expected from as far as Portland for the occasion. Blalock Island is six miles long by three miles wide, and is covered with large sagebrush, under which hundreds of jackrabbits hide. The Blalock Company, which owns the island, is placing it under cultivation rapidly, but the pesky rabbits are too numerous for comfort, and so the company has decided to give the public of Oregon and Washington a big day's sport, and at the same time exterminate the rabbits.

Cards are out announcing the wedding of Miss Effa D. Bolton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Bolton, of this city, and Mr. James Winans Harry, a prominent young business man of Seattle, which will take place at the home of the bride's parents Tuesday evening, February 12th. The marriage is the culmination of an acquaintance formed while Miss Bolton was visiting her aunt in Seattle about a year ago.

Chris Dethman, a prosperous orchardist and farmer of the Hood river valley, is in the city, the guest of the Umatilla House. Counting up the income from his five-acre apple orchard the other day after he had sold the last of his 1900 crop of apples, Mr. Dethman found that he had realized the snug little sum of $1350, or an average of $270 an acre. His apples are all of winter varieties, and his closing sale was 1000 boxes at 90 cents a box.

Constable E. S. Olinger and N. A. Iesenberg brought up from Hood River last night a man named John Sullivan, who was supposed to be insane. Sullivan was examined this morning by Dr. Shackelford, but the doctor failed to find any satisfactory evidence that the man was out of his mind. Sullivan claims to be an Englishman, although his patronymic has a most decidedly Celtic flavor. He is a single man and has been working on the railroad in the neighborhood of Hood River.

While A. Keller's boy was delivering bread early yesterday morning to a restaurant on Second street from a little cart, and while the lad was in the restaurant delivering an armful, three hobos stole each a loaf of bread and ran off. The theft was seen by the watchman who nightly guards the lodgings of the smallpox patient. He reported to the marshal and one of the men was arrested, but Mr. Keller was unwilling to prosecute, and the fellow was discharged.

The Walla Walla Union says: "Chas. Jasper, of Spokane, has received a patent on a current motor. The first test of the motor on a large scale is to be made before March 1st on Long Island in the Columbia river. The island is between Walla Walla and The Dalles and is six miles long. D. N. G. Blalock, of Walla Walla, who owns a large fruit ranch on the island, is having a stone wall built along the shore. He intends putting three large Jasper motors in the trench for irrigation and power purposes, the plant costing $25,000 complete. The axle and paddles for the first motor are being constructed in Philadelphia and are to be shipped at once."

At C. R. Bone's camp, on the east side ditch, one day last week, great excitement prevailed for awhile. Mr. Bone's horse, Skip, quite a pet, was following

Mrs. Bone about the camp. She passed a gunny sack lying on the ground near where the men were at work. The horse had a habit of picking up gunny sacks and door mats and shaking them like a playful pup would do. Skip seized the gunny sack, as quick as they saw it, yelled to Mrs. Bone to take the sack away from him. Mrs. Bone attempted to do so, but the horse held on to it. The men left their work and rushed to her assistance, and by the time they got ready to grab the sack the horse dropped it. The sack contained the giant powder and caps.—Hood River Glacier.

The wildest runaway that has happened here for a long time occurred at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. While the team attached to the Stademan ice wagon was standing in front of the commission house something frightened the horses and, turning northward they dashed toward Second street on a full gallop. Intent on going west on Second, the impulse of the wagon forced the horses on the sidewalk alongside the Ruch grocery. Here the high hind wheel of the wagon was dashed against a big telephone pole, smashing the tire into two pieces. Clearing the sidewalk, after knocking down all the awning posts in their way, the horses took to the street, and again the impulse of the wagon was such that it dashed against a number of awning posts and scattered them along the street. Clearing everything in their path without further injury the team was at last halted at the west end of town, when it was found that the animals had not received a scratch and little damage was done to the wagon save in the matter of the broken tire.

Portland Wheat Market.

The eastern wheat markets were fractionally better yesterday, but the improvement was of such small proportions that it had no effect locally. Foreign cables reported a very quiet market for cargoes and local buyers expressed indifference about doing business at anything over 54½ cents for Walla Walla. Very little wheat can be bought at this figure, and until the foreign market improves, or the freight market sags, business will remain at a standstill. No new transactions are reported in freights, but a medium-sized ship, near at hand, is offering at 42-61.

Wheat—Walla Walla, 54½-54½; valley, nominal; bluestem, 56½ cents per bushel.
