WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Valentines galore at The Racket store. The rose is red, the violet blue, sugar's sweet and so are the valentines at Menefee & Parkins'. 11-31

See Menefee & Parkins' window for the handsomest line of valentines ever exhibited in The Dalles. 11-31

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Creighton, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia, is reported today as slowly improving.

Sonle Bros., professional piano tuners, are in the city for a few days only. Leave orders at Nickelsen's and Menefee & Parkins' stores. 12-31

Miss Stella Frizzell, the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. L. Frizzell of this city, is very ill with pneumonia and today her condition was critical.

Capt. Ferrer and Lieut. Viviam, the new officers of the Salvation Army, will have their welcome meeting on Wednesday night. The public is cordially invited.

John Allison, the single smallpox patient of this city, was released from quarantine today and departed, in company with Mrs. Allison, for the Willamette valley.

Leon Roudan, of Kingsley, was in town today on his way to Vancouver to bring home his little son, who is attending the sisters' academy at that place, and who has recently been in poor health.

Valentine sale of hats, at prices cut to the heart, at Miss Haven's. We are closing out to make room for new season's goods. Trimmed hats, street hats, caps, baby bonnets and trimming materials. 112-21

The Chrysanthemum Club gave their third party of the season at the Baldwin last night. Some twenty-four couples participated in the dance, which was kept up until midnight, when Mr. Gifford took a flashlight photograph of the party before the dancers adjourned.

The telephone wires at Waterloo are being laid underground. The other day when the conduit was all ready, a rat was put into one end and a little later a ferret with a string tied to his leg was sent after him. Both arrived at the other end in a remarkably short time and the wires were pulled through by means of the string.—Telephony.

C. L. Phillips, who is a breeder of fine poultry, left at this office today a specimen of the kind of hen fruit his chickens can produce when they only half try. The egg beats anything in its line the hen editor of this paper ever saw. It measures one and three-fourths inches in length and is exactly the shape of an ordinary fair sized peanut, with this difference that it is slightly pinched in the middle and looks as if biddy had started to make two eggs and suddenly changed her mind and quit before she had made the tenth part of one.

At a little after break of day this morning an employe in the California Chop House found one of the rooms over the bar room filled with smoke, and on searching for the cause found that the stove pipe in the room below had set fire to the partition through which it passed before entering the brick flue, and the flame was fast eating its way to the apartment overhead. The fire was extinguished without turning in an alarm, but not until a bucket brigade of half a dozen persons had been kept on the jump for nearly half an hour.

The papers continue to be filled with the doing of Mrs. Nation in Kansas. The situation is just this, says the Albany Democrat. A prohibitory law was passed. The saloon keepers refused to respect it and openly continued their business, evidently being backed by the officers of the law, many of whom were perhaps subsidized. Drunkenness continued. Mrs. Nation and some other women got mad at this lawless way of doing things and went to smashing the furniture of the saloons, taking the law into their own hands. The saloons which did business contrary to law probably got what they deserved, but this does not justify that way of settling an important question. Two wrongs cannot make a right.

Circuit Court.

In the circuit court this morning John Dillon, who is charged with stealing the sum of $15 from the pockets of a man at Mosier, pleaded guilty to simple larceny. He will be sentenced Thursday morning.

Joe Eimer, who is charged with having stolen a quantity of miscellaneous goods from the Commercial Lodging House, Hood River, pleaded guilty. He will receive his sentence Thursday morning.

The court was occupied most of the day procuring a jury in the Reece case against Wasco county. The full complement of jurors was obtained at 3:30 p. m., when an adjournment was taken till tomorrow morning.

CORBETT'S DEFEAT PROBABLE.

Sixteen Democrats Are Expected to Unite With the Republicans to Defeat Corbett.

[Special Correspondence.]

SALEM, Or., Feb. 11, 1901.

The senatorial vote on Saturday cannot be taken to mean that Mr. McBride has entirely dropped out of the race. In a short interview with the senator just after the vote was taken, Mr. McBride said that he had no statement to make except that the change was made with his full consent.

Corbett men are very jubilant over the event, claiming that this is only the beginning of the end, and that the breaking of the opposition will shortly occur. Several absentees would have voted for Mr. Williams had they been present, and it is freely predicted here that Tuesday will see a dark dorse driven into the arena, and that he will have sufficient strength to outrun any and all other candidates. While fifteen or sixteen members, who are voting now for Smith, stand ready to unite on Mitchell or some other man who stands equally well with the people, it seems that Mr. Corbett stands little show, for these men are nearly all instructed by their constituents to vote for the defeat of the ancient gentleman, regarded at the present time as one past his days of usefulness as a public official—one who could not stand the strain of political log-rolling and live his full term.

Corbett is a man of energy. He stands above the average as a business man and his financial deals are successful. Yet to see him as he moves about the capital, one who is a stranger to him would never suppose him to be a political boss. His step is unsteady, his body palsied, his hand trembling, and his make-up generally that of a man in the evening of life. Just when the golden sun is setting in a glow of beauty for him, as far as wealth is concerned, he ruthlessly lifts his hands and tears away the glorious picture, leaving in its place a view of darkness and desolation—a landscape in which the clouds are formed from the foulness and evil emanating from the stirring up of political filthiness surrounding and ever existing near a modern senatorial race. The vote today shows no material change from Saturday, but tomorrow or Wednesday may possibly see an election of Oregon's next senator.

OREGON LEGISLATURE.

McBride's Friends Go Over in Part to Hermann.

[Special to THE CHRONICLE.]

SALEM, Feb. 12, 1901.—The house convened this morning at nine and the senate an hour later.

The house passed the McCracken bill, appropriating $5000 for the use of the Oregon Historical Society.

Several measures relating to the salaries of state and county officers were made the special order for tonight.

Carter withdrew his railway rate bill, having arrived at the conclusion that it would not stand the test of the supreme court.

The house defeated the bill providing for the appointment of a board of railroad commissioners.

The senate passed Proebatel's bill, prohibiting the use of nickel-in-the-slot machines.

Also Inman's bill to keep the polls open until 7 o'clock p. m.

Also Sweek's bill fixing the compensation of justices of the peace in Multnomah county.

Also Hunt's bill providing for the registration of voters between June and November in a presidential year.

The vote for senator was taken without any excitement, notwithstanding that all who had voted for Williams yesterday, save only Roberts, of Wasco, changed to Binger Hermann. Black, who had been voting for Hermann, went over to Corbett where he was believed to belong all the time.

His flop therefore created no surprise. His vote was all the time at Corbett's service the moment Corbett's managers should hint it was wanted. The vote stood as follows: Corbett, 32; Hermann, 29; Smith, 22; Inman, 3; Williams 1; absent and not voting, 3. It is expected that Mitchell will enter the race tomorrow with 45 votes, one less than a majority of all the members. If he can do this, Corbett's name is Dennis.

DR. ADAMS ON CORBETT.

Estimate of Corbett by His Fellow Senators in 1869.—Mitchell Could Beat Him on a Popular Vote by Ten Thousand Majority.

Dr. W. L. Adams, of Hood River, an old pioneer who drove an ox team across the plains in 1848, and who for nine years edited the Argus, the leading republican paper in Oregon, organized the republican party in Oregon, and by his pen and on the stump was much instrumental in making Oregon a free state, dropped in on us a few minutes today. The doctor, who is over 80 years old, still retains his youthful vigor of intellect and astounding memory of events that have transpired for the last fifty-two years in Oregon.

We were anxious to get his opinion on matters and things pertaining to politics of a late date, especially as to the senatorial imbroglio. He seemed quite reluctant to answer our questions as he prefers to avoid the Parthian arrows that he says would be thrown at him by "a band of political republican whelps who are trying to earn the money placed in their pockets by an imbecile they are now trying to send to the U. S. senate."

He had many kind words to say of Corbett as an honorable, fair-dealing business man. "He is a good friend of mine," said the doctor, "but I never saw the day that I would sacrifice the interests of this state to advantage even my own brother. Corbett is, in fact, as incapable as he was considered by senators generally when I was in Washington City in 1869. It was a common thing for senators to ask me, 'Why did your state send that man Corbett to the senate?' I think one strong reason why he was refused a seat when Lord sent him over there was his known incompetency. One man, a stranger to me, who wanted something done by an Oregon senator, told me he could get Corbett to do nothing, and said: 'Why did your state send that stupid ass to Washington?'

"McBride has made a good senator, and the merciless, uncalled-for and villainous assaults that have been made upon him by Corbett's organ in Portland have probably induced McBride to make a longer fight against stupidity backed by money bags than he otherwise would.

"We want a senator to represent Oregon, not a Portland enque.

"Nine-tenths of our people are for John H. Mitchell, democrats and republicans, and if our democratic friends in the legislature would regard the wishes and interests of the state, they would help elect Mitchell and close the fight the next ballot taken. John H. Mitchell, on a popular vote, could beat either Corbett or Williams by more than ten
