MR. MITCHELL WAS ELECTED

Twenty-Fifth Ballot Gave Him the Senatorship—Salem Correspondent of the Oregonian Thus Describes the Scenes Connected With the Final Ballot at the State Capitol Saturday Night.

The hands of the clock had already pointed to midnight and the clerks were engaged in checking up the roll call. There was great excitement and loud calls of the name of Mitchell from the lobby. The first deserter from the Corbett ranks was Hemenway, of Lane. On the previous roll call Mitchell had had 34 votes and Corbett 36. When his name was reached, Hemenway, in the last roll call, without explanation, responded "John H. Mitchell." The call proceeded to the end, and Mitchell and Corbett were then exactly tied, having 35 votes each. Then McQueen, of Lane, arose and with a brief speech changed to Mitchell, putting him in the lead. He was followed by Roberts, of Wasco, who made a short address, saying he had come here with a clean conscience, but he thought it his duty to elect a senator, and he changed to Mitchell. Colvig followed him from the Hermann ranks, then came Senator Marsters, of Douglas, then Thompson, of Umatilla, Senators Dimmick, Proebstel, Hume and Hedges. Then there was a pause and mighty suspense. Finally Representative Butt got upon a chair and tried to address the president. The noise and uproar from the lobby were so great that he could not be heard. He inquired if Mitchell at that time had a majority of the republican votes. There were loud answers of "Yes," and noisy counter-cries of "No" from the Corbett ranks. Butt hesitated for a moment and then responded: "Well, it makes no difference. I change to John H. Mitchell." Mitchell now had 45 votes, within one of the goal. There was a long wait, and Senator Adams mounted the chair. The crowd believed that he was going to vote for Mitchell, and bedlam fairly broke loose, but Adams did not. He merely demanded that the chair enforce order and clear the aisles. The chair undertook to do it, but did not succeed. Representative Carter about this time arose to his feet and tried to say something. It was not distinctly heard, but he seemed to be calling upon the Corbett men to stand pat. Miller also tried to withstand the storm by saying he intended to stand by Corbett, and it looked for a few minutes as if the ex-senator after all would fail. The name of "Mattoon" repeated with great vehemence, came from many parts of the hall, and a crowd of the Douglas county man's friends got around him and talked to him excitedly. He seemed to be successfully withstanding them, and soon there rose cries of "Deadlock," "Adjourn," "Adjourn."

MATTOON THE FORTY-SIXTH.
The Corbett men jumped to their feet and demanded that the president announce the vote, and Mr. Fulton seemed to be preparing to do it. A wave of disappointment overspread the faces of the anxious Mitchell crowd. About this time the Multnomah delegation got around Representative Schumann, who had on the 21st ballot changed from Bennett to Mr. Corbett, and demanded that he prevent a deadlock. While the push was wrestling with the obstinate German-American from Multnomah, Mattoon finally yielded to the importunities of his friends and arose and changed his vote to Mitchell. This was all that was needed, and the crowd knew it. Pandemonium reigned for many seconds, and the chair made little effort to check it. The clerks then completed the roll and passed it up to Mr. Fulton, who announced that Mr. Corbett had "received 29 votes, Mr. Mitchell 46, and Mr. Bennett 16." The crowd went wild again, and fraternized wildly with members, embracing them, shaking them by the hands and fairly jumping up and down in their joy.

Some men have money to throw to the birds; others have money to give to the janitors.—Salem Sentinel.

That $1500 should be followed to the bottom of the owner's pocket. Let nothing be kept from the public.—Albany Democrat.

A country newspaper man is swindled out of fifteen crisp $100 gold notes and L. H. McMahan furnishes $500 cash bail, in greenbacks. Ha! Ha!—Salem Sentinel.

It is very suggestive that the Oregonian and Salem papers have almost nothing to say of the arrest of John Gates at this city with $1300 on his person, money belonging to some one else, according to the charge made. A very mysterious affair. Albany Democrat.

It is said that in the affidavit for the securing of the warrant for the arrest of John Gates for the larceny of $1500 the editor swore the money was his. This is being looked upon as a very good joke. The first telephone message to Albany referred to J. M. Poorman, a member of the legislature and a banker from Woodburn as the prosecutor who had lost the money. The matter is getting interesting.—Albany Democrat.

On all sides the Corbett 'men are being laughed at for the egregious blunder in arresting Gates, the janitor who would not be separated from the $1500 intended to pay for another vote for the old man, and among the lawyers especially the threat of the prosecuting attorney to move for a dismissal in the event of the defendant not being ready to proceed with the case this morning at 10 o'clock is a huge joke. Gates not alone has his liberty, but he has the money as well, because those connected with the prosecution would not dare to establish their title to it lest in so doing there would be proof offered as to the use for which it was intended. Of course, it is known to whom the money was to have been handed by the janitor, and it is not unlikely that before the day is over there will be a sensational expose of Corbett methods. The fact that the Oregonian would not publish the story is generally commented upon, but, of course, failure to do so is pretty well understood.—Astoria News.

A Fireman's Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa. "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and, after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by G. C. Blakeley, the druggist. Price 50 cents. 2

How to Cure Croup.

Mr. R. Gray, who lives near Amenia, Dutchess county, N. Y., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best medicine I have ever used. It is a fine children's remedy for croup and never fails to cure." When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough has developed, it will prevent the attack. This should be borne in mind and a bottle of the Cough Remedy kept at hand ready for instant use as soon as these symptoms appear. For sale by Blakeley, the druggist.
