WHAT THE PRESS SAYS.

Partisanship ought to be subordinated to patriotism, and the democrats who voted for John H. Mitchell for United States senator deserve to be complimented upon their appreciation of that fact. The interests of the state demanded that it should be fully represented in congress. When it became unmistakably evident that no one but ex Senator Mitchell could be elected, the man of whatever party who refused to cast his ballot for him was recreant to his trust and deserves the condemnation of his constituents. Whatever their personal or partisan prejudices may have been, there was nothing which could have been said against the popular candidate and there is little reason to expect that any man who cast his vote for him will have cause to regret that unselfish step .- Astorian.

As was predicted in the Plaindealer's extra published Saturday at noon, Hon. John H. Mitchell carried off the senatorial plum at Salem at the twelfth hour Saturday night, and by this selection this legislature has somewhat redeemed its unenviable record and is to be congratulated upon making such a wise and generally satisfactory selection of a United States senator. Mr. Mitchell's long and able service in the interest of his state, renders an introduction through our columns altogether unnecessary. Suffice us to say, however, no man on Oregon's fair roll of bonor stands higher in the estimation of the people generally and is better equipped and qualified to serve the interest of our growing state in the United States senate than John H. Mitchell. His former
