SCENE IN COMMONS

Irish Members Dragged Out by the Police Yesterday—They Had Refused to Obey the Speaker.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Dispatch to the World from London says: There was a scene of unexampled violence and disorder in the British House of Commons Tuesday night when ten Irish members who had refused to obey the speaker's order to leave the house, were dragged out by the police. It was the first time in history that a policeman had been seen on the floor of the house.

The vote on account of the civil service for $17,000,000, $85,000,000 had been closed after a single night's discussion devoted wholly to English education. No Irish member had spoken, although several Irish departments were included in the vote. There had been an understanding that if the evening were given to English education, other questions would be discussed at a subsequent sitting. When Mr. Arthur Balfour moved the closure, the Irish members protested loudly. But the chairman of the committee—Mr. Lowther, a cousin of Mr. Balfour—never refuses him closure.

John Redmond, Mr. Dillon and other hands of the Irish party, had left the house, understanding that no further business would be done, and some of the younger, less experienced Irishmen became desperately excited over Mr. Balfour's attempt to overreach them. There was no time for deliberate counsel and it was decided that they should refuse to go into the division lobby when called upon by the chair to do so.

Speaker Gully was called in, and the names of ten Irishmen who disobeyed the chairman's order were taken down, and they were named for suspension.

A terrific tumult arose. Mr. Balfour looked appalled at the result of his action, but nothing could stem the torrent of his passion on the Irish benches. At a signal from the sergeant, the door of the house was opened and about 20 policemen appeared. It was a spectacle that struck with horror all who witnessed it. The temper of the Irishmen became more dangerous than ever. The speaker appealed to them to obey the orders of the house. They shouted back defiance. The ministers and their supporters looked on shamefaced at the unexampled scene being enacted, worse than any that had ever taken place in the Austrian Reichsrath.

Sheepman Wanted No Mother-in-Law.
NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., March 6.—The first sensational divorce case appealed to the supreme court of Washington will be carried up from the superior court of Yakima. The plaintiff is Edith E. McAllister, a handsome young lady of probably 20 summers. She was the wife of Charles McAllister, a wealthy sheepman, for about three months in the year 1900. He refused the mother-in-law permission to enter his home, and her daughter soon tired of the loneliness of family jere without mother, and left him. She brought suit for divorce and alimony, alleging her husband had property valued at $30,000. The lower court refused the decree and an appeal has been taken.

The papers in this remarkable case require eighty closely typewritten pages of legal cap, and contain some interesting and amusing recitals of alleged facts. The woman sets out they were married in June, 1900, and began housekeeping. Her husband, she says, forbade her associating with former friends and relatives, and particularly demanded that her mother be kept out of the house. He developed a very stingy and economical disposition, and refused her spending money. The only amount he permitted her to handle during the time she occupied his house was $50, a portion of that being her wedding present.

McAllister is known as a rich sheepman. In his defense he swears that he is insolvent. He thinks the family has persuaded the girl to leave him for money. She says he often abused her, and when she complained of being sick he remarked that she should hire an Indian squaw to carry her around. He thought she might get in a glass cage and have candy thrown at her pretty face, as she was too dainty for any other purpose. He tantalized her with her former poverty, while he was wealthy, and thought she had made a mistake in marrying a husky Scotchman when she was such a weakling as to want a hired girl to wash the family linen.

To Cause Night Alarm.
"One night my brother's baby was taken with croup," writes Mrs. J. C. Snider, of Crittenden, Ky., "it seemed it would strangle before we could get a doctor, so we gave it Dr. King's New Discovery, which gave quick relief and permanently cured it. We always keep it in the house to protect our children from croup and Whooping Cough. It cured me of a chronic bronchial trouble that no other remedy would relieve." Infalible for Coughs, Colds, Throat and Lung troubles. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at G. C. Blakeley's drug store. 3

Would Boil Foreigners.
VICTORIA, B. C., March 6.—According to advices received by the steamer Empress of India, documents found by a foreigner in Peking show that orders were issued by the Chinese that as many foreigners as possible were to be taken alive, and according to the same orders the fate planned for them was that their captors should carry them to the Temple of Heaven and there put them through the process of being boiled.

The news of the finding of these documents was given by the Peking correspondent of Hong Kong Press. The same correspondent says that the documents show that instructions were sent to the Viceroy at Nan King, Liu King Yu to attack and massacre the residents of Shanghai.

How to Cure Croup.
Mr. R. Gray, who lives near Amenias, Dutchess county, N. Y., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best medicine I have ever used. It is a fine children's remedy for croup and never fails to cure." When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough has developed, it will prevent the attack. This should be borne in mind and a bottle of the Cough Remedy kept at hand ready for instant use as soon as these symptoms appear. For sale by Blakeley, the druggist.

Murderer Pursued on Three Continents.
NEW YORK, March 6.—Lois Darrell, formerly first sergeant in Troop G, Seventh U. S. Cavalry, is expected to reach New York today from Naples, a prisoner in charge of Lieutenant W. O. Dupuy, U. S. A. Darrell is charged with murdering and robbing a fellow soldier and tent mate in Cuba. More than a year ago Lieutenant Dupuy was ordered to find the murderer. Disguised as a sailor the lieutenant followed Darrell from Cuba through British West Indies, from there to Lourenco Marques, from there through South Africa and finally to Naples. When Darrell saw Dupuy in Naples the fugitive gave in and said he was glad it was over. They sailed on the Hohenzollern, which is expected here soon.

The murder was a peculiar one, and Darrell's side has not been told. He and Henry Crouch entered the army about the same time, and both were assigned to the cavalry branch of the service. Owing to the intimacy that sprang up between them both asked to be detailed in the same troop, and the wish was granted. In the Spanish war the regiment was sent to Cuba, and the men became tent mates. Darrell was a good soldier and won a corporal's stripes and later, for heroism, was made sergeant. Then, for bravery in battle, he was made first sergeant of his troop. He and Crouch remained the best of friends, but one night the body of Crouch was found in the company's street. He had been murdered and witnesses swore that the heroic first sergeant was the murderer, and that he afterwards had robbed the body. Darrell fled and then began the long chase. He will be taken to Cuba for trial.

Duke of Manchester Is the Defendant—Portia Knight is Plaintiff—On Arrival in Liverpool, With His Bride, the British Peer is Served With Papers in a Breach of Promise Case.

LIVERPOOL, March 6.—On his arrival here today, on the White Star line steamer Oceanic, from New York, the Duke of Manchester, who with his bride, was a passenger on board, was served with a writ for an alleged breach of promise at the instance of Portia Knight, of London.

Miss Knight is an American, 23 or 24 years of age. She was on the stage in New York, for a short time, and has been living privately in London for a year. She referred a representative of the Associated Press to her lawyers. The writ has been out for some time, she said, and she did not know whether it would be served in America or England. Miss Knight was glad to hear that it has been served in Liverpool.

"I regret that this affair has become public," she said. "I thought it would be done in camera. I do hope it will not be taken up by the American papers. I have brought the suit not because I desired publicity, but because I felt in duty bound to all my friends here in England. For their sakes as well as my own, I have every wish that the proceedings should be as quiet as possible. I only met the Duke of Manchester since I came to England a year ago. But really, I must refer you to my solicitors."

When Miss Knight's solicitors were called upon they declined to give any details or to do more than to confirm the report that Miss Knight had commenced the action.
