

WOOLGROWERS ADJOURN

Helena, Mont., Selected as the Next Place of Meeting—Officers Elected.

PENDLETON, March 8.—Yesterday was the third and last day of the Pacific Northwest Woolgrowers' convention. Helena, Mont., was selected as the next place of meeting, the date to be February, instead of March, as heretofore. T. C. Powers, ex-United States senator from Montana, was elected president. Both Helena and Mr. Powers received unanimous votes. J. W. Bailey was re-elected secretary. Mr. Bailey was also chosen treasurer, and for the two offices a salary of $500 a year was voted. The basis of representation was changed from one delegate for each 50,000 sheep in a county to one for each 5000. This change was made in accordance with the recommendation of the committee on revision of the constitution and by-laws, who were Secretary Bailey, of Portland; J. N. Williamson, of Prineville, Or.; F. M. Malone, of Helena, Mont.; Robert Aiken, of Caldwell, Idaho, and S. B. Calderhead, of Walla Walla.

J. N. Williamson read the report of the committee on resolutions, which was adopted unanimously. It was in the main a strong paper on the subject of the damage inflicted upon woolgrowers by manufacturers who sell shoddy goods as woollens, and the substitution of cotton for wool. The convention goes on record demanding congressional action compelling manufacturers to stamp plainly all goods made partly of shoddy or cotton, with a view of preventing what sheepmen assert is ruining their business and deceiving the public.

Is This Correct?

ASTORIA, March 8.—Philip McDonough, of Brookfield, a well-known fisherman, states an alleged new fact regarding the propagation of salmon. He says he has learned that chinook salmon deposit their spawn along the seashore, between the mouth of the Columbia river and Willapa harbor, and that many fish are hatched in this manner. Heretofore it has generally been conceded by students of the habits of the salmon that the fish spawned only at the natural spawning waters in the Columbia and its tributaries. Mr. McDonough expresses the opinion that the salmon which spawn along the seashore are frightened from the river by fishing gear, and, fearful of entering the river, are overtaken by nature and compelled to deposit their spawn at the edge of the ocean. The spawn is covered up with sand and soft mud. Fish thus hatched do not enter the river to spawn, Mr. McDonough believes, but return to the same spawning place.

Kitchener Grants an Armistice to Both. LOURENCO MARQUES, March 8.—General Kitchener has granted General Botha a seven days' armistice to enable him to confer with other generals.

LONDON, March 8.—A special dispatch from Pretoria dated today (Friday), says General Kitchener and General Botha had a lengthy conference on Gun Hill this morning. General Botha was alone, and General Kitchener was accompanied by his secretary.

LONDON, March 8.—A dispatch from Pretoria, dated Tuesday, March 5th, evidently held up by the censor, has just reached here. It says General Kitchener met General Botha and other Boer leaders at Middleburg, February 27th, when the question of the possibility of the termination of hostilities was discussed.

Another dispatch from Pretoria, dated Wednesday, March 6th, says the meeting between General Kitchener and General Botha has awakened deep interest, and that there are favorable expectations as to the probable outcome. According to the Sun, the surrender of General Botha would have been an accomplished fact before now, had General Kitchener been in a position to conclude the terms to surrender. When the surrender occurs, the Sun adds, it will include the surrender or entire suppression of General Dewet, and will involve the termination of the war.

USE OF FORCE HUMILIATING

Scenes in House of Commons Discussed—Campbell-Bannerman and John Redmond State Their Views.

NEW YORK, March 8.—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, liberal leader in the house of commons, and John Redmond, the leader of the Irish party, discussed the recent scenes in the house in special cabled dispatches to the Journal and Advertiser.

The liberal leader said: "Many circumstances of our life and condition of society rest upon physical force, which is a rather humiliating fact. The rules of the house of commons, which usually work so quietly, equally rest for ultimate authority on force. It seems to me that the display of force the other night was repulsive to the feeling of everyone of us, and certain not to add to the dignity and credit of the house.

"The introduction into the house of a body of police struck a heavy blow at our dignity. Legal, not physical force, should be employed in future, and members would then obey without a murmur. Their ideas of their independence would then be vindicated. By suspending members for the whole session, the government practically disfranchises their constituencies."

Mr. Redmond says: "The enactment of a penal provision such as suspending members in what professes to be a free assembly, is a hateful, degrading proceeding. In consequence of the hurried application of closure on Tuesday night there was a natural ebullition of feeling on the part of Irishmen. I give my unqualified and absolute denial that it was premeditated. "The whole moral responsibility for what occurred rests on Balfour. No government ever gained by parliamentary sharp practice. Such attempts recoil on those who use them. Year by year parliament has been lowered and degraded. "Uniformity in robbing Ireland of her parliament having compelled us to come across the water to an England parliament, it is some consolation to Irishmen that the price to be paid is so high and bitter a one."
