Comment of the British.

New York, March 13.—Speaking of the attitude of the English press on the treaty situation, a dispatch to the Tribune from London says:

"There is no note of triumph in the articles which have appeared since the rejection of the senate amendments to the canal treaty. The language is moderate and there is a general disposition to drop the subject as quickly as possible, without giving offense to the Americans. Those who have seen the text of the memorandum say that the rejection is made in terms of courtesy and dignity, and are confident that the lucidity and fairness with which the British objections are urged will make a good impression in America."

"The text of the reply had not been seen at the American embassy yesterday, but the substance and line of argument was known and no secret was made of the satisfaction felt over the fact that the treaty had not been allowed to lapse in silence without a word from the foreign office. A courteous note with a clear statement of reasons is clearly better than silence would have been with automatic closure of the subject through expiration of the time limit. The subject is left in a form which will enable the state department to take it up anew at its own discretion. Meanwhile the English press is acting on the principle that the less said, the sooner it is mended."

Brazil's Monarchical Plot.

New York, March 13.—A dispatch to the Herald from Rio Janeiro says: President Salles has sent a telegram to the Governor of San Paulo, saying there is no cause for anxiety in the call for the vessels stationed at Puerto Alegre. He declares it has nothing to do with the supposed monarchical plot. The public are anxious, however, over the reports. Officials decline to talk freely of the reasons for the extraordinary military precautions that are being taken. It is asserted on high authority that the first intimation of trouble was given by Rear-Admiral Wandekolp, chief of the general staff of the navy. Admiral Wandekolp is said to have visited President Salles and informed him that some secret plan was being made among the officers of the navy.

Burned at Stake in Texas.

CORSICANA, Texas, March 13.—John Henderson, a negro, this morning confessed fully to the murder of Mrs. Younger. About noon a mob built a pyre and burned him. Henderson was taken from the officers before daybreak at Itasca, while they were trying to take him to Fort Worth to save him from violence.

The mob was well organized and under perfect control of leaders, who made no secret of the fate awaiting the negro, but announced he would be burned at the stake in a public square at Corsicana about noon. The torch was applied, a howling crowd of people surrounded the victim, reveling in the agonies of his death.

Henderson's crime was most atrocious. Mrs. Younger's body was found near her home and was almost unrecognizable from cuts and bruises. She had fought bravely for her life and honor, but without success. Every room in the house was bespattered with blood. Within an hour after the crime poses were after the fiend and he was captured only after most vigorous efforts.

DEATH OF EX-PRES. HARRISON

End Came Painlessly While the General was Surrounded by Members of His Family.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 13.—General Benjamin Harrison died at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon without regaining consciousness. His death was quiet and painless, there being a general sinking until the end came, which was marked by a single gasp for breath as life departed from the body of the statesman. The relatives, with a few exceptions, and several of the ex-President's old and tried friends were at the bedside when he passed away.

The General's condition was so bad this morning, after a restless night, that the attending physicians understood that the end could not be far off, and all the bulletins sent out from the sick room were to this effect, so that all the family and friends were prepared when the final blow came. The gradual failing of the remarkable strength shown by the patient became more noticeable in the afternoon, and a few minutes before the end there was an apparent break-down on the part of the sufferer, as he surrendered to the disease against which he had been bravely battling for so many hours. The change was noticed by the physicians, and the relatives and friends who had retired from the sick room to the library below were quickly summoned, and reached the bedside of the General before he passed away.

News of the death spread rapidly. Word was flashed from bulletin boards of the newspapers, and was thus communicated to the people on their way home. The announcement produced the greatest sorrow, nearly every one having nurtured the hope that General Harrison would recover. In a few moments the flags on all the public buildings and most of the downtown business blocks were hoisted at half-mast, and other outward manifestations of mourning were made.

None of General Harrison's children were present at his death. Neither Russell Harrison nor Mrs. McKee had reached the city, although both were hurrying on their way to the bedside of their dying father as fast as steam would bear them. Elizabeth, the little daughter, had been taken from the sick room by her nurse before the end came.

To Succeed Evans.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Senator Depew and Representative Southwick, of New York, today presented to the president the name of General John Palmer, of Albany, N. Y., as a candidate for pension commissioner to succeed H. Clay Evans. General Palmer was commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. in 1891 and was twice secretary of state of New York.

In presenting General Palmer as a candidate it was upon the supposition that there is to be a change in the head of the pension office. The president, however, it is understood, gave no direct intimation of his purpose of appointing a successor to Colonel Evans.

Senator Depew said that the matter of Colonel Sanger's appointment as assistant secretary of war was not mentioned in his interview with the president.

Senators Foster and Turner and Representatives Cushman and Jones, of Washington, called upon the president today and urged him to visit their state upon the occasion of his trip to the Pacific Coast. They desire him to visit Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane. The president informed him that his itinerary had not been made up, but that it was his present intention to go north from San Francisco, and that he hoped to pass through Washington on his way home.
