

Rich Laces and Embroideries.

Hand in hand go Laces and Embroideries with Wash Goods. Vast preparations in the latter naturally call for corresponding stock of the former. We have never had such an extensive and desirable stock. All-overs, Bands and Edges, embroidered with infinite care, Galoons and Insertions that set women's hearts in a flutter of delight; every piece is good to look at; every pattern changes to some new surprise.

Val. Laces

In hundreds of patterns, from the cheap to the fine English and round-thread Italian Vals.—

1c to 25c per yard.

Cream Laces, Black Laces,

Arabian and Russian Applique.

Embroideries

In Cambrics, Nainsooks and Swies All-overs, in stripe, open work and blind effects. Charming designs in matched sets, from 2c per yard to $6.

New and Dainty Wash Fabrics.

While wearing-time has not yet arrived, still Wash Goods are selling every day. Ladies in furs and winter garments buying the thinnest of summer dresses seems strange, but therein they show their shopping wisdom of "coming early." So many and varied are the patterns that they would really become tiresome, were it not for their entrancing beauty.

We are the only store that sells a high grade girdle at $1. The F. C. There are none better, and few as good. The Fair. 14-2t

Cards are out for a "Hearts" party in honor of Mrs. Roger Sinnott, at the home of Mrs. William Moody, Friday afternoon.

Ladies anticipating buying gloves for Easter will do well to wait for the glove sale at Pease & Mays'. The newest creations will arrive in time for Easter.

Regular mid-week prayer meeting at the Congregational church this evening. Topic, "The Progress and Development of Christian Character." Members are earnestly requested to attend.

Seven bills in the Washington legislature, appropriating money for state roads, the total amount of which aggregated about $200,000, were snuffed out in the senate Monday afternoon.

United States Senator John H. Mitchell, of Oregon, and his family, accompanied by former senator, George W. McBride, also of Oregon, arrived at the Fifth Avenue hotel in New York Monday night and will remain there several days.

The local Woodmen of the World have chartered the steamer Reliance for a trip to Lyle Saturday night for the purpose of organizing a new camp at that place. All local and visiting neighbors are cordially invited to make the trip at the expense of the local camp.

Fruit trees ornamental trees, shrubs, roses, herbs, etc., for spring planting. W. E. Payne, representing the Oregon Nursery Co., Salem, will be at the Columbia hotel the remainder of the week and will be glad to see any one wanting anything in this line. 13-16

Ike Moore, who is under arrest for stealing a quantity of brass from the O. R. & N. Co., was brought before Recorder Gates this afternoon; but as Moore's lawyer had not yet returned to the city, the examination was postponed till 7 o'clock p. m.

The members of The Dalles Assembly of United Artisans met in social session last night and report having had a delightful time. The ladies furnished a bounteous lunch and the evening was spent in music, song and speeches by resident and visiting brethren.

The ladies tailor dress cutter, the latest thing out, now on exhibition at Gumbert's, the leading cigar and tobacco house. Call and see them. Explanation will be given by an experienced agent at our store for a short time only. Tickets on piano will be given to all purchasers. m13-14

Monday afternoon at Baker City Leonard Kessler, a blacksmith well thought of in the community, married Stella Mead, a courtesan. At 11 o'clock that night Kessler sent a bullet from a 44-caliber revolver through his brain because the woman refused to go with him to another town to live.

At the Astoria school election last Monday Senator C. W. Fulton was elected to succeed himself as director. Less than three dozen votes were cast, but this apparent apathy is viewed by the Astorian as a silent tribute to Mr. Fulton, as though a change in the directorship was not to be thought of.

A dispatch from Dawson, dated March 1st, says that the stamped consequent upon the throwing open of the government claims on February 25th was the greatest since the palmy days of 1898. The order made available hundreds of lapsed claims, unsold ones, fractions, etc. Under the new regulations the first man to arrive and make his application for the ground gets it until fraud has been shown.

T. J. Hannah, of Seio, recently arrived here on a visit to his daughter, Mrs. D. H. Curl. Mr. Hannah has about made up his mind to locate here. He was taken around town yesterday by Hudson & Brownhill to look at several pieces of property with the view of buying himself a home. Mr. Hannah is a gentleman of means and his coming here is largely for the benefit of his health.

Unusual interest is taken by the members and friends of the Methodist church in the revival meetings now in progress. A good congregation was present last night. The sermon was pronounced as ably delivered, and the singing, led by Rev. E. Charles Parker, is much enjoyed. The meetings will probably be continued only till the first of next week. Plan to be at the meeting this evening.

Hudson & Brownhill have just sold to W. C. Latham, of Dufur, the Peter Kinney place in the Military addition on Mill creek, containing six lots, with residence and out buildings. The price is $500, which is considered little more than half what the place is really worth. But Mr. Kinney wished to get rid of the place and make his permanent home on his ranch at Wamic. Mr. Latham will move his family to their new home tomorrow.

Frank Winters came up here last night from one of the railroad camps near Mosier and reported to the sheriff that he had been held up on the way, while occupying a box car, by two masked strangers, and at the muzzle of a revolver had been obliged to give up all the money in his possession, amounting to some $35. Deputy Sheriff Woodson located a couple of men in the East End that answered to the description of the bandits, and as he had no warrant of arrest he started to find Winters so that the men might be identified, but all efforts to find him had failed up till 3 o'clock this afternoon. Whether Winters has been drawing on his imagination or not nobody knows but himself and his assailants.

Last night the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Seth Morgan, of Three Mile, to the number of between thirty and forty persons, broke into the residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Brooks, where Mr. and Mrs. Morgan had been invited to spend the evening, and gave them a rousing, old-fashioned surprise party, with refreshments and mirth and song and story in profusion. The party was given in view of the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Morgan expect next week to leave Three Mile, where they have resided for twenty years, and make their home in Olympia. So deep was the impression made on the mind and heart of Mr. Morgan by the kindly words and the neighborly regrets expressed, that this deponent, after talking the matter over with Mr. Morgan, is prepared to make the prediction that it won't be many months before he and Mrs. Morgan will be back on Three Mile, glad to take up quarters on any kind of an old ranch that they can buy for love or money. Olympia is too dull a place for Seth Morgan. See if it isn't.

Fifty Years Ago.

Fifty years ago yesterday, that is to say, March 13, 1851, Mrs. E. M. Wilson, of this city, then Miss Elizabeth Millar, set sail from New York City bound for the Oregon territory by way of the Isthmus. She was one of five lady teachers who came here in response to an appeal that was sent East by certain citizens of the territory, among whom are recalled the names of Governor George Abernethy, Jesse Quinn Thornton and James Robb. The appeal was responded to by the National Board of Popular Education, a board organized to supply the need of teachers in the rapidly filling up of new states in what was then the far West, but is now only the Mississippi valley. In due time the operations of the board extended to the Pacific coast and the appointment of the five lady teachers was the result. The names of these were, Elizabeth M. Millar, afterwards the wife of Judge Joseph Wilson; Miss Lincoln, afterwards the wife of Judge Alonzo A. Skinner; Miss Waude, afterwards the wife of Governor Gaines; Miss Smith, afterwards Mrs. Alanson Beers and subsequently Kline; and Miss Gray, afterwards Mrs. McLench. The ladies were escorted thither by Samuel R. Thurston, the then delegate in congress from this territory. On board, and also bound for Oregon, were John B. Preston, who came under appointment as surveyor-general for the territory, his wife and her sister, Miss Hyde, afterwards the wife of Sir Joseph Trutch, at one time governor of Victoria; Judge Nelson, a federal appointee; his brother-in-law, Allan Seymour, and a number of young men from Massachusetts, among whom were Stephen F. Chadwick, afterwards secretary of state for Oregon and acting governor; and our fellow-townsmen, Zenus F. Moody, afterward elected governor of the state. All the voyagers reached their destination safely and in due time, except Mr. Thurston, who died while crossing the Isthmus. The above facts are gathered from a very interesting article written by Mrs. E. M. Wilson, but unhappily too long for use here, which appears in the December supplement to the Quarterly of the Oregon Historical Society.

A Nineteenth Century Marvel.

Foremost among the developments of the century just closed stands the inception, the growth and the amazing accomplishment of the Salvation Army, which, beginning as a local effort in the slums of London's East End, has grown and thriven and prospered until today only the ends of the earth delimit it.

So true is this that with the recurrence each year of the army's self-denial week, which is once more approaching, the whole Christian world is moved, recognizing in the Salvation Army the world's great natural almoner to the poor.

Every year without fail the army—which during every other week gives its strength, its sinew, its blood as a matter of course—sets aside one week as a time of the most special, urgent and prayerful effort on behalf of the unclaimed. This year the dates are from March 17th to March 24th, during which period, all over the United States, not only the actual members of the Salvation Army, but in so far as it is possible, their friends and sympathizers and cordial upholders will exert every effort so far to deny themselves of every conceivable thing without which life may be maintained, that thereby they may gain and set aside funds for the prosecution of the work among the abandoned and lost.

A rich Salvationist is truly an anomaly; a poor one is a commonplace, yet during this week of self-denial and prayer none is found so poor but by some effort of renunciation he or she offers a sacrifice to the cause.

Always the Salvation Army must appeal to the public for assistance, but at no time does it appeal quite as it does during its Self-Denial week. In general it appeals to the public as a body, warm-hearted and generous, but at this particular juncture it appeals especially to the followers of Christ, asking of them for His sake, that as a recognition of His abounding grace and love towards them as followers of His word, they take up the cross of self-denial, of self-sacrifice and willing renunciation for the sake of the poor, the abandoned and hopeless, who without help are lost indeed.
