

HOW THE CENTURY OPENS.

In foreign trade the United States during the first month of the year made a notable record. It was the banner January in the whole record. The total exports were $136,000,000, an amount never equaled except by three months in 1900 and one in 1898.

Commenting on these figures the Globe-Democrat says:

"A general survey of the industrial and financial field gives assurance of a prosperous year and a favorable business outlook in the United States. It is a suitable time to refer to the connection between good politics and good times. No one doubted that republican success in the national election last year would improve business, but no one foresaw how emphatic and far-reaching the betterment would be.

Atmospheric and other conditions are just about right for the Golden-dale people to have another periodical attack of railroad fever. It is more than a year since the Sentinel quit mailing its weekly issue in wrappers made of railroad bonds, and now there's a legal row over some old logging road on the Sound that away back in prehistoric times started straight in a direction that, if it ever should take a fresh start, and keep going long enough, would just strike Golden-dale miphips.

The Crook County Journal accuses its democratic contemporary of getting so rabidly anti-imperialistic that it openly denounces the placing of certain Crook county bridges on "peers."

The Wheat Trade.

The local market is very inactive. Holders, as a rule, are very stiff and to a certain extent indifferent to the course of other markets; that is, weaker eastern and foreign advices have no apparent effect upon them; they still cling to the belief that somebody must eventually take their stock at their own price. Present bids are below their limits, and unless they obtain a marked advance they are evidently prepared to hold over. There is a very limited inquiry for wheat outside of milling requirements, exporters have large stocks on hand and are not inclined to purchase more at the present time, especially on the basis of sellers' ideas.

unusually flattering. Late advices from both sections are uniformly favorable. Everywhere the ground is in fine condition for spring work, and it is generally conceded that the acreage sown to wheat will show a large increase. Especially is this true of certain sections of the Inland Empire. Fall-sown grain is looking splendid, and all present indications point to the coming harvest being a banner one.—Portland Commercial Review.
