THAT Y. M. C. A. MOVEMENT.

spend an evening in innocent pleas. the hill to the poorhouse. ure or in occupations that would promote his mental and physical well-being. It is no wonder that a large number of the young men of the city spend their evenings in the saloons, and thus acquire habits that are ruinous to their future wellfare. The saloons are the only places of public resort that are always open. instead of pleading guilty, should put and young people will have enjoyment even if they have to seek it amid surroundings that are ruinous to body and soul. During my college course I have had abundant opportunity to see the good results that flow from the opportunities for innocent enjoyment and mental and physical, not to say spiritual, profit, furuished by well-conducted organizations of the Y. M. C. A., and it is with profound sorrow that I contemplate spending the remainder of my young manhood in a town that furnishes no better pleasure resort for its young men than the saloon."

These words are worthy the earnest attention of every welldisposed person in The Dalles. And yet THE CHRONICLE believes that it anything is attempted along the lines suggested the young men must take the initiative. The trouble with the last effort, as THE CHRONICLE believed then and believes now, was that too much was attempted and therefore nothing was accomplished.

If the young men of this town want such a place of resort as is suggested, let them get together and start it on a scale within their reach, and there is no reason in the world why it should not grow and prosper. If they wait, however, till somebody presents them with a four or five thousand dollar outfit they are liable Whitfield & Co., 240 Wabash avenue, to wait a long time. If they need Chicago, one of the most prominent rehelp, as they will, they will get it, eall druggists in that city, in speaking of but only after they have shown themselves worthy of it.
