

Spring Opening

OF

High-Class Novelties and Wash Fabrics

On Tuesday, March 19th

We will have on exhibition one of the finest collections of novelties for Spring and Summer wear ever got together. As every wearer of educated taste quickly discards all that is passe and common-place, the progressive merchant strives to secure only that which is original, exclusive and of the latest mode. The ability to command the selection of whatever is distinctively meritorious, justified us in assuming the exclusive ownership of all the novelties in our offering for the approaching season, a manifest advantage to our customers, which they fully appreciate.

County Treasurer.

WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Hon. D. P. Thompson, of Portland, will soon leave on a trip around the world, starting eastward.

Rev. Mr. Breck, of St. Matthews, Portland, will preach at St. Paul's Episcopal church, this city, tomorrow evening at 7:30.

The O. R. & N. Co. announces its determination to furnish Bull Run water at very reasonable rates to the people at Long Beach the coming summer.

The new Oregon school law provides that "no contract shall be made with any teacher who is related by blood or marriage within the third degree to any member of the school board without the concurrence of all the members of the board, by a vote duly entered on the clerk's records of proceedings."

Conroy, Son & Co., who lately came here from the Yaquina Bay country, have purchased the balance of the stock in trade of E. J. Collins & Co., in the East End, and will in a few days open up with a complete stock of general merchandise. They will occupy the entire lower floor of the brick building.

From County Treasurer Hampshire we learn that Wasco county's state tax for 1900 amounts to $17,840.03 and the scalp bounty tax to $3,129.83, making a total now due and unpaid of $20,969.86. If this tax is not paid by the first of May it will then become subject to interest at six per cent per annum.

The Dalles hospital will be open and ready to receive patients before the end of the week. In point of fact, it may be said to be open already, for two patients, one from Sherman county and one from Mosier, who came here the other day supposing the hospital was open, had to be taken care of and were given temporary quarters in the residence adjoining the hospital.

A short time ago a wild-cat killed seven head of fine lambs belonging to the B. S. & L. Co., at their ranch at Hay Creek. The lambs were out of the finest imported ewes of the Hay Creek company, and were valued at $50 each. They were kept in a close pen, under a shed at the ranch, and were thought to be secure from the invasion of predatory animals.

Rev. W. A. Harding preached in the Christian church morning and evening yesterday. The sermons were eloquent and instructive. He has an excellent reputation as an evangelist in the East and will hold a series of special meetings while here. Those who like to hear a good speaker will miss a treat if they do not attend some of the meetings this week.

While in the legislature Representative McGreer secured the passage of a bill making it a misdemeanor for anyone to ride an estray horse without first going through the regular estray proceedings provided by statute. The bill is a good one and will prevent the indiscriminate riding of horses turned out on the range, as parties so doing lay themselves liable to a heavy fine.

It is told of a certain economical old gentleman in Astoria that he asked a restaurant-keeper how much would be charged for cooking a dozen eggs, the latter to be supplied to the restaurant man. The reply was "Five cents." Then the economical gentleman is supposed to have responded, "Well, I'll come in every day at lunch time and have you cook one of them for me."

This morning Mrs. M. S. Jones gave a farewell party to the children of Miss Anna Taylor's kindergarten, on the occasion of her little son, Alan's, leaving the school to go with his parents to reside in Walla Walla. Mrs. Jones furnished the little folks with a heaping basket of just such things as little folks, all the world over, like to eat, and each little tot in turn presented Master Alan with a token of his or her remembrance.

Died, Saturday, 16th March, at Sprague Landing, Seaside, the beloved wife of Robert Hawn, of this city, aged 27 years. The deceased had suffered for a long time from catarrh of the stomach, and her husband took her on the boat Saturday morning hoping she might obtain relief from the waters of St. Martin's springs. But she was beyond relief and died shortly after leaving the boat at Sprague's Landing. She leaves a husband and one child. The funeral took place from the family residence this afternoon.

A London paper says that some time ago a city magistrate tried a case of "Alabaster agt. White," and a little while afterward there was one of "High agt. Low," while later he was confronted with a suit of "Halfpenny agt. Penny." His honor was at first under the impression that some one was playing a joke, but the litigants were real enough. Strange conjunctions of names occur, however, in other places than law courts. In the early part of the century a parson in Bloomsbury began one morning by tying the nuptial knot between "Prior and Nun." The second couple embarking in matrimony were called respectively "Doctor and Patient," and the third

"Beans and Bacon." The fourth couple was put off for twenty-four hours because their patronymics were "Toogood and Best." "Come tomorrow," said the cleric; "sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

The concert at the Vogt Saturday night, given by Anton Schott, ably assisted by Lucien Vannod and Otilie Schnecking, was a rare treat and deserved a better patronage. Mr. Schott's singing was highly appreciated by all who heard him. His vocal powers were given full scope in "Lohengrin's Farewell," by Wagner, and "The Two Grenadiers," by Schumann. The purity and sweetness of his tones were, however, more noticeable in "The Heart Bowed Down" number. Otilie Schnecking is also possessed of a very pleasing voice, and her numbers were well received. The selection from "Waffenschmied" was well rendered by Lucien Vannod.

The new law in reference to taking up estrays needs to be studied, as there is a provision for a fine of $10 to $100 to taking up an estray without complying with the provisions of the act. When an estray is taken up three notices have to be posted. It is provided, though, that no estrays shall be taken up during the months of May and November inclusive except breachy or vicious animals, which may be taken up in any month. Within ten days the owner may claim and secure the animal upon the payment of $1 fee and a reasonable price for keeping it. After ten days the county clerk is notified and the animal is appraised and sold, being advertised in a newspaper if of over $15 value.

George Phillips pleaded guilty in Justice Brownhill's court Saturday afternoon to the larceny of a buggy robe valued at $12, the property of L. A. Porter, the liveryman, and was sentenced to a fine of $50 or twenty-five days in the county jail. Phillips had pawned the robe at Mosier for the feed of a team he had hired from Mr. Porter. This is the same young fellow who last fall was injured on the railroad track at the East End by being thrown off a freight car on which he was trying to steal a ride. He seems to be well connected, for his father is a banker in Butte, Montana, and at the time of the accident he sent the boy, through Marshal Driver, $50 to pay his doctor's bill and buy him a suit of clothes.

Assessor C. L. Schmidt has divided the county for assessment purposes into seven districts and appointed six deputies to assess the six districts outside The Dalles and its immediate surroundings. E. B. Wood has been appointed to assess the Mosier district; M. H. Nickelson, Hood River and Cascade Locks; Henry Hudson, Sr., Boyd, Dufur and Eight Mile; Murdock McLeod, Kingsley; Asa G. Stogdill, Tygh, Wamic and Wapinitia; and Fred W. Wallace, Antelope and Bakeoven. The deputies will commence work as soon as they are furnished with the township plats made necessary by the new assessment law. Mr. Schmidt is hard at work checking up deeded property and placing it on the township and city plats.

When those who were on the inside track of the late Corbett campaign "talk out in meetin'" they say things that furnish rich food for thought to us unsophisticated folks who were far removed from the scene of the conflict. Said one of these, who edits a valley sheet that was rabidly Corbett during the campaign, to a Dalles man not many hours ago: "It is a shame and a disgrace that Corbett wasn't elected after spending all the money he did to procure his election. The old man has more sense than all his advisers. If it had not been for that fool, Graham Glass, no one would ever have heard a word about that $1500 that the estate house janitor got away with. It was through Glass' fool idiocy that the janitor was arrested and the thing exposed. Corbett proposed to give the janitor $3500 more to keep his mouth shut, but Glass would have his way, and you know the result."

St. Patrick's day passed off quietly at The Dalles, and, while the ceremony of "drownin' the shamrock" was doubtless religiously observed, the line of decorum was not transgressed in any instance that came under the eye of the reporter. Nearly everybody on the street wore some emblem in honor of Ireland's patron saint. The most picturesque adornment in this line was that worn by Tom Ward, the liveryman. An immaculately duded collar that reached to the tips of his ears formed a fitting background for a necktie made of broad, green ribbon, with a bow that extended from shoulder to shoulder and ends that fell to below his waist. On the collar of his coat was an immense imitation shamrock, crowned with a harp large enough to have been modeled after the one that "once through Tara's halls the soul of music shed." On his feet were a pair of green socks, and to show off these to due advantage as he perambulated the street, he grabbed up his unmentionables as a lady does her skirts while walking across a duck puddle.

The Split Infinitive.

References are frequently heard of late years to the so-called "split or cleft infinitive." An infinitive is said to be split or cleft when a modifier is inserted between the "to" and the verb itself. For example: "To earnestly seek piety is to find it." "One must work in order to really accomplish anything." "They sought to in that way obtain their end." "They voted us $25 a month to still further increase the library." In these sentences "earnestly," "really," "in that way" and "still further" cut or cleave the four infinitives "to seek," "to accomplish," "to attain" and "to increase."

As soon as a split infinitive was discovered and named students set themselves the task of searching among the classics for examples of it. They found that most of the best writers use the split infinitive rarely; some of them not at all. As a result of the discussions and investigation of the subject, present use on the whole condemns the construction. Some critics have instituted a warfare against it, and point out current instances of it for correction, at the same time that they acknowledge that in an exceptional case it might be allowable. Their position is that though a split infinitive might possibly be stronger or more emphatic than a whole one under rare circumstances, in the vast majority of cases it is decidedly weaker.
