Miss Haven announces to her friends and patrons that she is now ready to supply them in fine spring millinery at "The Leader," on Washington street, between Second and Third. It

From a private letter to the CHRONICLE we learn that Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Dietzel and daughter are now in San Francisco, they having moved there recently from Los Angeles.

Remember Miss Haven's Easter opening of the latest Eastern effects at "The Leader" Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Washington street, between Second and Third. It

R. B. Gilbreth & Sons are starting a lumber yard on the northeast corner of Third and Federal streets, where they expect to handle all kinds of rough and dressed lumber, shingles, laths, moldings etc. Seven carloads of lumber are already on the ground.

The work of clearing the ground for the new 500 barrel flouring mill has commenced. Mr. R. I. Young, of the East End Feed Yard put a force of men to work this morning to remove the large store-house belonging to the yard which stood on part of the ground to be occupied by the new building.

The revival meeting at the Methodist church last evening was full of interest. After several duets, and a short sermon by the pastor, Dr. H. K. Hines of Portland addressed the meeting with very earnest and helpful words. Special singing will be the principal feature of the service this evening. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p. m.

From a dispatch received here yesterday it was learned that Representative M. A. Moody after visiting Cuba would sail tonight from Havana to New Orleans and come home from thence by way of the Southern Pacific. As he is accompanied on his Cuban trip by members of the California delegation it is probable that he will stop over a few days in California.

Miss May Turner, aged 19, of Elwood, Indiana, is a veritable human pin-cushion. To date there have been removed from her arm, between the elbow and shoulder, one long sewing needle, a darning needle, eight smaller needles, two hairpins, a brass pin, the hook part of a breast-pin and the tooth of a comb. It is possible that the articles were swallowed by the young woman when a child. But how they passed from the stomach to the arm and why they should all work out at the same place the doctors cannot say.

Twenty-one-months-old Chas. Price, of Newark, N. J., died as the result of a peculiar accident. The child was playing with a stump of a lead pencil about two inches long in his mouth. The mother's attention was attracted by the child's cries and she saw him writhing on the floor. He had in some manner swallowed the pencil, which stuck in his throat. Mrs. Price tried to extract the pencil, but could not. She summoned a doctor, but the child became unconscious before he arrived. Ten minutes after swallowing the pencil the child died.

There was a good audience at the Christian church last night to hear Evangelist Harding preach on "Discouragements and Encouragements." He took his text in Luke vi:1-11. The disciples had toiled all night and taken nothing; but Jesus bids them try again. This time they are very successful. We need to work and leave results with God. The world is full of sin and sorrow; there is a great work to be done. Let us launch out; we are fishing too near the shore. The whole ocean of God's love lies before us. The truth of God is unfailing. Go into your homes and factories, shops and offices carrying the sunshine of God's love, and men and women will be made better because you have launched out into the fulness of God's love. Preaching again tonight.

Population of Dalles City.

The census of 1900 gave The Dalles a population of 3567. These figures were a disappointment to many as the population was generally estimated at not less than 4000 and not infrequently as high as 5000. And the fact is these estimates would seem to be justified in a large measure by two considerations, namely the school census, and the fact that the population of The Dalles was much smaller in June, when the national census was taken, than in February when the school census was taken.

Of late years every fall sees a considerable number of families settled in the city to get the benefit of the schools. In June most of these people have moved back to their farms where they usually spend the summer months. Now the number of children of school age belonging to this district, whose homes are within the limits of Dalles City, as shown by last month's census of District Clerk Gavin, is 1342. Multiply this number by 4, a very conservative estimate, and we have a population of 5368. Or take the number of pupils enrolled in The Dalles public schools whose homes are within the city limits, namely 1,094, and multiply this number by 5, the ordinary estimate, and we have 5,470. Both these results may be too large, but making every reasonable allowance in the world it can hardly be doubted that the population of The Dalles at this time is probably a thousand and more than the national census gives us credit for.

It may be interesting to some people if we add that the whole number of children of school age in The Dalles district is 1,476. The total enrollment in the public schools, as shown by the city superintendent's report, is 1,114. The estimated enrollment in private schools is 150, making a total enrollment of 1,264.

THE Y. M. C. A. MOVEMENT.

A Friend of the Cause Gives His Opinion as to Why the Movement Failed Last Year.

EDITOR CHRONICLE:

DEAR SIR:—In Monday's paper I notice an article under the head of "That Y. M. C. A. Movement," in which the writer asks what has become of the movement that was started here last summer to organize a Young Men's Christian Association, and then goes on to say, very truthfully, that it is a "shame and disgrace that a town the size of The Dalles has not a public place where a young man of limited means can spend an evening in innocent pleasure or in occupation that would promote his mental and physical well being." He further says that "it is with profound sorrow that I contemplate spending the remainder of my young manhood in a town that furnishes no better pleasure resort for young men than a saloon."

The writer, as well as numerous others in this city, has seen the need for a number of years of a Christian organization for young men, and last spring, after realizing the beneficial results from the Students' Literary Club, concluded that by applying expansion and by adding a portion of the regular Y. M. C. A. work, we could do a great deal more good, morally as well as physically, than under the old regime. Accordingly a number of enthusiastic gentlemen interviewed all the religious and temperance bodies in the city, and were promised a "hearty co-operation" in any movement pertaining to the welfare of young men, some of whom were already a source of anxiety to their parents.

As you already know, the Y. M. C. A. movement was put on foot under the most favorable circumstances. Committees were appointed to confer with the D. C. & A. C. to see what arrangements could be made with them for floor space, use of gymnasium, etc. The proposition made to them was promptly voted down, and perhaps rightly. Then different business men were interviewed with a view of obtaining their financial assistance and advice. They were nearly all willing to help financially; "money was scarce," but they would help a little, providing the young men took hold and placed the movement on its feet without their assistance.

The young men rallied to the work, elected a board of directors, a president and a secretary; bought a baseball outfit; elected a captain and organized a team. Sunday afternoon meetings were then arranged for, and for a few Sundays they were very successful. Then the young man that the writer believes wrote the article in your issue of the 18th, suddenly found out that his girl did not enjoy life as he would like to have her while he was attending the Y. M. C. A. meeting helping to convert souls to the cause of Christ, so he excused himself on the grounds that he "had an engagement" and could not possibly be there. It was the same way with the majority of the few that had pledged themselves to this work. A few married men remained faithful to their charge; the balance were passing pleasant hours on the hillside picking buttercups and daisies, and converting, or trying to convert, a few members of the fairer sex to their peculiar way of thinking; and it must have been pleasant, as the writer has cause to believe. The "nectar sipped from the lips of blushing maidenhood" is sweet enough to cause the fall of any but the most steadfast. Consequently that part of the program came to a finish. (The Sunday afternoon meeting of the Y. M. C. A., I mean. The other, I presume, is going on yet.) The boys were too busy; it was spring time; the meeting were for young men alone, and the meetings must go over till fall. Fall came and still the young men would rather spend a small portion of their time in "helping to improve themselves or others. They wouldn't mind to debate, perhaps, but their Sundays must be free. Their girls demanded this, and of course they must submit or their girls would lose a reputation due new womanhood. And so the matter stands as it did when the meetings closed last spring—simply waiting for some one with a good deal of time and patience to take hold of the thing and make it go without any practical support.

Now what about the business man in this proposed project? Some of the wealthiest business men of this city, who have made all, or nearly all, their money in this city, positively take no interest in the matter at all, not even so far as to subscribe for a copy of "Association Men" at fifty cents a year when asked to do so. They are too poor and have no money to spare to distribute that kind of literature. The cause of the city's young men is nothing to them. Their employees' welfare is only a matter of their being sober while in their presence; but as for spending any money in their behalf, or on behalf of their own children or their neighbors' children, it is altogether wrong. They would willingly give to the cause of spreading the gospel and providing education and amusement to the hosts in China, Japan, India and Africa, but not at home; that is altogether too near.

Now, Mr. Editor, I will tell you what we want in order to make this movement a success, and what we must have before we do any good at all. We want twenty young men who will pledge themselves to take this work upon their own shoulders; who will be regular in attendance; who have the cause of Christ at heart; who are not so badly smitten with the smile and appearance of a member of the fairer sex but that they can manfully ask to be excused in order to attend a regular or other meeting of the Y. M. C. A.; young men who are willing to work for the cause of Christ and the betterment of mankind; the upbuilding of character and all the other necessities that go to make a perfect manhood; young men who are not easily discouraged. And last, but not least, the movement needs the hearty co-operation and support of every Christian and temperance movement in the city, freed from petty jealousies and denominational differences; the advice and cheerful support of our business men, whether it be through their club or otherwise; men who will take Pendleton, La Grande and other sister towns of lesser and greater note for a sample, and show to these towns that we, too, have enterprising citizens and can have of the best as well as they.

And then the young men must not expect too much to start with. We ought to be satisfied with a little—a small reading-room, gymnasium, bath-room, billiard-room, including different kinds of innocent games, and a place to hold debates, religious exercises, etc. It has been estimated that $500 would start the organization, including the above, furnishing carpets, seats, etc. It would take $75 a month to run it; that is within our reach, and with a small support from the business men and the proper fees and support from the members, would place the movement on its feet. Who will be the first to offer a subscription of $25 for that purpose.

Question Answered.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion and biliousness. Doctors were scarce and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. Get Green's prize almanac. Clarke & Falk's.

When you are bilious, use those famous little pills known as DeWitt's Little Early Risers to cleanse the liver and bowels. They never gripe. Clarke & Falk's P. O. Pharmacy.
