

SALMAGUNDI.

Judge Geo. H. Williams, of Portland, has known eleven presidents, so he said recently to a Eugene reporter.

Never in his life has Edward VII. made a speech that caused any disturbance in his own country or the diplomatic world. The Kaiser might take some lessons from his royal British uncle with advantage.

These complaints of bad cooks, have you observed come from elderly people? Children are given the scraps around home, say nothing and get fat. The world is all right; the cooks are all right; it's your stomach that is out of order.

The Oregon Agricultural College experiment station has demonstrated that a pound of pork can be produced with three and one-quarter pounds of wheat to be exact 3.22 pounds. The wheat should be ground and fed dry, the dry feed giving better results than the wet.

Mayor Tom Johnson, of Cleveland, is surrounded by a full set of republican city officers, who received over 3000 majority. As Mr. Johnson promised several things he knows he cannot perform, his republican colleagues will come in handy when he finds it necessary to explain his failure.

Geo. Bilyeu and Geo. Rodgers, two prosperous farmers, living a few miles east of Scio, are the possessors of a cow and a sheep who are champions in the art of stock multiplication. Mr. Bilyeu's cow has given birth to four calves within a year, and Mr. Rodgers has a ewe which is the proud mother of seven lambs, born within a year.

The Weston Leader says: "Apropos of the celebrated brood sow recently brought to public notice by George Reynolds, which is raising a family of fourteen pigs, Dan P. Hicks calls attention to a similar animal at his place above town that is entitled to even greater credit. It is sucking only six little pigs, to be sure, but in addition nourishes a Jersey calf that strangely adopted the sow as its mother. The scene of domestic happiness depicted with six pigs contentedly procuring nourishment on one side of the sow, and the Jersey calf on the other, is described by Mr. Hicks as novel and pleasing. He was compelled, however, to take the calf away, as it was developing a milk trust and getting more than its share, to the manifest detriment of the young porkers."

Here is a little story the Pendleton East Oregonian tells for the benefit of geologists and students generally: "Sam Endecott, of this city, has been digging a well for Charles Bronson on the south side of the Tutuilla, two miles south of Pendleton. Mr. Endecott states that at a depth of 21 feet, after having dug all the way through hardpan, he came upon the skeleton of an animal about the size of a common domestic cat. The skeleton was well preserved, and the question now agitating him and others is, how did that animal come to be away down there covered with 21 feet of hardpan? It would indicate for one thing that there was at some time in the long distant past a great slide of land from the mountains to the neighboring plains, and that cat or rabbit or whatever it was called by the antiquarians of that day, was caught and buried without the formality of a funeral. Everyone has the right to speculate on this matter."

For You to Read

"What puzzled me in the beginning was that I kept losing flesh without any cause for it that I could see. I had a little trouble with my stomach, too, and after a while began to grow weaker and to cough. The cough, I thought, would soon go away and cure itself, but it didn't. It grew worse, and then I began to spit up a peculiar looking substance. I never thought of consumption, but one day I had a hemorrhage, and then was frightened in earnest and did just what you would do. I rushed to the doctor. He was either too busy, or something else, for he didn't do me any good. I kept going on down hill, and the outlook was bad. Things took a different turn, however, when I heard of Acker's English Remedy for Consumption, for I took it, and it not only cured my coughing and spitting, but also built up my whole system. I took on permanent flesh, and today am just as healthy a man as you can find in a week's travel. You may be sure I always keep Acker's English Remedy in the house, and it is a good thing I do so, for one night my youngest child was seized with croup. That hoarse, wheezy cough was the first signal, and I lost no time in giving the poor little sufferer proper doses of this grand medicine. In almost no time the disease was under control, and my child was saved. I advise every parent to have a bottle handy all the time. It serves the same purpose in keeping croup out of the house that a good lock and key serve to keep burglars out. It is both an expectorant and a tonic. It cured me of consumption and my child of croup, and I know what I am talking about." (Signed) Hon. M. HOGAN, picture frame manufacturer, 242 Center Street, New York.
