WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Fresh Oregon asparagus, rhubarb, lettuce, radishes and Columbia river salmon at the Stadelman Commission Company's. apr10-20

The Columbia Dancing Club's last party of the season tonight at the Baldwin. The grand march commences promptly at 9:15.

Soule Bros., piano tuners, will be in the city for a few days only. Leave orders at either Menelee & Parkins or Nickelson's music store. a17-19

The quarterly conference, of the M. E. church, which was to have been this evening, will be held next Monday evening, instead, in the pastor's study.

Lost—A small open-face silver watch, with the monogram "G. B. F." on the back. The finder will be suitably rewarded by returning the same to this office. a19-4t

For the best bicycle for the money go to Sexton & Walther. It is easy for the intelligent person to understand why they sell the Arlington with single tube tires for $17.50, with Dunlap tires $22.50, with Morgan & Wright tires, $21.50. It is because they are worth the money.

On invitation of the little folks of Miss Anna Taylor's Kindergarten, their parents this morning attended an entertainment given by them in the school room, when the little people rendered a program of song, exercises and games that was highly appreciated. The meeting was well attended.

The machinery for the Hood River electric light works is beginning to arrive, says the Glacier. The dynamo was shipped from Schenectady, N. Y., April 8th. The water wheel was shipped from Ohio on the 10th. The transformers have arrived. The company will soon be ready to furnish power for all kinds of machinery or the running of mills. With little extra expense the company can more than treble its power.

Judge Miller could postpone sentencing Green until after the 14th of June, and then he could be hanged at the state penitentiary under the new law. We believe it to be the wish of a large majority of the best citizens of the county to have the law carried out in this manner. There is a strong sentiment in this country against public hanging, and that is what it would be if carried out here. A few days of miserable existence is not begrudged the murderer so long as we know the punishment is sure.—Skamania Pioneer.

The attendance at the Meneley Trio entertainment last night filled the M. E. church to the door. If expectation ran high, it was met and more than met. The audience was delighted beyond measure, not only with the healthy moral tone that pervaded every part of the entertainment, but with the marked, not to say extraordinary, ability of the little company of entertainers. "I wouldn't have missed it for anything," was the prevailing sentiment. Should the Meneley Trio ever favor The Dalles with another visit they can bank on a most cordial welcome.

Mrs. M. A. Ewing, proprietor of The Racket store, cordially invites the public to call and inspect her new stock of spring and summer goods. She has a beautiful line of novelty belts, stock collars, fancy ribbons, allover lace, fine lace edgings and inserting, fancy hosiery all of the latest designs. Also underware for men, women and children. Parasols for little girls, etc., etc. All good are being sold away down at Racket prices. a19-d-w1t

George W. McCoy, of Portland, who gained considerable notoriety in this county a few years ago through his connection with the Clear creek and Wapinitia irrigating ditch scheme, today filed three claims of water rights, two of which are in effect a re-filing of the old ditch claims under a new name, that of the Western Land Irrigation Lumber & Fuel Co. One claim calls for 120,000 miners' inches of water from Clear creek. Another calls for 50,000 inches from Frog Lake creek, and the third calls for a storage reservoir site at the outlet of Clear Lake, and the erection of a dam for a reservoir estimated to hold 70,000,000 cubic feet of water.

The play of the "Irish Duke" attracted to the Vogt opera house last night a throng of over three hundred persons at a time when a whole church-full were in attendance at another entertainment only three blocks off. It is gratifying to learn that the financial results, while in no sense commensurate with the labor and patience expended in preparatory work by Professor Smith, left a reasonably fair balance on the right side of the ledger. Whatever opinions may be entertained as to the merits of the play it is but justice to Professor Smith to say that he met and measurably overcame difficulties that would have appalled a man of much less grit.

"The Henrietta."

Friday night, April 26th, at the Vogt opera house, this great comedy will be presented. Written by Bronson Howard (the author of Shenandoah) for the well-known actors, Stuart Robson and William H. Crane. The play had a large success when these two comedians were together, and has since been played by Mr. Robson with unequalled success for ten years. It is today his best play and never fails to fill the theater.

The scene is New York City, and the theme deals with American life as it is. The two characters, "Nicholas Van Alstyne," Sr., and "Bertie Van Alstyne," his son, are types, the old man being a multi-millionaire and a railroad magnate; "Bertie" a typical dude. The old man, it is said, was suggested to Mr. Howard by an incident in the life of William H. Vanderbilt. The other parts are drawn true to life, and the comedy element is very strong. In fact, with the exception of one or two characters, nearly all are portrayal of comedy. The lines are witty and the satire keen.

The cast is as follows:
Nicholas Van Alstyne, Sr. (called "Old Nick" in the street)..... Mr. Levin
Bertie Van Alstyne, "A Lamb" (his youngest son)..... Mr. Will Evans
Nicholas Van Alstyne, Jr. (who is ambitious)..... Mr. H. E. Northrup
Dr. Parke Walwright (a New York physician)..... Mr. Carl Sanders
Miss Edythe Mans (Miss Edythe Mans)..... Mr. Charles O'Neill
Rev. Dr. Murray Hilton ("a shepherd")..... Mr. H. E. Northrup
[It was to expose and combat such as these, no doubt, that laughter was made.—Vanity Fair.]
Watson Flint (of Flint & Co., Wall street brokers)..... Mr. Glen Allen
Lord Arthur Fitzroy Waldgrave Rorden Trelawney..... Mr. Claude Friezell
Musgrave (secretary to Van Alstyne)..... Mr. Waldo Brigham, of Dufur
Lady Mary Trelawney (Van Alstyne's daughter)..... Miss Edythe Mans
Rose Van Alstyne (wife of Nick, Jr.)..... Miss Georgia Sampson
Agnes Lockwood (her sister)..... Miss Grace Glenn
Mrs. Cornelia Opydke (a rich widow; young and vivacious)..... Miss Myrtle Budge

Act I—Private office in Van Alstyne's residence New York. "A giant and a lamb."

Act II—Drawing room at Van Alstyne's residence. A packet of letters. "Henrietta."

Act III—Offices of Watson Flint & Co., Wall street. [In this act will be seen a stock indicator in full operation, bringing the quotations to the office from the New York stock exchange, and showing how fortunes are made and lost in an hour at the great Wall street stock exchange, and the method of dealing as used there. A telephone will also be in use on the stage.]

Act IV—Van Alstyne's residence, eighteen months later. "The young Napoleon of Wall street."

England may be envied for its observance of the day of rest. There is a refreshing relief from the Sunday morning newspapers, mails and theaters. Railway traffic is suspended in London during church-service hours. The king and queen follow well the excellent traditions of the past, and not alone are religious ceremonies reverently observed, but all about their residences every class of labor is either suspended or lessened as much as possible.—Edward Page Gaston, in the April Woman's Home Companion.

A Marked Injustice.

It is reported, on good authority, that Wasco county is to assess and tax all the wool that was in the warehouses in The Dalles on the first day of March, this year, claiming the right to do this under the Looney law passed by the last legislature, which reads as follows:

"All goods, wares and merchandise kept for sale in this state, all stock employed in any of the mechanical arts, and all capital and machinery employed in any branch of manufactures or other business within this state, owned by a corporation in or out of this state, or by any person, whether residing in or out of the state, shall be taxable in the county or city or other municipal corporation where the same may be, either to the owners thereof or to the person or corporation who shall have charge of or be in possession of the same."

It was not the intent of the law to tax wool, wheat, etc., outside of the counties in which produced, but we suppose it can be done, unless there may be a technical loophole to crawl out of, on the plea that the wool was kept for consignment and not for sale. If the wool be taxed in The Dalles, where the levy is about four per cent, it will result in a great loss to that city in the future.

Wasco county has no moral right to tax Wheeler county produce, raised by Wheeler county people and still in the possession of the producers, and if it exacts such this year, it will probably be a long time ere it have the opportunity again. It is not always wise to kill the goose that lays the golden egg.

The writer was present in the senate chamber when Senator Looney secured the passage of his bill above referred to, and heard him explain its object as being to reach stocks of goods in cities, owned by merchants residing outside the city limits, and we know that he never intended such a thing as to tax produce of one county in another county, simply because the nearest or handiest warehouse happened to be situated over the line. But it takes a legislator wise as Solomon to draft a law to exactly serve his purpose—no more and no less.—Fossil Journal.

Whatever the intention of the Looney law may have been, the Fossil Journal may be assured that the county court of Wasco county will never authorize the collection of a tax of, practically, four per cent of the price of wool or wheat stored in The Dalles warehouses by people living outside the county. THE CHRONICLE is fully authorized to say this much. The Wasco county court will never perpetrate the injustice and absurdity of compelling a resident of Wheeler or Grant county to pay taxes to support Wasco county, simply because the Wheeler or Grant county man happens to have wool or wheat temporarily stored here. The Wasco county court may be safely presumed to have some sense of the justice and moral fitness of things.—Editor CHRONICLE.]
