

J. A. EBERLE,

Leading Merchant Tailor,

Second Street, opposite Mays & Crowe.

We have an excellent line of Spring Suits, Pantings, etc., which we are prepared to make up in the latest styles, and guarantee a perfect fit.

There are times in the lives of us all when we feel that we would like in some way to accept the guidance of the Infinite—the Supreme Intelligence—by whatever name it is known to us. It would be folly to deny that from morning to evening we have work, trials and disappointments. It is not easy for most of us to live comfortably or serenely; it is impossible, it would seem, to do without some reliance upon a Higher Power. If we look up and see nothing but darkness, the shadow affects our thoughts and actions. With the hope of immortality our path becomes light, even though it be rugged with difficulties. If we feel that there is nothing ahead of us, if graves are simply graves and nothing more, if broken ties are to remain forever broken, our mental attitude would essentially border on despair. But if we are convinced that the universe has a Master and that our road to a higher life lies through struggles as well as joys; through tears as well as smiles; and if by faith we can look forward to rest and higher activities, there comes into the soul a something, a dynamic energy, a changing force, which makes despair impossible and changes despondency to hope.—Baker City Republican.

Tom Johnson, towards whom not a few of the unterrified are looking askance as the hope of the democratic Israel, would make an ideal democratic candidate for president of the "reform" brand. Tom has all the fads of Bryan, besides having a patent right to a few private ones of his own invention. He is a single tax crank in an advanced state of lunacy. But he never loses sight of the main chance. When a member of congress a few years ago, Johnson managed to get a book by Henry George printed in the Congressional Record, and then franked a million copies through the mails. Tom was an expensive luxury to taxpayers in that little con game.

Oom Paul is to be the guest of Tammany when he arrives in New York and a valley contemporary shudders with nervous apprehension every time it contemplates what is likely to happen should the old man conclude to read a psalm or have a word of prayer.

The large number of mules which England is still sending from this country to its army in South Africa tells us plainer than censored telegrams that hostilities are not yet over, says the Boston Herald.

A rich mine of gold has been discovered on one of the Philippine islands. Mr. Bryan now has another reason to advance for giving them up.—Times-Herald.
