WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

See our corner window. Any bicycle in the window $16.50. Mays & Crowe.

The Shaniko Leader is informed that the vacant lands lying between Sherar's Bridge and Bakeoven are being rapidly taken up.

Soule Bros., piano tuners, will be in the city for a few days only. Leave orders at either Menefee & Parkins or Nickelsen's music store. a17-19

The brothers, Andrew and Joe Velarde, are in Shaniko moving the store building lately purchased by Pease & Mays from Bolton & Co.

Babe Mays last Saturday sold to D. P. Ketchum, of The Dalles, 1400 head of half-blood Shrop yearlings at $2.50 per head, says the Antelope Herald.

The Columbia Southern has fixed the rate on wool from Shaniko to The Dalles at thirty cents a hundred. At this rate very little will come here by team.

For the best $16.50 bicycle go to Sexton & Walther. It is a dandy. Perhaps, though, you had better wait till next week. They may be cheaper.

The Interstate Power Company has applied to the Moro city council for a franchise to light the town with electricity. The franchise will be granted.

The Moro Observer says: "The new flouring mills in Dalles city will be a great aid to our farmers, insuring them a demand at top prices for all the No. 1 wheat they can produce."

A new wagon road is in course of construction south of Shaniko through the Cottonwood canyon that, it is said, will shorten the distance between that town and Prineville eight miles.

At the recent bench show in Portland Sheriff Kelly's English setter bitch, Maud K., carried off second prize in the class to which she belonged. She was entered by W. Warrens, of Portland.

Antelope's curfew ordinance is now in full force and effect, and it affords much amusement to the older boys to see the young hopefuls of the town "winging" their way homeward at the first stroke of the bell, says the Herald.

There will be no more hypnotic exhibitions in the city of Walla Walla unless the principal shall first pay into the city treasury the sum of $50 for each day that he practices his arts inside the corporate limits. The fine for violation of this is made $50 for each offense. The license is looked upon as being prohibitory and was so intended by the city council.

Rev. D. V. Poling has gone to Condon to attend the annual meeting of the district association of the Congregational church, and will spend Sunday there. The announcement of the services to be held here in his absence appears in another column.

The residence of Dell Porter was destroyed by fire Thursday morning at about 10 o'clock. The girl was ironing and first discovered the fire near the flue in the attic. Mr. Porter was in Wasco, but his son, George, and James Pepper were passing the house when the fire broke out and they succeeded in saving nearly all of the furniture.—Wasco News.

A woman in Chatfield, Minn., has been married three times. Her maiden name was Partridge, her first husband's name was Robbins, the second Sparrow and the present one is Quayles, and they live on Jay street. There are two young Robbins, one Sparrow and two Quayles. One might almost be forgiven for suggesting that the lady was a "bird."—Albany Democrat.

D. P. Ketchum yesterday sold his clip of new wool to The Dalles Scouring Mills for 10 cents apound. Mr. Ketchum says the clip was the cleanest he ever had. Chas. McAllister, also sold 25,000 pounds to the mills at 10 cents. This clip was also bright and much cleaner than usual. These and other recent small sales may be fairly taken as an indication that this year's prices will probably range between 9 and 11 cents.

This afternoon the 7-year-old son of Mrs. Deady, who lives near the North Dalles shoe factory, while playing with some other children in the factory building, fell through a hatchway from the second story and was severely, but it is hoped, not seriously, injured about the face and breast. Dr. Logan was called to attend the injured boy, but had not returned at the time of going to press. Mrs. Deady, the mother of the boy, is a sister of Mr. J. T. Rorick.

The Wasco Warehouse and Milling Company, of The Dalles, have bought the Union Warehouse on the line of the Columbia Southern up to Moro, and have recently bought the building of the Sherman Warehouse Company at Grass Valley and Guthrie, will build a new warehouse at Bourbon, and probably one at Wilcox station. Mr. A. B. Croft will be manager for the company at Grass Valley and have charge of all their warehouses south of Grass Valley on the line of the Columbia Southern railroad.—Grass Valley Journal.

Albert Moodi, of Corvallis, a young man of 18 years, was buried this afternoon from the residence of his aunt, Mrs. T. W. Calebreth, of this city. The deceased was brought here by his mother and sister a week ago in the last stage of consumption. He had been in the Portland hospital and it was hoped that a change of climate might prolong his life a few days longer. The hope was in vain and he passed away Thursday night. Rev. U. F. Hawk conducted the funeral services and the remains were laid to rest in the Odd Fellows cemetery.

The Rutherglen, Scotland, miners have an annual excursion to the coast, and are usually accompanied by a brass band, engaged for the occasion. At a committee meeting held to make the necessary arrangements, one of the members proposed engaging the same band as they had last year, when a young miner jumped to his feet and exclaimed—"Na, na, I object tae that. D'y'e no' min' last year, when we landed at the Broomielaw, they started playing 'When the kye comes hame,' the same as we were a lot o' brute beasts."

Old Man Wamac and three families, accumulated since leaving this county thirty years ago, passed up the road last week going over to view his old time illahee and namesake beyond Sherar's bridge. To avoid annoyances from kangaroos along the way his first wagon cover had painted upon its sides, "An Old '48er Hunting for Gold." Mr. Wamac has been all over the Northwest during the palm days of placer mining, and is more or less familiar with the mineralogical formation of this whole section. He is aging fast, but appears to be in healthy spirits. His visit to "Wamic," (as some $800-a-year postal clerk caused the name to be mis-spelled) will be with Judge Swift. Coincident with this event, Big Jim, an old-time Tygh Indian, happened in town with some coyote scalps. Asking him about where he was in "the hard winter" ('81-'82) he related the saving of three white men at Deschutes, crossing them on a raft. In answer to our question, "Where did you get ropes to tie the raft together?" Jim said, "From Mr. Chambreau." This forms a link in the saving of W. S. Failing and Peter Taylor. Jim should be remembered in his old age for his work on that occasion.—Moro Observer.

As Tom Daffron was driving Charley Stabling's delivery wagon this morning north on Federal street from the Ward & Robertson stables, one of the front wheels came off the wagon, and the horse, which is a high-spirited animal, took fright and started to run. Although the wagon was tilted to one side, Daffron held his seat till the lone front wheel struck a rock and he was thrown to the ground, losing the lines in the fall. Reaching Second street the animal dashed onto the concrete sidewalk in front of Pease & Mays' shoe window, where he fell. In the mad effort to rise his fore feet smashed in the panel work and iron grating below the big plate glass window. Then turning clean around he dashed diagonally across the street and came up against a telephone pole at the northwest corner of Mays & Crowe's store. In a moment he started east, but at a slower rate, so that he was easily caught before he had made many yards advance. The horse came out of the race with only a few trifling scratches near one of his eyes. The wagon was wrecked so badly that it will be almost as cheap to buy a new one as to have it repaired.

Dufur has a wife-beater in the person of J. B. Manley, a former resident of Juniper Flat. A few days ago Manley and his wife, who, by the way, is a facsimile the copy of himself, were having a trifling chat over the facts connected with the pending divorce suit of a neighboring couple, when a disagreement as to some fact arose and one word led to another. Mrs. Manley gave her hubby the lie and, striking a beligerent attitude, shook her fist in his face, when hubby's right went out like a flash and landed between Mrs. Manley's eyes. She immediately swore out a complaint against her husband and appeared in Justice Thomas' court last Monday with one eye clad in deep mourning, which she was in no wise careful to conceal. M. J. Anderson appeared for the state and B. S. Huntington for the defense. The jury, knowing well that they were a sweet pair, between whom it were hard to draw a line of distinction, rightly showed their disapproval of wife-beating as the resort of a brute and a coward and found Manley guilty. The justice fixed the fine at $25 and costs. The defense gave notice of an appeal to the circuit court, where we hope the fine will be quadrupled.
