A NEW PARTY IN THE SOUTH.

It is said that Senator John L. McLaurin, of South Carolina, is to start a new party in the South. The senator, who, of course, has always been a democrat, recently gave notice that he should not attend any more democratic caucuses. This notification was considered at the time equivalent to his withdrawal from the democratic party. The senator is booked to make a speech before the Southern Manufacturers' Association in a week or two, in which he is expected to define his exact position on the issues of the time, and to outline the attitude he is to take on the questions which are coming to the front.

The break which Mr. McLaurin has made with his party is significant. He is only a little over 40 years of age, and may be considered a typical representative of the new South. He was about 5 years of age when slavery was abolished, and he was only 10 when reconstruction was completed and the ex-Confederate states restored to their old relations to the Union. Consequently he is free from the prepossessions which hamper the Southern men whose recollection goes back to the days before the war of secession, when there was a broad social gulf between the North and the South. The only South which he knows is as much different from the South of the days of Calhoun and McDuffie, of his state, as the conditions of the North and South of today may be presumed to be from those of Mars.

It seems easy, from McLaurin's recent record and from the auspices under which he is to make his new declaration of faith, to outline the position he is to take in the partisan divisions of the time. He is an expansionist. He is also a friend of ship subsidies and of adequate protection to American industry. The reason why a man holding such views should call himself a democrat lies in the negro issue. As a Southern man he has held the dread entertained by his section for anything which would afford even the faintest shadow of a chance of negro domination. As the disfranchisement which has gone into operation in many of the Southern states has made the negro issue practically obsolete, McLaurin is going to let his views on the vital issues of the time assert themselves. These will logically take him into the republican party, and tens of thousands of other intelligent Southern men are undoubtedly about to make a similar departure. Unquestionably the republicans, in most of the ex-slave states, will make a better showing in 1904 than they have done since 1876.—Globe-Democrat.

For some reason or other, says the Portland Town Topics, the consent of Joseph Simon seems unnecessary to place hunters of federal pap. If Joe's presence back there cuts no ice, wherein lies the marked ability that his partisans shouted about in days ago? Somebody, too evidently, took the wrong measure of Joe. No wonder Harvey is now ashamed of him, he may do even worse before the next senator is elected—he may hate even. But Joe is cute and says nothing, but that he is sawing wood need not be doubted at all, at all.

The 314,000 republican voters of Missouri represent a population of 1,400,000, and are allowed one congressman by the legislature. The legal unit of population for a member of congress is 194,182. That is a fair specimen of free government as administered in democratic Missouri.

With Bryan pulling one way, Cleveland another, Dave Hill another, Tom Johnson still another, and each and all democratic presidential possibilities, it is not surprising that many democratic editors do not know "where they are at."
