OIL DISCOVERIES IN TEXAS.

It will be interesting to watch the effect of the rich discoveries of oil in Texas upon the political and industrial views of her citizens, says the New York Tribune. Texas statesmen heretofore have generally been well to the front among those who shuddered at the dangers of plutocracy. The anti-trust laws of Texas are perhaps the most stringent of those of any state, not excepting the western states where populist legislators recently left their marks upon the statute books. Foreign corporations have found the utmost difficulty in doing business in Texas, and, until the present changed conditions, outside capital has passed but reluctantly into Texas channels.

The wonderful discoveries of oil, however, seem likely to alter all this. Not so much money will perhaps be needed while the excitement is finding its principal outlet in land speculations, but later, and probably very soon, when the era of development is reached, money will be needed in large quantities. Pipe lines, for instance, are indispensable though expensive. Money will undoubtedly be secured, but the rate and the terms will be matters of the most serious consideration. Of course the rate will be relatively high and the terms relatively severe so long as the laws of Texas render outside capital invested there in the least uncertain or insecure. This extremely simple and obvious natural law is now to be demonstrated and is likely in time to prove illuminating to those who discuss economic and industrial problems in Texas.

COL. PAT DONAN TAKES A HAND.

The Sunday Oregonian devotes a column and a half to a reply to "the letter of a correspondent of the Catholic Sentinel," but without naming the author who is none other than Colonel Pat Donan, the well-known descriptive writer and author. The colonel's letter to the Sentinel, like everything that he writes, is vigorous, and as true as it is vigorous. After stating that he is descended from a long line of Presbyterian doctors of divinity, extending back to colonial days, the colonel says:

"I cannot refrain from hastening to assure you that, in my opinion, every believer in Christianity, Catholic or Protestant, in this city and region, owes you grateful and admiring acknowledgement for your magnificent rebuke of the Oregonian's long-continued trampling of holy things under swinish hoofs. Its persistent and malignant attacks on all that Christian people hold most sacred have been outrages, not only on religion but on common decency. You have done a service to the public at large, as well as to the church. As a citizen and lover of whatever makes for good citizenship, I repeat the assurance of my hearty thanks and earnest appreciation."

Some day we shall probably get the exact truth regarding the army canteen. The Methodist ministers of Chicago have appointed a commissioner to visit Fort Sheridan in company with representatives of other denominations and make a thorough investigation of the practical effects of the closing of the army canteen at the post. The Rev. M. M. Parkhurst, president of the Anti-Saloon League, was selected to make a detailed report of his investigation to the Methodist Ministers' Association.

An old farmer tells of his experience with a balky horse as follows: "One day I was driving him along the road and just as we got to the railroad track he balked. 'Here's a go,' says I to myself: 'what if a train should come along.' At first I was afraid a train would come; then, after a while, I did not care whether it came or not, and in an hour I was afraid one wouldn't come. I just ached to have a train come along. I prayed for one. Sure enough pretty soon I seen one coming. It made me smile. When the engineer whistled for me to get off the track I smiled. When she got a little closer I climbed out the hind end of the buggy, leaned against the fence and prepared to enjoy a picnic. Oh, but it was sport. That balky horse had sworn that he wouldn't go, but he went that time. He was distributed all along the track there for twenty rods. And the old buggy and harness! It looked too comical! Never had such fun since I was a boy! Rather expensive fun it was, too—for the railroad company. I sued 'em for $700, and the jury of farmers gave me $672.50. It was too hard to drive a balky horse and be a Christian at the same time. I tried it years ago, and gave it up as a bad job."

Question Answered.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion and biliousness. Doctors were scarce and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. Get Green's prize almanac. Clarke & Falk's.
