CRAZY MAN WAS ROBBED.

Thompson's Clothing Was Apparently Robbed of $425 at the Time He Jumped into the River.

There is still another chapter to be added to the story of the poor fellow who jumped into the river at the Senfert Bros.' mess house Tuesday afternoon, and who was taken from here to the asylum yesterday. Thompson (the only name he is known by) told Sheriff Kelly that he had in his clothes that he threw off in the mess house before plunging into the river, $425, all in greenbacks, and all but one in ten-dollar bills. Abundant evidence that this was the case has since developed. It was noticed at the time that Thompson jumped into the river that one Farrelly, an employe of Senfert Bros., went alone into the mess house where Thompson had doffed his clothes, and where Farrelly had abundant opportunity to rob them of their contents. Farrelly next day quit the employ of Senfert Bros., and coming to town, cashed the check for his wages, amounting to $17.50, at the brewery. When Farrelly went to work for the Senferts he claimed to be dead broke, and this $17.50 was all the money he was supposed to have when he left. Next day he met Mr. Frank Senfert in the Umatilla House and asked him to have a cigar and threw down a twenty-dollar gold piece on the bar to pay for it. When the bar-keeper asked him if he had no smaller change Farrelly rumaged in his hip pocket for a moment and pulled out a fist full of coin, among which were three more twenty-dollar gold pieces.

Special Policeman Alisky has found instances where Farrelly changed six ten-dollar greenbacks for gold. But the strongest evidence yet discovered that Farrelly got away with Thompson's money lies in the fact that he changed three ten-dollar greenbacks for gold at Charley Frank's saloon, the ends of which are covered with blood. These bills are now in possession of the sheriff. Farrelly disappeared from here yesterday and his whereabouts is not known. It is only known that he bought a ticket Wednesday for Baker City, and, missing the train he wished to go on, he lay over till the next day.

Farrelly is described as follows: About 38 to 40 years of age; six feet in height; heavily built; weight close to 200 pounds; has fair hair and wears a light, sandy mustache; wore a white hat, something between a cow boy's and a fedora, was dressed in new, striped clothing and wore a soft shirt with four-in-hand necktie. Sheriff Kelly has notified the authorities at Baker City and other places east of here to look out for him.

J. Brown, who is charged with committing a nuisance on the premises of John Moore, of Tenth street, was released on his own recognizance yesterday afternoon from the city jail. His trial has been fixed by Judge Gates at 10 o'clock next Monday.

The O. R. & N. Co. has made a rate of 7 1/2 cents per hundred pounds on wool from Grants to The Dalles, and as the above rate is cheaper than it can possibly be hauled so far by team, the wool clip of this section will undoubtedly go via Grants this season, says the Golden-dale Sentinel.

Today's Oregonian has a picture of E. H. Waterman, of Eight-Mile, who, it says, is the oldest man in this vicinity. Mr. Waterman is not the oldest man in this vicinity. Peter Rath, who lives with his son-in-law, P. Stadlerman, on the Catholic mission, was born June 29, 1811, and is, consequently, nearly 16 months older than Mr. Waterman.

The management of the D. C. & A. C. base ball club has been corresponding with the Portland High School club with the view of having a match game at The Dalles at some date towards the latter part of this month. As the bringing of the Portland boys here and entertaining them is going to cost something, the business men of The Dalles will be asked to share the expense and it is hoped and expected that a liberal response will be made.

When Clyde Fitch wrote "Nathan Hale," which appears at the Vogt tomorrow night, he presented to the stage a thoroughly American play, based on a patriotic theme, and having as its central figure a man who stands in our history for all that is best and sacrificing in citizenship. Then, too, Fitch was successful in making a play which caught the sympathies and intelligence of an audience without an unnecessary appeal to spread-eagleism and international hatreds, although the verities of history required that he should show the hateful and ignoble indignities heaped upon Hale by the British in his last hours.

Harry Williams, a young fellow of 25 years, who has the appearance and airs of a professional tramp, was sentenced by Judge Gates yesterday afternoon to a fine of $25, in default of payment of which he was sent to the county jail for twelve days. Williams was charged with stealing a tooth-setter from S. J. Brown, of the value of $2.50. He pleaded not guilty and produced two witnesses to prove that he had bought the tooth-setter from somebody for 25 cents. The witnesses were segregated while giving their testimony, and the result was they contradicted each other to such an extent that it was plain neither of them was telling the truth, and that their story was invented to secure the release of their fellow-tramp.

On complaint of Pete Godfrey, of Five-Mile, Constable Jackson went out the other day to a farmer's house in the Boyd neighborhood and armed with a search warrant, discovered a quantity of jewelry and female clothing that had been stolen from Godfrey's residence by a girl who had worked for him eight days, and had given them to the Boyd girl while the latter was on a visit at the Godfrey residence. The Boyd girl gave up the goods to Mr. Jackson and confessed that she had seen a quantity of more clothing belonging to Mrs.

Godfrey in the possession of the Victor girl and had no doubt he would find them by going on to Victor. As Mr. Jackson had neither search warrant nor warrant of arrest for the Victor girl he came back to town, bringing with him Mr. Godfrey to swear out the warrants. For some reason, unknown to THE CHRONICLE, the matter was dropped at this point. No arrests were made and we understand it is not the intention to make any. This species of leniency has been so common of late that it is becoming monotonous. It may be all right but we cannot get rid of the old-fashioned notion that the machinery of the law was made for other purposes.

COMPARATIVE INCREASE.

The "Christian" Church Increased More Than All the Lutheran Bodies.—Reply to Rev. W. Brenner.

EUGENE, Or., May 1, 1901.

EDITOR DALLES CHRONICLE:
DEAR SIR:—My attention was called to a criticism of statistical statements made by me while meeting my brethren at The Dalles on the night of April 16th. Below is a table of statistics which appeared in The Independent, giving latest standing of twenty-seven religious bodies. This exhibits the following in ten years' growth:

	1890	1900
Lutheran Synodical Conference	357,153	381,029
Lutheran General Council	14,324	36,401
Lutheran General Synod	21,164	109,589
Total for three divisions	392,637	526,919
Increase of three divisions		234,282
Christian Church (Disciples)	6,641,661	11,292,822
Increase in ten years		4,651,161

The Christian church, receiving nothing by immigration, born in America, has exceeded the growth of all three Lutheran bodies in the table by 218,551. As to the training of children, I have it to say that our people here in America 7,829 Sunday schools, 745,635 teachers and scholars. Besides this we have 10,686 churches and 6,348 ministers. And an institution, as a Bible college or university, for about every state in the union; some forty-five institutions of this higher order.

The entire church membership is by conversion; nothing is counted at the cradle. All have more or less knowledge of God for themselves, and stand together on a basis of equality.

Very Truly,
J. B. LISTER.
