THIRD TERM TALK.

Occasionally there may be noticed mention of a third term for President McKinley. The shrewd observer sees at once that this never comes from a friend of the administration, never is in the form of commending a third term. On the contrary, it combats the supposed plan, and solely for the purpose of suggesting that such a plan exists, says the Tacoma Ledger. There is no such plan, never has been and never will be. The people who, with well stimulated indignation, combat it, do so willfully intending to deceive.

There are unwritten laws stronger than any line in the constitution, and they are not subject to amendment. Among these laws is one declaring two terms the limit of exclusive incumbency for any individual. There has been but one president who could have been elected for more than two terms, and this was the great Washington, to whom fell the duty of establishing the precedent that has been honored, and will be honored, to the end of the days of the republic. The tacit consent of Grant to become the nominee for a third term led to failure, and caused the loss to the soldier of a share of the esteem that had been his. The fate of the movement in favor of his ambitions would be the fate of any similar movement, except that the rebuke would in another case be more condign.

No reason could be advanced for granting a third term under any circumstances. It is folly to suppose that because McKinley is a good man and an efficient public servant there are not in this great republic many others of patriotism as pure and ability as great. Certainly McKinley would be indignant at the effort to put himself and his friends in a false light, but the dignity of his position forbids that he take notice of rumors so absurd and malicious. They are part of the scheme to create a belief that the future holds for this country something akin to empire.

So dignified a paper as the Oregonian should be ashamed to take up this cry. It does so apparently for no other reason than to insult the man who is about to be the guest of Portland.

The announcement that on account of the serious illness of Mrs. McKinley the president has concluded to abandon his Northwest tour will cause great disappointment and regret in many quarters where his coming was awaited with genuine pleasure. Mrs. McKinley seems to be too ill to leave any ground of hope that the original program may yet be carried out.

The following paragraph perhaps outlines in a concise but correct way the solution of the trust problem:

"The people of the United States will soon see the trust spiders begin eating each other when the flies get scarce. Flies are getting scarcer every day. The new steel trust will perhaps compel the old one to buy it—in other words, it will compel the bigger spider to give up a few drops of blood to satisfy it temporarily. But when this new trust is bought out another one will come up and the fight will only be put off for a little while."

Government ownership in England is not as popular as some of the American enthusiasts would have us believe. It is announced that the loss to Great Britain on account of government ownership of telegraph is $3,500,000 a year. There seems to be some difficulty in separating the political graft from this government control business, and that is where the shoe pinches.

FOR about thirteen years I have devoted more time to politics than to business. The result is that my business has suffered. For a time, at least, I propose to devote more time to business and less to politics, provided the other fellows will let me. During these years some features have come into practice among business men that were not considered proper or necessary at that time. Among them is the scheme of profit-sharing or giving to some lucky customers a valuable present. I propose to do something in this line myself. For each fifty cents paid to me for goods furnished I will give the customer a numbered coupon. On each Saturday at 9 p. m. I will give away two presents—one, a year's subscription to any $1 periodical desired, and the other, one copy of some of the famous pictures neatly framed, the customer can also make a choice of these as there are a number to be given away before supply is exhausted. In addition, every month I will give several valuable presents. On June 5th the presents will be a fine Bible, a Webster's International Dictionary, one year's subscription to a $4 periodical and one Boys' Baseball Set. The presents to be given away on July 6th will be announced later. I hope to confine myself in these presents to articles in my own line so that I will not interfere with sale of goods in other lines. In addition I will give a dividend each month to the person who has purchased the most goods from me. On June 5th this will be $5.00. You do not have to purchase fifty cents worth at one time to get a dividend check, as I issue certificates of sale for less amounts which can be exchanged for dividend check when they amount to fifty cents. If clerk does not give you checks or certificates when you make a purchase, ask for them. M. T. NOLAN
