

Advice of a Druggist

"It is proper, I think, to let others know about the popularity and virtues of Acker's English Remedy for Coughs, Colds and Consumption. From the moment I began handling it, it sold rapidly, and the sales keep growing all the time as fast as people find out what a remarkable preparation it is. The satisfaction it gives is universal. Our best citizens use it and say it is the best thing for throat and lung troubles they ever saw. Mr. S. H. Culver, one of our prominent townsmen, says Acker's English Remedy is the only medicine that helped his chronic cough of many years' standing. At first it gave relief, and now, after taking a few bottles, he is wholly cured. I buy it by the gross at a time, and my sales are larger on this one medicine than on any other in my store. It is a great pleasure for me to feel that while I am prospering I am also doing so much good to the community in selling such a grand medicine." (Signed) R. R. Douglas, Westfield, N. Y.

Character sketch of a Noted Pioneer.

"No sketch of the pioneer era of this county is complete without a reference to 'Parson Billy Adams,' preacher, lawyer, journalist and all-around literary athlete," said Hon. C. B. Moore in an address delivered at Dayton, Oregon, June 5th, at the annual reunion of Yamhill county pioneers, referring to Dr. C. L. Adams, of Hood River. He was famous in our early journalistic annals under the noms-de-plume of 'Junius' and 'Brakspear,' and as the Whig editor of the Oregon City Argus. A descendant of Ethan Allen, and collaterally related to John Adams, his acute mind and independent character was manifest in boyhood. At Bethany College, Virginia, under the famous Alexander Campbell, he took high honors as a scholar and was rated the best writer in college. Leaving college, he married and started in life in the Mississippi valley, with a threadbare suit of blue jeans and a purse of $32, of which $15 was furnished by his wife. After a checkered experience he decided to set out for Oregon.

"President Campbell, hearing of his plans, wrote him saying: 'Is there not land enough in Illinois for your talent and enterprise without burying yourself and family in a wilderness among savages?' He replied: 'Illinois is not big enough nor good enough for me. My soul hungers for something Illinois cannot give. In Oregon I expect to find what I desire.'

"To Oregon he came, reaching it only after many hardships. His money was exhausted when he had reached Oregon City, and he borrowed $2 and paid all of it for ferrage across the river, except ten cents, which he lost through a hole in his pocket. Thereafter his career re-opened in Yamhill. Here he traded his wagon for ten Spanish cows, whose increase kept him in meat for years. In 1848-9 he opened one of the first schools in this county, his boy scholars coming to school in buckskin suits and moccasins and his girl scholars dressed in shirting, colored in tea grounds. These girls in after years had a creditable share in building up the pioneer commonwealth, and among the moccasin-footed boys were Dr. L. L. Rowland, afterwards state superintendent of public instruction, John R. McBride, afterwards a member of congress from Oregon, and later chief justice of the state of Idaho, and George L. Woods, famous as a campaigner and as governor of both Oregon and Utah.

"Although still living, Adams has for almost a generation lived in comparative retirement. During the ten years closing with the civil war he was a journalist and campaigner, the veritable storm center of the bitter political strife then raging in this state. He, as editor of the Argus, Dryer, as editor of The Oregonian, and Bush, as editor of the Salem Statesman, were a famous journalistic trio, whose trenchant and vigorous editorials gave us what was long known as 'the Oregon style' of journalism. In one of the initial numbers of the Argus George L. Woods, the future governor, is advertised as 'our traveling agent in the counties of Yamhill, Washington and Polk.' In one of his early editorials Adams denounced the donation land law as one cause 'why schools were so few and so poor, as the land was held in such immense tracts—a mile square usually—that a school district could not support a decent teacher, nor could the legs of the children support the strain of carrying their owners so far to school.'"

Don't.

Don't expect a "cheap" enameled utensil to last long. It doesn't.
Don't think such a one can be kept clean. It can't.
Don't believe the "cheap" enamel isn't steadily crumbling away. It is.
Don't imagine in using such you're not eating the enamel. You are.
Don't figure you are saving money buying the cheapest. You're not.
Don't forget the "cheap" has but one coating of enamel. Just one.
Don't fail to recollect that imported Stransky steel-ware lasts for years.
Don't buy that kind if health and economy are of no consequence.
Don't try to get the genuine elsewhere, for it's sold exclusively by Dyspeptics cannot be long lived because to live requires nourishment Food is not nourishing until it is digested. A disordered stomach cannot digest food, it must have assistance. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests all kinds of food without aid from the stomach, allowing it to rest and regain its natural functions. Its elements are exactly the same as the natural digestive fluids and it simply can't help but do you good. Clarke & Falk's P. O. Pharmacy.

Seven Years in Bed.
"Will wonders ever cease?" inquire the friends of Mrs. L. Peave, of Lawrence, Kan. They knew she had been unable to leave her bed in seven years on account of kidney and liver trouble, nervous prostration and general debility; but, "Three bottles of Electric Bitters enabled me to walk," she writes, "and in three months I felt like a new person." Women suffering from Headache, Backache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy Spells will find it a priceless blessing. Try it. Satisfaction is guaranteed. G. C. Blakeley, the druggist. Only 50c.

It was in a Pullman sleeper, and just across from the bachelor's berth was a handsome little woman and her 3-year-old boy. Early in the morning the two were laughing and playing together, and the good-natured bachelor smiled to himself as he arose to dress. Suddenly a little foot peeped out from the curtains of the opposite berth, and with a twinkle in his eye, the bachelor grabbed the plump toe and began: "This little pig went to market, this little"—"That is my foot, sir," said the indignant voice of a woman. The silence which followed could be heard above the roar of the train.—Chicago News.
