

THE WOOL SITUATION

The studied attempts of free-traders to belittle the advantages of protection to domestic wool growers by pointing out the present low prices of wool are of no avail. They will not convince the American sheep raiser that he would be better off without tariff protection on wool and sheep.

In view of the conditions presented by the wool markets of the world outside of the United States, does any one wonder that there should be a powerful and impassable opposition to the proposed 20 per cent reduction of duty provided for in the Argentine treaty?

The Telegram announces that Senator Simon was "persuaded" to accompany the party of Portland business men, who are to meet the congressional committee at Lewiston, and that "at last" he consented to go.

Now that an opportunity has been afforded to examine Aguirre he doesn't seem to resemble George Washington as much as some people once thought he did, says the spokesman-Review.
