

MILT MILLER FOR GOVERNOR

The Salem Journal contributes the following breezy article to the controversy over the next gubernatorial nomination:

Milt Miller, who dispenses Pink Pills, Peruna and debility tablets at his Lebanon drug store, is longingly mentioned by democratic papers as a candidate for governor. As all the scortleop and buffalo-camp politicians in the republican party have decided that Gear is not a fit man to hold the place for another term, it is well to consider the possibilities of a 3000-water statesman of different political persuasion. As we size it up, Gear is a gooder, so far as the republican party is concerned. He has all the life lambasted democrats and populists as fly-up-the-creekers generally, so that he need expect no opposition from them. The H. Plummer wing of the republican party has got it in for him so bitter that if they can't beat him for nomination they will defeat him for election. Gear seems to have nothing but the respectable elements of the party to fall back on, and the chances seem to strongly favor the H. Plummer wing assuming its rightful control, or barring down the state house in the attempt. So the people might as well look forward to the possibility of being governed by the schlegel wisdom gained in a country drug store. The republicans ought to like it, for Milt everlastingly dispensed with a little brief authority, acted as body guard and chief master of ceremonies for Bryan at Lebanon. He kept people at a distance of several rods from Mr. Bryan so successfully that scores of old wheel horses had to be glad they could ride on the same railroad with the Great Commoner, to say nothing of getting onto the same train. A reporter forced a couple of good democratic ladies begging and imploring the Lordly Milt for a glimpse of their hero. But he was firm as iron that no one should get within a stone's throw of the man he had stowed away in a back bedroom, and who was never known to refuse to see anybody when he was awake. The reporter escorted the ladies around to the back alley, got them through a barn and into a back door when one of Milt's guards wasn't looking, knocked at Bryan's door and received the ladies in the most cordial and pleased manner in his shirt sleeves, with the democratic simplicity of a true Western gentleman. The ladies were delighted and so one was hurt, but those were the only ladies that were permitted to see him that day, and it took reportorial strategy to bring that about. What this state needs is a governor who will stand on his dignity and not let the common herd get at him whenever they take a cough. A governor who isn't the least bit exclusive and doesn't have a conception of when some one catches him in his office with his coat off, or in the back yard sawing wood, is not ready to be compared with a dealer in eye-water who can stand people off at their proper distance. If it hadn't been for him placing a band of white guard around Bryan some old women might have rushed in and kissed him on the northwest corner of that Platte river mouth of his, and then it would have been all day with the presidency. By all means, let us have a dignified dispenser of paregoric for governor.

yet people will still prefer the milk and meat of healthy animals, and ought to have them.

The letter is yesterday's Chronicle, signed "A Fruit Grower," was written by a gentleman who owns a large orchard and vineyard not a thousand miles from The Dalles. The writer is not a member of the Gentlemen's Darning Association, and no member of that association, so far as we know, either inspired the letter or ever saw a line of it till it appeared in THE CHRONICLE. This much is said to prevent misunderstanding.
