Program of Visiting Committee.

The special train containing the rivers and harbors committee is due here at 6:30 tonight. The hour of dinner is fixed at 7 o'clock on board the Regulator, which has been handsomely decorated for the occasion. The dining room tables are set in the form of a double cross and it is hoped will be able to accommodate all the guests. The limited capacity of the boat's dining saloon necessitated only a limited number of invitations to Dalles people to dinner, but this unavoidable inconvenience it is hoped in some measure to be overcome by a public reception after dinner in the spacious rooms of the Commercial Club. The CHRONICLE presumes, in the absence of any definite information, that the reception will commence not later than 9 o'clock. As it is a public reception and the occasion one of immense import to the people of Eastern Oregon, it is hoped that the people of The Dalles will manifest their interest in the event by as large a representation of both sexes as possible.

A telegram was received from Representative Moody at 3 o'clock this afternoon conveying the information that the committee, attaches, local delegation and reporters coming here number about thirty-five. This is fewer than was expected. Sleeping accommodations have been secured at the Umatilla House for the overflow. Mr. Moody expects the train to arrive here at 7 o'clock but the dispatchers put its arrival half an hour earlier. The party will not stop at Celilo to view the rapids but will go up the river for that purpose on a special train in the morning. From here they will go to Portland on the Regulator. The party, Mr. Moody adds, "will arrive too late for full dress and too tired for speeches."

Viewed From Another Standpoint.

THE DALLES, July 26, 1901.

EDITOR CHRONICLE:—

In answer to the article in yesterday's paper I will say that I myself do not object to the carnival and stock show but to the extra expense of holding a race meeting in connection with the carnival and street fair. If the Worthy Gentlemen who have the race track will take a sensible view of the matter and not try to crowd the little fish too much they would have no opposition, but I think they are trying to collect too much money at one time.

I am asked to contribute 100 per cent more this year than last. Will the extra expense pay me? That is the way I look at it. Surely every man should be allowed to own his own business and say what he is able to give. Now then if the Worthy Gentlemen that have this matter in charge will agree to have a first-class carnival and street fair for half the money they ask, for which they can do, they can keep to themselves all the main entrance fees and let the street fair attractions into the inclosure for 85 per cent of their gross receipts for the privilege of showing there, then buy lumber that can be used to fence race track, and with it build fence around the carnival; build stock sheds to show the stock, poultry, fruits and vegetables, and when the carnival is over take the lumber and use it for the benefit of the race track. The surplus money can also be used for that purpose, then instead of having a street fair and carnival next year have a first-class race meeting and stock fair.

The stock show does not have to be held at the race track to get whatever premiums they may be awarded any more than the fruit and vegetable exhibit. Try and meet us half way and harmonize the matter. I beg to subscribe myself as one of those who was asked for more than he thought he could give.

WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Roy Moore, a Hillsboro boy, is at The Dalles Hospital with a broken leg. He and another lad while driving out to the Simonson ranch in a livery rig upset the buggy and in the fall Moore's right leg was broken in two places.

Rev. George W. Gue, D. D., pastor of Centenary church, East Side, and a prominent minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, dropped dead yesterday forenoon, from heart disease, on the Southern Pacific railway track, near East Stark street, Portland.

Correct in style, quality and shape are the features of every pair of shoes we show, and these Pingree patent leather oxfords certainly have it all. Next Saturday $4.15 buys the $5 ones and $2.35 the $3.50 ones. See window display of A. M. Williams & Co.

Joe Southwell, a pioneer resident of Wasco county, died at his home on Ten Mile Tuesday, July 23d, aged 80 years. The cause of death was bright's disease from which the deceased has suffered for years. For the past two years he was confined to his bed practically all the time.

A meeting of the commissioners of the Second Oregon District Fair Association was held today in Judge Mays' office to appoint the time for holding the fair, which will probably be from the first to the fifth of October; to revise the premium list and transact other business that may come before them. The commissioners will organize by electing a president, treasurer and secretary. Of the six commissioners three, namely Robert Mays, of Wasco county; C. C. Kuney, of Sherman, and G. B. Dukek, of Gilliam, are here in person, and John Coombs, of Crook county, is represented by proxy. Wm. Thompson, of Wheeler, was expected but had not arrived at the time of this writing. It is supposed that Umatilla and Morrow counties did not appoint commissioners.

Crook county has another murder case on its hands, according to the Ashwood

Prospector. A. D. Lytle, in cold blood, last Sunday shot to death Emmet Egan, at the Derham sawmill in northern Crook. Egan was in his room in the morning dressing when the door was thrown open by Lytle, who, without a word of warning, leveled an old cap and ball pistol on Egan and fired, the bullet striking him in the short ribs just below the heart and lodging in the back. Lytle then turned and said: "I guess the --- won't insult my wife again." Egan lingered until night when he passed away. The prospector learns that the shooting was entirely uncalled for and that the murdered man made a dying declaration that is enough to convict Lytle of a cold-blooded murder. The murderer went to Prineville and gave himself up to the sheriff.

THE CHRONICLE sometimes wonders if the men who refuse to contribute to the fair fund because the proposed fence around the race track is a contribution to a private corporation, have ever heard that before the Driving Association asked for a cent to build the fence, or rather before a stick of the fence will be in place the association will have spent the sum of $2,000 on the track and grounds of their own money exclusive of the $600 they got from last year's carnival committee. Not only is this true but before the gentlemen of the Driving Association asked for a cent from the outside for the proposed fair they pledged their names for nearly $1,500 more in hard cash, making a contribution from this source of $3,500. THE CHRONICLE wonders too if it is fully understood that the Driving Association offer to give the use of their track and grounds to the district fair for all time free of a cent of charge either for the use of them or for their repair and maintenance.

The county jail has a prisoner by the name of Brooks but whose real name is said to be Miller. Brooks is bound over in the sum of $500 for stealing $17 in cash, a watch and some clothing from the I X L restaurant. When he was arrested a lady's gold watch was found on him and Sheriff Kelliv, Deputy Sheriff Wood and Officer Alisky have been working ever since to find the owner of the watch. They were rewarded today by receiving a letter from the chief of police of Sacramento informing them that the watch belonged to a school teacher of that city, who is at present on her vacation at the coast and whose name is Lizzie Klotz. The watch has engraved on the inside of the case the name of Lizzie Klotz and the date 1896. Brooks is evidently an old offender as well as an all-around tough citizen. He is one of the two fellows who recently tried to saw their way through the bars of the jail window. Brooks furnished the saw, which escaped the notice of the jailer by being concealed in the sole of the prisoner's shoe.

Messrs J. C. Nickelsen, J. A. Douthit and M. Z. Donnell, as a volunteer committee of three, started out yesterday afternoon to interview the business men of the city on the subject of the fair and carnival, confining their visits, of set purpose, to those who have not already put themselves on record as refusing to contribute anything towards the expense of the project, and avoiding the saloon and restaurant men, who are unanimously in favor of the fair and willing to subscribe liberally towards its expense. Before ending their round for the day they had visited the four business blocks on Second street west of Washington street and a considerable part of the East End. They report having had a most cordial reception everywhere. Only two received them coldly at first and before the committee and they parted each promised to do his part in contributing, as one of them said, "even more than I feel I am able to do because I feel it to be a necessity that something be done to improve the business of the town."
