A Prize Table.

William McCrum has spent the idle half hours of many a week in making a kitchen table that when completed, and it is now well-nigh finished, will take the shine off any other table of its kind to be found in a thousand miles travel, and will make the teeth of many a housewife water profusely before it is finally disposed of according to Mr. McCrum's intention.

This table, that you couldn't hire Mr. McCrum to build for $100, that gentleman is going to make a present of to the committee of the coming fair. The fair committee will have absolute control of it on the single condition that it shall be given as a prize to the woman who makes the best loaf of bread, the contest for it to be decided by a committee appointed for that purpose.

The Salvation Army.

Capt. A. H. Ward and Lieut. H. B. Vidalin, who have been in charge of the Salvation Army's work in The Dalles for several months past, have received marching orders, and their farewell meeting will take place tomorrow (Sunday) night.

A. D. Edgar, who died at Nome on June 10th, went there last year and engaged in the freighting business. He was formerly a well-known stage and mail contractor in California and Oregon. As far back as 1860 he was a trusted employe of the Wells Fargo Express Company, and had hosts of friends throughout California, Oregon, Washington, Montana and Idaho. Before coming to Nome he had made his home at The Dalles. He has a son living at Council, Idaho, and several brothers in California, and one, a deputy United States marshal, at Circle City. Mr. Edgar was about 65 years of age. Death was due to chronic inflammation of the bladder.—Oregonian.

NOTED TEMPERANCE LECTURER HERE

MR. MORSE, WHO IS A DISCIPLE OF THE LATE DWIGHT L. MOODY, GIVES A STATEMENT OF THE AIMS AND PURPOSES OF HIS WORK

Rev. A. L. Morse, a noted temperance lecturer known as "The Golden Rule Orator," will address a union meeting of three city churches at the Congregational church at 8 o'clock Sunday night.

In 1892 Mr. Morse was commissioned by the Gospel Temperance League, organized by D. L. Moody, to represent the work in any of the states or territories. And now, as field secretary and national lecturer of the Gospel Temperance extension movement, and aided by his thrilling book entitled "Lost and Rescued," he is endeavoring to enlist 100,000 workers in the cause and 1,000,000 signers to the pledge.

In response to the request of THE CHRONICLE Mr. Morse makes the following statement concerning the aim and purpose of his work:

"I have been asked to tell about the aim and purpose of my work. Our purpose is single yet manifold; single, in that we seek to save all the people we can from the evils of intemperance; manifold, in that we seek to work with and unite in oneness of spirit all true temperance workers who believe in God and love their fellowmen. Men fall because they are weak, and in their weakness we must stoop down and help them up. They are despondent, we must speak the kind word to cheer them up. They have lost courage, and we must turn to them the brighter side of life, and inspire them with hope.

"I have no new methods to introduce nor fads to recommend. It is the old story, of how men fall, which we all know, and I emphasize the "Old, Old Story of Glad Tidings" of how, when a man does fall, he may, by the grace of God, get up again, and again be a man. "Mr. Moody is gone but the work still goes on, and we know of no better working motto than Mr. Moody's life motto, viz:

"Do all the good you can, To all the people you can In all the ways you can As long as ever you can."

"This motto applied to our work brings success and nothing succeeds like success."
