who, as she was lifted from the wagon, caught sight of a field of daisies. With a cry of delight she darted to the rail fence the moment she was set down, and, scrambling under it, threw herself face downward, among the beautiful white and gold blossoms, clasping them in her arms and sobbing as if her heart were breaking. She had never before seen flowers growing. During her stay she spent all her time among them, and when the moment came to pack her snabby little bag it was found to be filled with flowers. A touching poem about this pathetic incident, "The Fresh-Air Child," by Elliot Walker, is published in the August number of The Ladies' Home Journal.

A few members of the medical fraternity in Portland express astonishment at the remarkable recovery of an 80-year-old patient from appendicitis, says the Telegram. At this advanced age it is said to be rare that a patient has the vitality to recover from the shock of an operation. Two well-known physicians whose position causes them to forbid the mention of their achievements, have accomplished the work of removing a badly inflamed portion of the stomach arising from a deposit in the vermiform appendix. The patient is William King of South Portland, and the fight he has made for his life seems to promise complete recovery, and he may live to be much older. It was a choice with him, according to the doctors, of two ways of dying, and the chance he took was with the knives and the operating table. His rallying from the ordeal is the cause of considerable comment at the Good Samaritan Hospital.

The argument on the motion for a new trial in the case of T. J. Brown et al. vs. the Oregon King Mining Company was finished, in the United States court at Portland yesterday, and the matter was taken under advisement by Judge Bellinger. The argument was begun about two weeks ago and was carried on for half a day. The matter was taken up again last Friday and proceeded for two days without reaching a conclusion, but yesterday the lawyers succeeded in bringing their talk to a close. The suit was brought by Brown to secure possession of the Oregon King Mining Company on the ground of a former location, and was decided in his favor. Defendants, who are in possession of the mine moved for a new trial. The mine is supposed to be very valuable, but it will require further development to show what it is really worth. Defendants allege that so far they have expended some $30,000 more on the mine than they have taken out of it.

Animal Show Thursday.

The Spokane Chronicle referring to the performance given by the Whitney trained animal show at Spokane says; Crowds of interested and enthusiastic people filled the main tent of Whitney's dog and pony show yesterday afternoon and evening, and judging from the general expressions of opinion among those who attended either performance, the show is the best of its kind in America. Last evening the big audience, made up largely of women and children, was entertained for two hours and a half in a most enjoyable manner. The ponies performed some wonderful tricks under the direction of Professor Heiker. The dogs and monkeys under the direction of Prof. Hunt, of Iowa, are the greatest troupe that has been seen for many days, and Prof. Letell's troupe of goats do some wonderful and amusing work. They also have four of the funniest of all funny clowns. Put it all together it is the most amusing and instructive show that has ever been through the country. This show will be in The Dalles on Thursday, Aug. 1st. Don't forget the date.

This is the way Editor Young of the Henderson Herald writes interesting locals for his subscribers: "Bill Walker, who resided in these parts and who owes the Herald three years on subscription, was visiting here last week."

The unprecedented run of fish at Astoria is beginning to be felt up this way. One of Seufert Brother's wheels last night caught three tons of salmon, and Henry Laurenzen caught 1200 pounds in his trap on the Washington side of the river opposite Crates' Point.

Some curious crank has reared up on his hind feet and asked, "What does the democratic party stand for?" And the North Carolina Yellow Jacket answers, "Because it is tired running for nothing."

Alfred Prinz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Prinz of this city, was operated upon at The Dalles Hospital this forenoon, by Doctors E. E. Ferguson and H. Logan, for appendicitis. The operation was immediately successful.

Do you want a good home? Dad Butts has for sale a nine-room, hard-finished house, with a snug little barn, situated on two good lots on Ninth street. This property must be sold, if half-giving it away will do it. See Dad Butts. jly31-2t

A Delaware man who deserted his wife five years ago returned the other day and said he went away "just to have a joke on her." A few moments later the woman sprung a much richer joke on him by introducing her newer husband.

The republican party of today has no use for and no confidence in the common people.—St. Louis Republic. Strange, isn't it? The republican party is the party of the majority. Is the majority composed of the uncommon people?—N. Y. Sun.

The Junction Times correctly says: The religious debate at Elmira resulted in a draw. We have never known a debate of this kind to result in good. But on the contrary bad feeling is engendered and the common cause of God and humanity is lost in the strife, while the non-believer smiles with great laughter.

This may be called an era of high prices—that is, good prices that are profitable to all. And yet there is no complaint. Americans have learned that cheapness and little or nothing to buy with, because we get so little for what we have to sell, most of which is labor, cannot compare with good profits and plenty to buy with.

President Moehler, of the O. R. & N. Co., showed himself to be a public spirited and wide awake business man when he offered every courtesy possible on behalf of the O. R. & N. to the visiting congressional rivers and harbors committee. Mr. Moehler sees that the opening of the Columbia and Snake rivers will have a tendency to increase the business of the O. R. & N. and the public in general.

No matter how dull business is; no matter whether there is any news or not; no matter if all the people who make news have gone on their summer outing a hundred miles away; no matter if there is nobody and nothing left to make news, the editor must get out a paper and the dear people who read it must kick because "there's really nothing in it."

The New York "World" speaks of the democratic party as being in a "dismal and disheartened plight." The fact that during Cleveland's administration its policies drove thousands of poor women and children to the pangs of hunger and want has perhaps given it "congestion of the conscience." We are glad to know that it is repenting. Turn, sinners, turn.

Frank R. Wetherbee, Prof. Burden and several other Eugene men last week went to the top of one of the Three Sisters, says the Albany Democrat. On coming down, Maurice Schwartzchild slipped 200 feet and would have gone down a precipice but fortunately struck against a piece of lava and was held. This was the earliest trip yet made to the top of the mountain.

The policy pursued by the congressional committee on rivers and harbors in spending their vacation in visiting and acquainting themselves with the needs of the rivers and harbors of the Pacific coast is worthy of approval by all citizens who have an interest in the welfare of this coast. We hope the result will be the opening of the Columbia and Snake rivers for navigation.

Pat Conroy, who made a handsome little fortune in a few years out in the Mitchell country in the sheep business, and who is still far from being in the "bear and yellow leaf" left this morning for his old home in the south of Ireland, and the gossips have it that he has gone after "the girl he left behind him." Be that as it may, Pat promises to be back in "God's country" in about four months.

It is predicted that the long continued drought and the consequent shortage in the corn crops and in other crops in a wide region east of the Rocky Mountains will result in enhanced prices for all breadstuffs. It will go further than this. It will make a better demand for all the food stuffs raised on the farm. It will result in making a market for all the prunes and dried fruit. It is predicted by one who ought to know that there will be a ready demand for every pound of marketable prunes put up in Oregon. The prices will not be high, but they will be remunerative, and there will be a disposition on the part of growers to sell as soon as the product is ready for shipment.

Among the "Fresh-Air" children who arrived at a farm near Pittsfield, in the Berkshire hills of Massachusetts, one day last summer, was a poor little tot,
