

For Nearly Two Years Unable to Lay in Bed

In my capacity as druggist, in Buffalo, N. Y., I have the best opportunity to judge of the merits of many different remedies. I am in close touch with the sick, who come into my store for medicines, and most of them tell me how they are getting along. Of all the hundreds of preparations which I sell, not a single one begins to give as much satisfaction as Acker's English Remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, Pleurisy and Consumption. I sell it on a distinct guarantee that it will cure, or the purchaser's money will be returned. This is a perfectly safe guarantee, because the remedy does cure. Nobody wants his money returned. Its cures are nothing short of marvelous. Take the case of Mr. A. H. Gilbert, for instance. He lives at No. 2 Carey street, Buffalo, N. Y. For more than three years he had a bad case of asthma, and had been unable to lie down in bed for nearly two years. He came to my store and asked me what to do. I said: "Take Acker's English Remedy." He said he had tried other remedies and didn't think this would help him. But he thinks differently now. Three bottles fixed his asthma all right. He could sleep and eat after taking them, as well as when a boy. He was cured several months ago, and is well yet, so I am certain his trouble is gone for good. You can write to Mr. Gilbert himself, if you doubt my word. He will go further than me in praising Acker's English Remedy." (Signed) S. B. THORNTON, druggist, Buffalo, N. Y.

Sold at 25c., 50c. and $1 a bottle, throughout the United States and Canada; and in England, at 1s., 2s., 3s., 4s., 6d. If you are not satisfied after buying, return the bottle to your druggist, and get your money back.

We authorize the above guarantee. W. H. HOOKER & CO., Proprietors, New York.

AIRY MUSLINS.

Charming and Delicate Fabrics for Wear During the Warm Weather.

The coming will certainly be a muslin-clad summer. Printed Swiss muslins divide favor with organdies. The former have spotted grounds; the latter striped or plain, says a fashion authority.

Those with plain ground are, perhaps, the most dressy of the two. Stylish organdies have a scroll pattern consisting of roses or other large or enlarged flowers on one side only, intended as a border for the edge of the skirt.

Undeniably charming and delicate, characterized by the filmy, graceful, clinging qualities so much sought for this season, are the embroidered lawns and light cotton veilings that bear the name of Lalla Rookhs. These that are not embroidered are printed in bouquets of shadowy flowers.

A new applique lace will be used to trim the muslins this summer after the manner of the French gowns. Its foundation is a coarse cream cotton net of Fedora or Brussels weave. On the net is applied, in wreaths, garlands or bouquets, a design of flowers cut from printed lawn or organdie. Sometimes a few stitches of embroidery are added here and there or a scrap of lace is woven in to complete a desired effect.

Women who are clever with the embroidery needle can themselves make flounces, panels, revers or sleeves by cutting out the roses, fuchsias, poppies or pompadour baskets from a yard or two of muslin, and, by the aid of fine stitching, distribute them on white cotton point d'esprit. It is a very fragile decoration, this princess lace, but it is novel and fashionable.

Among the most striking piques, one style produced in all the fashionable colors, is woven in line or broad stripes; the other, white, has a handsome openwork pattern woven in it.

SHE RUNS RIVER PACKETS.

Missouri Woman Who is the Only One of Her Sex in the Business.

At La Grange, Mo., an important landing for steamboats on the Mississippi river, Miss Lena Bohon is the duly accredited agent of a packet company and discharges all the duties of the office to the satisfaction of all concerned. She enjoys the unique distinction of being the only member of her sex to fill such a position, either in this or any other country, and is proud of the fact, says the Chicago Chronicle.

It is only recently that it has been possible for a woman to successfully discharge the duties of such an office. Years ago the steamboat agent was a man. He had to be, because he had to hustle aboard arriving steamers and then hustle off as the gang-plank was being hauled in. Then he had frequently to mingle with the roughest.

But there are not as many steamboats now as there used to be, and the business isn't done in the same way. This may, in part, account for Miss Lena Bohon's position. She was appointed in 1895 after the death of her father, who had been the agent of the Diamond Joe line for 40 years. She is now agent for five steamers, three plying between St. Louis and St. Paul and two between Keokuk and Quincy.

Miss Bohon has no assistant. She is always ready for duty at the old-fashioned wharfhouse. When steamboats at night announce their approach Miss Bohon, who lives with her mother five blocks away, hastily dresses, picks up her lantern and hurries to the landing place. If she desires the steamer to stop she flashes her lantern in a certain way.

Officials of the packet companies aver that she is one of the most faithful, accurate and capable agents in their employ. She sells tickets, makes out freight bills and receipts, collects weekly accounts with the merchants and other shippers and checks off every bale of hay, bushel of wheat or tub of butter that goes on board a boat. She oversees personally the receiving and discharging of freight.

At the age of 15 the affairs of the office could be safely entrusted to her care during a short absence of her father. She grew up in the atmosphere of this active life and her desire to continue in it is environment is but natural.

Evolution of Corn.

Corn, with its 24 to 32 rows under cultivation, was once but a coarse grass, hiding each seed it produced under a husk, as wheat and oats now do. Brought out to the light and sun, with a chance to get at enough plant food, it has worked its way up to eight rows of seeds, covering these with one husk. The farmer and nature together have added the extra 16 and 24 rows. Nature.

It is easier to keep well than get cured. DeWitt's Little Early Risers taken now and then, will always keep your bowels in perfect order. They never gripe but promote an easy and gentle action. Clarke & Falk's P. O. Pharmacy.

WAR EXPENSES
Great Increase in British Public Debt Has Been Caused.
Enormous Outlay Made Necessary by Continuation of Hostilities in South Africa and No End in Sight.

In the speech of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, in the house of commons on the occasion of the introduction of the new budget there was not very much that bore directly on the cost of the war in South Africa. The tale was told, however, in one clause of one sentence.

The expenditures for the year, he said had been £183,500,000, of which £65,000,000 was on account of the war in South Africa. At the same time he proposed a loan of £60,000,000, made necessary by the war.

This loan, which is now being subscribed, is in addition to the war loan of £30,000,000 issued in 1900. That loan represented less than half of the increase of the British public debt last year due to the conquest of the Boer republics. Its total was very near the £74,000,000 mark, says the New York Sun.

Since the latter part of the seventeenth century Great Britain has never been out of debt. The debt began with a trifling $3,000,000, the result of the revolution which brought the Dutch King William to the English throne. From that time it grew and nearly always on account of war.

At the accession of Queen Anne in 1702 the debt was £16,400,000, and when the first George became king 12 years later the debt had been nearly quadrupled. He paid off a paltry couple of millions, but George II. saw it grow to nearly £140,000,000.

By the beginning of the American war it had been reduced some £10,000,000, but that war sent it climbing to what at that time was the terrifying figure of £250,000,000. For a few years there were successful efforts at reduction, and a total decrease of another £10,000,000 was recorded for the decade.

Then began the disastrously expensive French war, which with a slight intermission called peace continued until the downfall of Napoleon in 1815. During those 23 years the debt grew tremendously, the loans averaging about £29,000,000 a year. In 1816 the British debt had climbed to the colossal figure of £900,435,000. The debt of no other country, except France, has reached such proportions.

After the peace of Paris the British debt took a new course and began to decrease. This course was followed steadily with but two slight interruptions until the outbreak of the war with the Boers. In 1833 the abolition of slavery caused a slight increase, and the Crimean war added about £30,000,000, so that in 1857 the debt stood at about £839,000,000. In the 43 years that followed, up to the outbreak of the present war, the debt was reduced on the average £5,000,000 a year. In 1899, when the war began, it had decreased to £615,000,000.

The war expenses had taken it back well over £700,000,000, or more than three times the net debt of the United States, and there is as yet no sign that the war expenses are about to cease or even to show any material diminution. Great Britain is now spending approximately a million dollars a day on the war with an army in the field of only 250,000 men.

In the civil war, when the federal armies numbered nearly a million, the expense was only approximately double what Great Britain is now spending for one-fourth of that strength.
