Four Times More Water Than Needed.

Mr. Yager, the head miller of the new flouring mills, returned home yesterday from a visit to White River falls. He reports that sixty men are employed on the several works connected with the Wasco Warehouse Milling Company's power plant at that place, and that the work is being rushed with all possible speed so as to have the plant in operation, if possible, not later than October 1st. The power house is expected to be ready for the machinery by the first of September. The flume, with its fall of 135 feet, will be completed about the same date and the dam is expected to be finished by the 15th of August. Measurements of the volume of water in White river at this time, and a comparison of these measurements with those taken some time back, revealed the gratifying fact that since the 4th of July the river has fallen only three-fourths of an inch and only four and a half inches since the first of June.

White river, although a glacier stream, is now clear and bright. Last week, for the first time since the contractors went to work, the water turned milky for part of a day and the river rose half an inch. But the most gratifying fact of all is that by actual measurement the actual volume of water at the falls during this first week in August is four times as much as is needed for the two generators about to be installed. These are of 500 kilowatts each, or nearly equal, combined, to 1400 horse power. Thus, at this time, if these two generators were in use, there would still be in the neighborhood of 4000 horse power running to waste. Of course the river will fall still more between this and the fall rains, but the above figures would indicate that there is still vastly more power in the stream than the Wasco Warehouse Milling Company is liable to use or dispose of to others for years to come.

It remains to be added that the machinery for the flouring mills is on the way from the East, and that a force of millwrights will arrive here next week and go to work on the same.

Strawberry Crop Brings in $85,000.

H. F. Davidson, of the Davidson Fruit Company, and G. J. Geeslin, secretary of the Hood River Fruit Growers' Union have furnished the following facts relative to the 1901 strawberry crop:

"These two shipping concerns this year shipped 32,000 crates of the 40,000 crates of strawberries shipped from Hood River, or four-fifths of the entire crop. They shipped thirty-three straight carloads under refrigeration, and between 15 and 20 cars by express or about 50 cars all told. The cash returns to the growers for their 40,000 crates amounted to about $85,000. A deduction of $25,000 for cost of picking and crates leaves the growers about $60,000 above all expenses something over $150 per acre.

"The output of Hood River strawberries should be gradually increased until we have three or four times as many as we have now. The markets are taking more each year than they did the previous season, and there will be no trouble about the markets increasing with the production. There was no market this year that got all it asked for. Both the Fruit Growers' Union and the Davidson Fruit Co., made several sales of strawberries for shipment to the Klondyke country, and the berries were reported as arriving there in good condition, and selling at $5 per pound box."

Nicaraguan Canal.

It is evident that public sentiment in England is swinging around in favor of having the obstacles cleared out of the Nicaraguan canal. Lord Pauncefoot gave expression to such sentiment in his recent interview in which he gave it as his opinion that a satisfactory treaty would be arranged, and the papers of London are now talking in a very conciliatory manner. They do not see why any special rights of Great Britain's under the old treaty should be permitted to interfere so long as the commerce of all nations is to be treated fairly. They realize that treaties must come to an end when the purposes for which they were negotiated have been subserved and conditions have so changed as to render them obsolete.

With such a feeling prevailing in England there is no reason to doubt that we shall have a new treaty that will meet the requirements of the situation. If English people desire us to build the canal under such conditions as shall be satisfactory to us, their government will not insist on treaty stipulations that we could not accept.

The many friends of Mr. D. M. French will be pleased to learn that his health has steadily improved ever since he went to Seaview two months ago, and is now in a fairly good condition, with a promise of continued improvement.

"I sent away a dollar," she sadly said, "to a party in New York who offered to tell for that amount how to make the guests at summer resorts love your children." "Oh, did you?" her friend asked. "What do you have to do?" "Leave them at home!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

J. W. Hinrichs, of Hood River valley, last week sold his ranch of 180 acres on the East Side to Charles Davis, of Kingsley, for $6,000. Mr. Hinrichs has since purchased the S. P. Shutt country residence and grounds at Frankton, one of the pleasantest suburban retreats in Hood River.

A fisherman from the city who was enjoying great sport fishing telegraphed his wife: "I've got one. Weighs seven pounds. A beauty." He nearly lost his breath when the following reply signed by his wife came back to him. "So have I. Weighs eleven pounds. He isn't a beauty. Looks like you."

Goldendale's Cosmopolitan Club has come to grief and its president is under bonds of $200 to answer before the superior court for selling intoxicating liquors without a license. The Cosmopolitan Club is a very thinly disguised scheme to run a saloon in a "dry" town. Its ostensible object is educational and social. Its real object is whiskey and plenty of it.

The farmers in some districts in Wasco county report that prairie chickens have greatly increased in numbers since the law afforded them protection and especially since the coyotes, which are very destructive of the young birds, have been thinned out under the incentive of the scalp bounty law.

The committees that have been soliciting subscriptions for the coming fair have made most gratifying progress during the past three or four days. They have received pledges amounting to about $4,500, and have hopes of receiving enough more to insure the financial success of the undertaking.

Yesterday being the first day of the season for prairie chickens a number of sportsmen went out to the Lower Fifteen-Mile district and returned before noon with well filled game bags. Among the number was Mr. Crosby, of the Blakeley drug store, who lost, probably through overheating, an Irish setter which he valued very highly.

The Whitney dog and pony show that exhibited here last night, is stranded and unable to leave town for Hood River, where it was due tonight, for want of funds. Several plans were suggested today for the settlement of its affairs but none materialized and no settlement is likely to be effected till tomorrow, and possibly none even then. The managers of the show have the sympathy of many of The Dalles people as it was really very far from being a fake affair as one might judge from its untimely collapse.

Walt Henderson, of Kingsley, came into town today and reported that a threshing party had just finished a field of twenty-one acres of fall barley on the old Jack McMullen place—a farm that has been cropped for over thirty years, and that some people claimed, a few years ago, before Pat Bolton's boys bought it, that it wouldn't grow rye—and the twenty-one acres had yielded 1400 bushels, or nearly 60½ bushels to the acre. When asked how the wheat was looking, Walt's answer was: "Wheat just couldn't be better than it is."

We see by a letter from Henry E. Dosch, in the Oregonian, that more Oregon fruit is wanted at the Pan-American exposition. So far as this district is concerned there is plenty of fruit that might be shipped, but the question will naturally occur to the grower or shipper, who is going to pay the express charges of 6 cents a pound? The express company will not receive a pound of fruit for shipment unless the charges are paid in advance. When Mr. Dosch knows, or recalls to memory if he ever knew, that the shipping of a little 100-pound box of fruit costs the shipper an outlay of $6 cash money in advance, he will not be surprised that he isn't getting much fruit from this section.

"Every expensive looking Panama hat," remarks The Philadelphia Record, "hasn't cost its owner the small fortune that its appearance would seem to indicate. There are a lot of young men wearing hats that would cost $25 or $30 apiece in the store, which were really purchased at an outlay of not more than $7. They have been especially imported in the rough. One large business house with headquarters in this city has branch offices all over the world. There is one down in Venezuela, and when the Panama hat had come in vogue this summer a lot of men in the home office clubbed together and instructed the Venezuelan agent to ship to Philadelphia a consignment of hats. Buying them in the quantity desired, they cost each man $5. When they arrived they were in the original state, but for $2 a local hatter will block them into any desired shape and put the finishing touches to them."

Pointed Paragraphs.

Another Viking Ship Found.

Another Viking ship, or rather boat, has been unearthed near Kiel, but this new discovery cannot compare in dimensions with the finest specimen of its kind, which may be seen by tourists at the museum in Christiania. In fact, this clinker built Viking vessel, which is about the size of one of our modern fishing boats, is perhaps the most interesting thing to be seen in all Norway. Those who see it will realize for the first time why "star-board," or "steer-board," is applied to the right side of a vessel, as the helm protruded from this side, and not from the stern, which is practically the same as the bow. There is a popular impression that "Viking" is etymologically synonymous with "Sea-King"—but this is erroneous. The word is not "Vi-king," but "Vik-king," or "bay-man"—"Vik" meaning "sea inlet," or "bay." Its counterpart is found in such English place names as Warwick, Wick in the Orkneys, and elsewhere.—London Chronicle.

First Public Pianist.

Of all the myriads who play the piano, how many know that "Tom Bowling" Dibdin was the first man who played the instrument in public? That was in 1767, and the feat was performed at the first night of "The Beggar's Opera." Even the piano was not regarded as a solo instrument, for that privilege was still reserved for the harpsichord.—Invention.
