A TRUE FISH STORY.

The Times-Mountaineer Gets a Scoop on The Chronicle.

There is not a man in the country more fond of trout than Brother Gourlay of THE CHRONICLE. He fairly dotes on them. He would walk a mile any time to get a nice fresh trout and when he fails to get an anticipated mess of his favorite fish he is sorely disappointed and refuses to be comforted. The other day Charlie Phillips, he who runs a store way up on the hill, went fishing and before starting promised Brother Gourlay a mess of fish on his return. One day while seated at his desk writing an editorial, that fairly burned with republicanism (it was naturally a hot day) the telephone rang, and the man at the other end of the line said: "Is this you Gourlay? "Yes," was the answer returned by the man with the fish appetite, and he thought he heard Charlie Phillips say "Send the boy up for those fish." Not much would he entrust the office boy with so precious a package; he would go for them himself, get the fish and order them for his dinner. So out he sallied into the blistering sun's rays, puffed up the hill, and arrived at the store, ten blocks from the office, all out of breath and with the perspiration streaming off his brow, nevertheless all expectant and fairly tasting the toothsome trout. On entering the store he inquired for Charlie but was informed that he had not returned from his fishing trip. Then where were the fish. There were none in the store. Had nobody telephoned him to come and get the fish? No. Somewhat crestfallen he went back down the hill more slowly than he had ascended, moralizing to himself on the degeneracy of anybody who would play so cruel a joke on him. During the afternoon the phone rang again. Mr. Gourlay thought he heard the voice of the morning say "Send up up for those fish." This was rather irritating especially on a hot day. He got warm all over and telephoned back, "Condemn the fish, you don't play any more pranks on me; I'm on to your game." Then came the response from Dave Vause's store: "Fish, what about fish? We don't know anything about fish. We want you to send up for the paste you ordered this morning." Light at last dawned on the editor, and after relieving his conscience by uttering some expressions that would not sound well in Sunday school he sent for the paste.

WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

The regular monthly council meeting will be held tonight.

Fresh shipment of crawfish just received at C. J. Stubling's and now on tap.

On account of the 3rd coming on Saturday, collections will be made on Monday this month.

Don't complain of the heat. After all we haven't had very little hot weather; not worth mentioning compared with other towns.

The family of Mrs. A. Schooling moved yesterday into the Gourlay house, recently occupied by Rev. D. V. Poling. The Dufur house adjoining it is now occupied by Mr. F. T. Sampson and family.

From the number of dog and pony shows which are on the road this season, it would seem that the actors have all "gone to the dogs." Certain it is that The Dalles has had a surfeit of such performances.

The dog and pony show people are still "wid us" and from what we can learn are not likely to desert us in the near future. It is purely a case of strand, with no very favorable outlook for a "move on."

The citizens of Sherman county are organizing a County Horse Fair Association which will hold a fair at Wasco about the 26th of October. The principal object of the association is to encourage the breeding of good horses of all kinds.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Dufur, who have been visiting with relatives in Dufur and vicinity for the past two weeks, returned to The Dalles yesterday. Mr. Dufur and family will go to Southern Oregon next week and will make their home at Gold Hill, where Mr. Dufur has made arrangements to open a law office.

A. Anderson has contracted with F. H. Wakefield to put a frame cottage on the lot east of the Joles' residence on Fulton street. The building is to be completed in sixty days. Mr. Anderson has also contracted for the erection of a two story residence for M. Randall on the site of Mr. Crandall's present residence.

His friends are sorry to learn that Alfred Prinz, upon whom an operation for appendicitis was performed a few days since, is in a very dangerous condition today, his physician having small hope of his recovery. Alfred was a former employe of this office, and a favorite with all, and we hope to report him better in our next issue.

Letters received by friends from Miss Kathryn Sargent, who with her grandparents visited the Pan-American exposition inform them that she has been quite ill, caused by the intense heat in New York. She was, however, improving and they expected to start for home soon, visiting with relations in Wisconsin on the return trip.

The philosophic editor of the Moro Observer moralizes thusly: "Help a dog out of the ditch and no matter what kind of a dog he is, he will wag his tail to paralysis and exhaust every muscle, trying to tell you that every drop of blood in him is at your command. Help a man out and what follows depends very much on his breed. The more we study this subject the better we like the dog."

John Carey has let the contract to Charles Johnson for the erection of a two story iron-clad building on the lot immediately east of the Sexton & Walther store on Second street, and work has already commenced on the foundation. The building will be 50 by 70 feet, with two stores on the main floor and offices overhead. The contract calls for its completion by September 10th. The plans for the building were made by A. Anderson.

A special telegram received by THE CHRONICLE this afternoon from Baker City is to the effect that an attempt was made this morning to rob Godfrey and Tabor, of the Red Boy mine, of their monthly clean-up, aggregating $30,000. The men were on their way between Sumpter and Granite when three masked men held them up, but to no avail, as the bullion was in another buggy occupied by Godfrey's brother and his wife.

While Dalles people are mourning over the necessity of removing the poplar trees, which have added so much to the appearance of the city, the residents of other cities are in the same box. At a meeting of the council committee on sewers yesterday in Portland it was recommended that an ordinance be passed to girdle every poplar tree, and thus destroy them, and as there seems to be no objection to such a move they are no doubt doomed.

Mr. W. J. Davidson brought to this office this afternoon a High school class pin of '97, which he found on the streets of the city three years ago. As the pin was somewhat disfigured he paid little attention, supposing it to be of no value, and threw it aside with some discarded trinkets. Looking them over yesterday he discovered the letters D. H. S. and deciding it was still of value to the graduate who lost it so long ago, brought it in town with him today. Should the owner chance to see this article he may secure the pin by calling at this office and paying for the advertising.

The party consisting of Mrs. Norsworthy, Mrs. Alice Sheldon, Mrs. A. Thornbury, Misses Evelyn Newman and Anna Taylor, Dr. H. A. Sturdevant, Rev. Lake and Girvin Peters, which left for Cloud Cap Inn Thursday, returned on the noon train today having had a most delightful trip. The party was in honor of Mrs. Norsworthy, who is the guest of her brother, J. T. Peters. We understand the gentlemen of the party climbed Mt. Hood and we expect a report of the climb when the fatigue of the trip has been overcome.

Two fires in the short space of thirteen hours is an unusual record. Last night, at about eight o'clock, the wood box in the kitchen of J. W. Moore, on Tenth street, in some unknown way caught fire and before the flames were extinguished two rooms were damaged to an extent of probably $50. The fire was extinguished without the calling out of the fire department. This morning at 9 o'clock a fire occurred in the roof of the kitchen of the same building, resulting in a loss of about $100. The fire ladders responded promptly to the alarm but before they reached the building the fire had been extinguished. The building is fully insured.
