MRS. MARGARET FLINN.

A Brief Resume of Her Life and Character—Died August 7th.

Mrs. Margaret Flinn, who died in this city August 7th, and was buried this morning from the Catholic church, was born in County Meath, Ireland, eighty-one years ago. She came to America about fifty years ago and lived for a number of years in Auburn, New York, and at Elba, Wisconsin. For the past twenty-one years she has been a resident of The Dalles, but during sixteen years of that time she has been a constant but patient sufferer having received a fracture of the hip from which she never recovered. About a year and a half ago she was afflicted with grippe, leaving her with severe rheumatism and other complications, which eventually caused her death.

Mrs. Flinn was the mother of eight children and was left a widow when they were very small. In the trial which comes to a mother left with the responsibility of rearing a family of that size she proved her unselfish, loving character and her devout christianity, being a member of the Catholic church and relying on its teachings for her strength and comfort. Thus she was beloved by all who value the nobility of such characters. She will be greatly missed by her children who have proved their devotion by the tender care given during her years of helplessness.

She leaves the following children to mourn her loss: Dr. M. Flinn, of Portland; Dr. W. Flinn, of Redwood Falls, Minn.; P. H. Flinn, of The Dalles; Mrs. Mary Townley and Mrs. Julia Johnson, of Wisconsin; and Misses Anna Flinn and Maggie Flinn, of The Dalles.

Few women have the proud distinction to count among their descendants five medical men—two sons, Dr. M. A. Flinn and Dr. W. Flinn; two grandsons, Dr. A. Johnson, of Portland, and Dr. G. Johnson, of Cleveland, Ohio, and a nephew, Dr. Boyle, of Auburn, N. Y. They inherited their love of medicine, as their uncle, Dr. Dalton, of Trim, Ireland, was a very eminent physician and Mrs. Flinn herself was very skillful in medicines.

An Unjust Criticism.

A few days since the Telegram of Portland contained the following article which, having investigated, we brand as a falsehood and an unjust accusation against Wasco county: It says:

Mrs. Cordelia Moore, the crippled aged woman whom the authorities of The Dalles shipped down to Portland to be taken care of, her son being unable to longer care for her, has found a good friend in this city. Through the city board of charities, which took charge of the matter, Mrs. Moore was brought to the attention of a good and charitably inclined rich woman, who donated money for the rheumatic cripple to take treatment at a private sanitarium. The case was one deserving of unusual attention, though what would have become of Mrs. Moore had it not been for the interest taken in her by a charitable person it is sad to think. Mrs. Moore, it will be remembered, was found in a lodging house near Front and Madison streets, helpless and penniless. It would have been just, Secretary Walpole, of the C. B. C., to send her back to The Dalles, from whence she came, but, this was, after all, not human. The woman is now recovered sufficiently to be able to get up, and she may be permanently bettered. What is to become of her and who will take care of her is a question, if she is unable to work. She was refused admission at the county hospital.

The facts in the matter, which we obtain from the county judge, are as follows: Mrs. Moore (or Mrs. Baise as she is known here) came to The Dalles eight or ten years ago from Killekitat county, where she had been kept at the expense of the county, and since that time has been supported by Wasco county. After constantly helping her for years a complaint was made to Judge Blakeley that she was keeping a disreputable place near the garrison. He at once told her the county would withdraw its aid unless she would consent to being an inmate of the poor house, which she did about a year since. Three months ago she wrote the judge saying her son at Hood River would support her if she could be sent there, and thither she went of her own sweet will and not by any compulsion from Wasco county. Nothing further was heard from her till a few days ago when word was received that she was in Portland—also of her own free will.

Now, Wasco county feels that the Telegram has accused it wrongfully. If there is a county in the state (or a place the size of The Dalles in it) that has done any more for its poor than this county has done let them come forward and assert themselves. Forbearance sometimes ceases to be a virtue and the temptation is great to turn them over to a city so anxious to do (as well as publish what it is doing) as Portland, but we have refrained. All we ask is that no false statement, be made concerning us.

Valise Lost.

A few days since a valise, containing valuable government papers, was taken (probably through mistake) from our wagon at the railroad camp on the mission grounds below town. As these papers cannot be replaced without great expense and delay, the party who took them will confer a favor on us by leaving them at THE CHRONICLE office or returning them to us through the post-office. E. E. Lytle is out south somewhere, probably fishing during the heated period. His son Willie has gone to work in the auditor's office in Portland, where he will blossom into an expert railroad man under the able guidance of Old Bachelor DeYoe.—Leader.

W. S. Thomas, superintendent of the Oregon King mine, arrived in the city today for the purpose of making arrangements with the owners of the Golden Eagle Mining Company to go up to that mine and assay and assort their ores. He will leave for that place tonight.

It's pretty hard lines to be compelled to close the windows and doors tightly each night as we have been "enjoying." But it would seem necessary from the experience of our neighbors. From all indications these petty thieves are of local origin and the more difficult to deal with.

Mine hosts McCully and McAdam are now in their new house. Both gentlemen say it has been so long since they really had a home that it really makes them feel like boys once more.—Shaniko Leader. Who had thought two such "promising" young men would settle down to bachelorhood.

Rev. J. W. Bashford, president of the Wesleyan University, of Ohio, took a trip up to The Dalles Tuesday. He said that he had traveled over a considerable portion of the globe, but the scenery of the Columbia excelled anything he had ever witnessed. He left yesterday for his home by way of Yellowstone Park.—Oregonian.

In the U. S. circuit court for the district of Oregon this morning Judge Bellinger set aside the verdict in the case of Brown and Maddox against the Oregon King Mining Company and granted the defendant a new trial. This case involved the ownership of the Silver King mine in Crook county and was tried in the same court two months ago today when the verdict was in favor of plaintiffs.

Land on the beach seems to be in demand these days, several applications being made recently to the council for portions of it. It would be a relief to residents of the city who believe in cleanliness in every portion of the town if every foot of the beach were used for purposes other than a dumping place for all sorts of garbage. There should be some more remote place for such a dumping ground.

Prof. M. L. Miller, of the University of Chicago, now with the field Columbian Museum of that city, is in the West doing field work in anthropology and ethnology. He arrived here yesterday and a number of our residents, prominent among whom is S. L. Brooks, will make an effort to pilot the professor about and show him all that is to be seen and learned about this portion of the West, which is abounding in relics.

Frank Gabe!, Harvey A. Stordevant and Henry W. French filed articles of incorporation with the County Clerk today of the Oak Grove Sheep Company, duration unlimited. The business is to buy, raise, manage and deal in sheep and all other kinds of live stock; also to buy, own, operate and deal in farm lands and all other kinds of real estate; borrow money, issue negotiable securities therefor. Place of business, Oak Grove. Capital stock is divided into 500 shares of $100 each.

W. Lord, F. L. Hurburt, D. J. Harris and A. E. Hammond filed articles of incorporation this morning with the County Clerk to be known as the Cline Falls Power Co., duration perpetual. The object of the corporation is to use, sell, lease or otherwise dispose of the power generated by the said electric plants for any or all legitimate purposes whatever. The falls are situated in the Deechtes river, and the office of the company, Shaniko. Capital stock of the company is $50,000.

Last Sunday Mrs. Miller, of East Pendleton, set an example which it would not be a bad idea for the residents along Mill Creek in the West End, to follow. Certainly it has come to the pass when some measures should be taken to either prohibit bathing in that vicinity or the creatures who call themselves men should be made to bathe in appropriate regalia, as the residents complain they do not. The lady referred to lived near a Pendleton bathing resort, and after warning them in vain she decided that the time had come for her to act, and securing a revolver she waited her opportunity, and reports relate that it is safe to say that not a young man who was in the crowd will again appear in that pool unless garbed in a bathing suit.

Mr. Ed. G. Patterson of Seattle and Miss Clara Lucille Churchill of Salem were married on Sunday, August 4, at 7 p. m., at the residence of Rev. John F. Dason, in Seattle, Washington. They left at midnight for a ten days' trip among the San Juan Islands. They will be at home to their many friends after August 20, at No. 1628 Terry Avenue, Seattle. Mr. Patterson will be remembered as being in the employ of Gray Bros. for a number of years. Miss Churchill is a native daughter of Salem, and a popular young lady. The many friends of the happy young couple will join the Statesman in extending hearty congratulations.—Salem Statesman. Edward, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Patterson of this city, we still claim as a Dalles boy and join with the Salem paper in all sorts of good wishes and congratulations. He now holds a splendid position with Schwabacher Bros. of Seattle.
