WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Prof. Homer de Morrison, the celebrated palmist and occultist, is at the European House, for one week only.

A subscriber of THE CHRONICLE asks what's the matter with the ordinances prohibiting riding bicycles at night without a light and riding on the sidewalks at any time.

The Long Hollow school district, No. 30, will open the fall term on September 30th with Miss Dona Nielson, of The Dalles, teacher. A term of four months will be taught.—Dispatch.

Early crawford peaches are ripening fast now and some beauties are brought into market. There will be a good crop of this variety this year, Dry Hollow promising better than Mill Creek.

Rev. Burton, the evangelist, failing to arrive, there will be no services in the Christian church tomorrow as announced. It is now uncertain as to when Mr. Burton can reach the city.

In the neighborhood of 1300 people left Portland yesterday morning for the Elks carnival at Tacoma. While the Elks of this city sent no delegation, The Dalles had a small representation on board the train.

The Brown-Driscoll Symphony Orchestra will furnish music on board the Bailey Gatzert and while at the dock they will be pleased to have the citizens of The Dalles and vicinity visit the boat and enjoy the music tomorrow.

At the request held over the body of Victor Peterson yesterday in Portland no signs of foul play were discovered. The physician who examined the body giving his opinion that the bruises on the body were made after death.

There are six prisoners in the county jail, two are held to the grand jury or district attorney for crimes committed in this county, and two U. S. prisoners, one sentenced to six months' imprisonment and $100 fine for selling liquor to Indians, and the other 60 days and $100 fine for a similar offense. Both were sentenced by Judge Bellinger of the United States District Court.

A dispatch from Stevenson to the Oregonian says that there are several cases of smallpox at Cascade Locks, and that no precaution is being taken to prevent its spreading. Although it is of a mild type, Cascades should bestir herself and take some measure to get rid of it. If the little town cares nothing for her own residents, we do for our people who are camping there.

Another delegation of campers left this morning for Collins, which has become the famous camping place along the river, and the springs a very formidable rival of St. Martin's. The water is said to be the same as at the latter resort, and the company who have leased Collins have put in improvements that make it a very desirable place for invalids, as well as those who go for an outing.

This morning Rev. D. V. Poling received a telephone message informing him of the death of a very intimate friend, Louis Love, who died at the home of his mother in Portland yesterday. Mr. Poling will leave on the early morning train for that city to conduct the funeral services, which will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. As before mentioned there will be no services tomorrow at the Congregational church in this city.

We have been informed several times today that our forecast of last evening failed to materialize, that neither the frost nor snow showed up. Well, we are not to blame; all we can do is to order weather and if it fails to appear we're not much further off than some of our weather observers. However, today we'll tell you what the Portland observer says; that is fair for today and tomorrow. For our part we'll order a thunder storm. The maximum today was 85, quite a pleasing drop.

The following received certificates as the results of the examination held Aug. 14th, 15th, 16th and 17th: First grade, Elva J. Smith, J. M. O'Brien, Minnie Schengel, Cora L. Copple, Ida Bell, Edward H. Hartwig; second grade, Alice M. Dodds, Content B. Elton, Lorne Bridges, Ruth M. Dutton, D. G.

Gunnell, Grace Gamber, Ola Norman; third grade, Lexie Strahan, Ortha Waters, Maggie Kelly, Vernon W. Cooke. Arvilla Poor received a second grade standing, but was under 18 years of age and could not receive a certificate for that grade under our statute.

Like the rest of common ordinary mortals newspapers are far from infallible, a fact that is brought to our attention probably oftener than to any other class of people. Our latest error was one of yesterday where we stated that the close season for grouse lasted until October 1st, whereas we should have placed the date at August 1st. We make this correction that our game warden (who is endeavoring to do his duty in the matter) may be exempt from any blame which might attach to him from a mistake in dates. He informs us there has been no violation of the law that he is aware of.

A gentleman arrived in The Dalles some days since looking for 500 men to work on the Vancouver-Yakima road. We hardly think he succeeded in getting them here, as calls from all sides have been made ere this. Any man who wants to work nowadays can do so, and at good wages too. In the neighborhood of a thousand men are now employed by the O. R. & N. Company straightening the road between this place and Rowena. It is a busy scene down the line and The Dalles merchants are reaping benefit thereby, as supplies are constantly being hauled from this city to the various camps.

After explaining, warning, entreating and threatening water consumers against irrigating out of hours, Supt. Crossen concludes that this is the limit of the season when patience is a virtue, and from now on the most stringent measures will be adopted to protect the water supply of the city, and in thus doing protect the city against fires. This is no joke either and from this time forth rich and poor, learned and unlearned, saint (for some of the offenders claim to be) and sinner—all will be dealt with alike and the slightest deviation from the rule will be subject to a fine of $1, water to be turned off until fine is paid. 'Tis strange that citizens, who are perfectly honorable in every other regard, seem to think this an exception to the rule and proceed to "steal" like any common horse thief. This is not a question wherein Mr. Crossen is concerned for his personal benefit; but the city's welfare is concerned, and consumers should look at it from that point of view.

The Carnival and Fair.

Contrary to the usual order of things a large number of subscribers to the carnival fund were present at the club rooms last night and the question of carnival and fair was thoroughly discussed. It is to be a double header this time, the carnival and street fair and district fair being held at the same time. The first thing done at the meeting was to authorize the executive committee composed of E. C. Pease, L. E. Crowe, Ed M. Williams, H. J. Maier, J. C. Hostettler, Chas. Michelbach and J. S. Fish, to proceed with the carnival.

Officers previously elected are: President, E. C. Pease; vice-president, H. J. Maier; treasurer, J. C. Hostettler; secretary, J. S. Fish; assistant secretary, N. H. Gates. General superintendent of the carnival and street fair, C. J. Crandall; president of fair, Robert Mays; vice-president, E. C. Pease; secretary, W. W. Williams; treasurer, J. S. Fish.

The name of the affair is enough to kill it, but with such men mentioned as prime movers, it will, on the contrary, flourish and be a splendid success. It is to be called The Dalles Carnival and Second Eastern Oregon District Agricultural Society. The district fair will convene from October 1st to 5th inclusive and the carnival and street fair from Sept. 31st to Oct. 5th.

The committee is already in correspondence with various attractions with a view to securing them.

A Narrow Escape.

The Yaquina Bay News has the following concerning the narrow escape of a young lady well known in The Dalles, Miss Ethel Nottingham having attended school here last winter:

Sunday afternoon County Judge John H. Scott, of Salem, and Miss Nottingham of Portland, strolled by the beach from Nye Creek, and rested on the rocks at Jump Off-Joe. They rested almost too long, and were so busily engaged in admiring the murmuring sea waves that they failed to notice the onrush of the roaring and restless incoming tide. When the rock was almost covered they awoke from their reverie and attempted to make their escape. The maddening waters swept them down and for several minutes they were tossed about by the waves and dashed against the rocks and crags and were almost drowned, when at last they were thrown upon the beach and rescued by the people who were near. Those who witnessed their struggles in the mighty waters were almost certain that they would be drowned, and were unable to extend help. Judge Scott received several bruises on his neck and head, but was able to walk back to the hotel. The young lady escaped uninjured, but badly frightened.

AFTER SIXTY-THREE YEARS

Short Sketch of the Lives of Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Sargent.

In 1838, a young man of 23 years, accompanied by his wife of 22, came by the tedious processes then available, from the Empire state to make their home in the then little known territory of Wisconsin. They located on a tract of land about 10 miles east of the mining village of Mineral Point, and together bravely began the work of making the wilderness bloom, theirs being one of but three habitations in a stretch of ten miles of prairie and wood, the others being those of Joseph Gribble and John Riley.

The young man taught school some during the winters, and faithfully they both labored for fourteen years, bravely meeting the trials and hardships of pioneer life. At the end of that time, owing to low prices for their farm products, they found themselves but little better off than when they came here, and decided to try some other field. Accordingly, in the spring of 1862, they sold their holdings here, and started overland for the distant territory of Oregon. There they renewed the work of a pioneer life, undaunted by past experiences, and it is a pleasure to know that their pluck, perseverance and industry were not unrewarded. Prosperity crowned their efforts, and in a few years they had secured a competence, and with health unimpaired, have since enjoyed the fruits of their enterprise, living comfortably and leisurely at the pleasant little city of The Dalles, Oregon, on the banks of the majestic Columbia river.

Since retiring from activity they have traveled considerably; visited the World's fair at Chicago in 1893; the exposition at Omaha later, and their native state, New York. This year, when they are respectively 85 and 84 years of age, this remarkable couple have again made the trip across the continent, spent two weeks at the Pan-American exposition in Buffalo, and visited at other places, including a brief visit at Mineral Point and a trip in a buggy from here to their old farm and the village of Hollandale and return in one day.

Now, who are they? Why none other than Mr. and Mrs. Isaac N. Sargent. They found but few remaining of the friends and acquaintances they left here 39 years ago. Of the favored few they met were Mrs. William Robinson, of Hollandale, Mrs. Joseph Gribble and Miss Mary Riley, of Waldwick; Mrs. P. E. Phillips, Mr. Samuel Jenkin, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bennett, of this city. Mrs. Sargent is an aunt to Mrs. Isaac Stephenson, of Marinette, and before coming here they had spent two weeks at the home of their millionaire relative. From here they went to visit friends at Waukeeha. They will return home by way of San Francisco. The remarkable mental and physical vigor of this aged couple is a wonder and joy to all their friends.—Tribune, Mineral Point, Wis.
