WAYSIDE GLEANINGS.

Have you seen these beautiful dip belts at The Racket Store?

Professor Sandvig will give a social dance at the Baldwin Saturday night.

When you are looking around for bargains, don't forget The Racket Store.

A fresh supply of Lowrey's chocolates just received at G. C. Blakeley's pharmacy.

We regret to learn that Judge Mays has been suffering for the past few days with a severe attack of neuralgia.

Dr. H. M. Walker has returned to the city and is located in tent at the corner in rear of Mays & Crowe's store.

The warehouses are paying 50 cents for No. 1 wheat today. This is about 3 1/2 cents below the Portland price.

Let it not be forgotten that the vote for the queen of the carnival will close promptly at 9 o'clock tomorrow night.

The Racket Store is getting in new goods and a thousand and one new articles almost weekly. So when you don't see what you want, ask for it.

Wanted—To rent, by ex-State Printer F. C. Baker, an eight or nine room residence of modern appointments. For further particulars apply at Grant's cigar store.

Mrs. Vialla Ross, widow of the late C. E. Ross, has been appointed administratrix of her husband's estate. The estate consists of real and personal property valued at $900.

Secretary C. P. Johnson announces that there will be a meeting of Foresters tonight in the K. of P. hall in connection with which there will be a feast of corn and venison.

T. A. Hudson writes from Portland to say that he will be in The Dalles next Monday to remain two days and he will be pleased to meet any of his clients who desire to see him.

The market has been unquiet almost every day for weeks with fresh arrivals from the Charles Benton place on Mill creek. (They were selling today at Garbary's market at 25 cents a bushel.)
Secretary Williams, of the district fair, says there are at present at the race track west of town about twenty-five head of horses in training and that from the best information available at this time, he is of opinion that fifty to sixty head will be on the grounds during the races. The stable accommodations at the track are large enough for sixty head.

Members of Friendship Lodge, No. 9, K. of P., are requested to meet at their castle hall next Monday evening, Sept. 24th, as the grand chancellor, Hon. W. L. Bradshaw, will make his official visit at that time. A large attendance is desired.

Complaint is made of a number of young hoodlums who disturbed the prayer meeting at the M. E. church last night by tapping on the windows while the meeting was in progress. If these pranks are repeated these young anarchists will get a dose of the punishment they richly deserve.

L. B. Seely, president of the White Collar line of steamers, was here Wednesday in company with Contractor Joe Paquet, looking over the grounds at the Gatsert landing with the view of building a wharf to accommodate the handling of wheat. It is said the company will, in the near future, put a couple of freight boats on The Dalles-Portland route to run during the fall and winter.

The store of Griffin & Butler, of Boyd, was robbed last night of jewelry valued at $100, a number of pocket knives, a rubber-lined coat and a pair of pants. The thieves left behind them a white teacup and a diamond glass cutter. There is no trace of the robbers other than the tracks of two men that were traced going south. Immediately on the receipt of the news of the robbery Sheriff Kelly sent a deputy to Boyd to investigate the matter and if possible arrest the robbers.

The day of President McKinley's funeral was the thirty-seventh anniversary of the battle of Winchester. Three days after this battle, was fought that of Fisher's Hill, and on the 19th of October following was fought the battle of Cedar Creek. William McKinley, then a captain, fought in each of these engagements and for distinguished bravery in them was brevetted major with the name of each battle mentioned in the commission. Mr. W. S. Myers of this city also fought in these battles as a private in a Vermont regiment.

September 21st to 24th, inclusive, are the dates the Salvation Army of The Dalles are preparing to celebrate their annual harvest festival. Some donations have already been received. All others who are interested in alleviating the sufferings of the worthy poor are requested to send articles of various kinds and they can be disposed of. Special meetings will be held as follows: Saturday evening, bringing in the sheaves, Sunday 11 a. m., business meeting; 3 p. m., family gathering; 8 p. m., harvest home. Monday evening, the women social. Tuesday, sale of goods. The admission is free to all these meetings, and everyone is invited to attend.

In addition to the public memorial services held here yesterday afternoon a special service was held at 8:30 a. m. in St. Peter's Catholic church, at which Father Bronsgeest preached a very patriotic and appropriate discourse. In the evening a special service was held in St. Paul's Episcopal church, when Rev. Clarence Lake paid a glowing and tender tribute to the Christian character of the late chief executive. Members of the local lodge of Knights of Pythias attended the latter service in a body. Both services were largely attended.

The three remarks of the late president just after he was shot will go down in history as characteristic of the man, says the Portland Telegram. They are reported as follows: "Cortelyou, my wife! Be careful about her. Don't let her know!" Next the president noticed that the assassin was faring badly at the hands of an indignant and excited crowd, and he said: "Let no one hurt him." Then, still with a philanthropic thought of others not of himself, he said to Mr. Milburn: "I am sorry to have been the cause of trouble to the exposition." In these sentences appear the Christ-like character of the man.

Rev. and Mrs. U. F. Hawk and son, Raymond, left on the 9:20 train last night for Mr. Hawk's new charge at Colfax, Wash. (If further proof than had already been given was necessary to assure the departing pastor of the esteem in which he was held by the church here and their regret at his departure, surely the large number (about thirty) that gathered at the depot to say the parting words, sufficed. As the train drew up to the depot they were heard singing "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder I'll Be There," and as it pulled out all joined in the hymn "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

The case against Will Scott in Justice Brownhill's court was dismissed this morning on motion of District Attorney Menzies. Scott is a colored bootblack who works in one of the local barber shops. Irvin Julian swore out a complaint charging Scott with having beaten his wife. Three witnesses were ready to swear that they saw Scott strike his spouse such a blow as knocked her off the chair on which she was sitting on the back porch and that the woman "howled" as they put it, and then went into the house with Scott following her, where she "howled" some more. Mrs. Scott, while admitting that her husband had "tapped" her on the cheek and that she "howled," said she and her husband were just having a little fun and that the striking and howling were both in pretense only. Seeing that Mrs. Scott would not testify against her husband, Mr. Menzies, who was in court when the complaint was made out, moved that the case be dismissed, and it was so ordered after the justice had admonished the brother not to be so very realistic when he played with his wife in the future.

The Evening Fair and Carnival

Under date of September 19th the Dalles correspondent of the Portland Telegram has this to say of the coming fair and carnival, which opens here on the 20th instant:

"A large force of men are at work on the streets, and work has begun in the construction of the booths and other buildings. One thousand feet of booths will be erected for the exhibits of the merchants. A large building will be erected for the fruit exhibit, which of itself will be a fruit fair, and will no doubt be the largest and best fruit exhibit ever displayed in Oregon. The cereal exhibit and the mining display will both be very large. Quite a large tract has been reserved for the machinery exhibit. The Indian village will be located immediately inside the Midway entrance, and will consist of the tents of the Indians which they were living in when they moved to the Midway.

"Two large buildings will be erected to accommodate the big projectoscope and the attraction called The Lorette. The balance of the Midway shows will be given in large tents.

"The Vogt opera house, which is situated on Third street, and only a few feet from the fence of the street carnival, will have its entrance from the inside of the carnival enclosure, and will be connected by a covered passage-way. In this opera house will be exhibited the fire dance, several exhibitions of which will be given each day.

"It being only ten days more until the street carnival and district fair begin, the 136 persons who compose the officers and committee, besides the army of laborers who are employed in the erection of the buildings and fences, are busy all the day long in perfecting all the arrangements and details of the two big fairs. Nearly all the booth space has been taken, and there will not be an empty place in the whole carnival when it is opened. The city already presents a very lively appearance, and there is no doubt but that thousands will visit the fair and street carnival from the neighboring towns and cities."

Memorial Services.

The memorial services held here yesterday were attended by one of the largest crowds that ever assembled at one time on any occasion in The Dalles. Practically the whole town was present when Mayor Farley stepped to the railing of the stand and announced, in a few well-chosen words, the object of the gathering. The program occupied over two hours, and during all that time the vast mass of people, nearly all of whom were without seats, stood patiently and intently listening to the speakers and joining earnestly in the prayers and music. The vast throng and its marked interest and patience were a fine testimony to the patriotism of the people of The Dalles and the surrounding neighborhood. Many a tear trickled down the cheeks of the listeners as the kindly, homely virtues of the dead president were recounted by the speakers. The gathering was representative of the whole people. The words spoken as tribute to the deceased president were full of pathetic feeling, and their utterance might be taken as the voice of the whole people of The Dalles lamenting a great national catastrophe and expressing opinions on the character and achievements of one of the best types of men this or any other country has ever produced.
