Joseph Sney, a carpenter and a resident of Vancouver, yesterday fell twenty feet from the upper to the lower deck of a new dock at Vancouver, Wash., and was instantly killed. He was partially intoxicated, which was the cause of his falling. Sney was known out in the Kingsley neighborhood, where he worked some time at his trade. Later he worked in The Dalles on the A. M. Williams & Co.'s dry goods building.

A very pleasant and profitable time was had at Monday evening's session of Friendship Lodge, No. 9, K. of P. Grand Chancellor W. L. Bradshaw paid the lodge an official visit, after which the lodge adjourned to the banquet room, where a splendid lunch was served to the Knights and their ladies. After all had partaken of the good things to eat, an informal program was rendered, consisting of songs, speeches, etc.

Sam Newsome, of Prineville, a pioneer resident of Wasco county when it included all the country from the Cascade mountains to the Yellowstone Park, and was assessor of Wasco county when it extended from the Columbia river to the northern boundary of Lake county, was a passenger on this morning's boat for the Valley, in company with his two sons, one of whom goes to the university at Eugene and the other to the state medical college.

Deputy Sheriff Wood returned last night from Salem, whither he took James Miller, of Mosier, who was committed to the insane asylum. Mr. Miller is a pioneer settler and prosperous farmer of the Mosier neighborhood. Just before his commitment to the insane asylum Miller attempted to cut his throat with a pocket knife and came near ending his existence. The cause of his dementia is said to be a sunstroke received during the late heated term last August. Mr. Miller is 76 years of age. He has a wife and grown family.

Mr. F. J. Stadelman and Mrs. May Hix were united in marriage yesterday evening at the residence of the bride on West second street. The wedding was strictly private, only a few of the immediate relatives of the bride and bridegroom being present. Mr. and Mrs. Stadelman left on the morning train to spend a short honeymoon at Portland. They expect to return to The Dalles about the end of the week. The young couple are very highly esteemed by all who know them, and the people of The Dalles with one consent wish them many happy days.

The officials at the county clerk's office are pleased to announce that they have secured a couple who have consented to be the principals in a public wedding on the last day of the coming month. The names of the prospective bride and bridegroom are, for weighty and elegant reasons, withheld for the present from the public. It is a sure thing, however, as the prospective bridegroom lodged his application for the honor at 7 o'clock last night with Deputy Clerk Bolton, and gave his solemn word of honor that he and his bride will be on time at the hour fixed by the wedding committee.

Deputy Sheriff Wood, while at the state asylum yesterday, visited A. E.

Darling, the man who some time ago built the tin snow east of town and launched it on the river with the intention of sailing to San Francisco. Darling is still crazy as a proverbial bad bug and raves all the time for carbolic acid, which, when he was arrested below town, he was using in his yeast mixture to make bread. Mr. Wood also saw Louis Deleo, of Wapinitia, who was recently committed from here. He says Louis is improving physically and perhaps mentally, but recently he made an attempt to clean out the entire institution, and, being a big, powerful fellow, came near doing so.

Coroner's Inquest.

An inquest was held this forenoon at the undertaking parlors of Orandall & Burget on the body of a man who died suddenly at the saloon of Ben Wilson, in the East End, a little before break of day this morning. The testimony of three witnesses showed that the man's name was William Kenna; that he was a pensioner of the government, drawing $16 a month; that he had entered Wilson's saloon this morning about 3 o'clock and asked for a drink of water, which he imbibed greedily; that when he entered the saloon he appeared to be in great distress, as if afflicted with a violent attack of asthma; that the bar keeper of the saloon, alarmed at Kenna's condition, telephoned for Dr. E. E. Ferguson, who promptly responded but was unable to give the man relief, and that he died about half an hour after the doctor's arrival.

According to the testimony of one witness Kenna was employed as a waiter in the Cosmopolitan hotel about the years '81-'2. About three months ago he went to work on the "Brookhouse" farm, where he stayed till a week ago, when he came to The Dalles and got on a drunken spree which continued till his death. Dr. Ferguson testified that the cause of death was cardiac asthma.

Kenna, so far as known, was unmarried. He appeared to be a man bordering on 50 years of age. The verdict in the case was as follows:

"We, the jury impaneled by W. H. Betts, coroner of Wasco county, Oregon, to inquire into the cause of the death of the body now before us, after examining the body and hearing the evidence produced, come to the following conclusions: That the name of the deceased was William Kenna, whose age was about 45 years, and that he was a pensioner of the United States government, and was formerly a private in Company G, Second regiment, United States infantry.

That about the hour of 4 o'clock a. m. September 25, 1901, in the saloon of Ben Wilson, in Dalles City, Wasco county, Oregon, the said William Kenna, then and there being, suddenly came to his death by reason of cardiac asthma, and that no one is to blame for said death.

Dated at Dalles City, Wasco county, Oregon, this 25th day of September, 1901.
