

Style...

The element of style enters more largely every year in the determination of the value of clothing. Without it the best efforts of the retailer are wasted.

PEASE & MAYS' perfect-fitting clothing not only embraces the season's advanced patterns and fabrics but the workmanship,—the merchant-tailor kind is there, the kind that breeds confidence and makes a man look stylish and up-to-date.

Guaranteed all-wool suits from $8.00 to $25.00.

New Stiff Hats,

Smart Looking

Is the woman who comes down the street with a trim-fitting pair of street boots, made on a mannish last. Her tread is firm and solid, because the soles extend and are broad on the bottom. She is indeed a sensible woman. Box call, vici kid, all sizes and widths; some with extension soles and rope stitch, the typical mannish shoes, so stylish and sensible.

Special good values at $2.50, $3, $3.50 and $4.

The weather forecast for today is occasional showers; for tomorrow fair weather.

John Doe paid a fine of $3 in the recorder's court this morning for carrying too long in the company of John Berkeley last night.

James Eckford, a former subject of the British monarchy, was today admitted to American citizenship before Judge Bradshaw.

The management of the street fair and carnival have secured 50,000 admission tickets for the carnival alone, exclusive of those that will be needed for admission to the race track.

A force of men is at work today arranging for placing twenty-two arc lights in the carnival grounds. These ought to make the grounds as light as day, and doubtless will.

Secretary Williams, of the district fair, says if the rain will only let up today or tomorrow till after the fair, The Dalles track will prove the fastest racing track in the Northwest.

All those intending to make exhibits at the coming fair and carnival should apply at once for entry to C. E. Bayard, at his office on the south side of the main entrance to carnival grounds. It is the main entrance to the fair.

From the Goldendale Sentinel we learn that County Treasurer A. J. Aheia recently purchased and took possession of the Central hotel of that city, which was formerly owned by the late Nell McLeod.

C. E. Bayard, assistant secretary of the grand entrance to the carnival grounds, where he is ready to receive entries of everything planned for exhibition at the fair and carnival, will be stock which will be entered by Secretary Williams at the fair ground west of town. Assistant Secretary of the Carnival Ned H. Gates has opened an office beside that of Mr. Bayard.

To make good tea and coffee the water should be taken at the first bubble. Remember, continued boiling causes the water to part with its gases and becomes flat. This is the cause of much bad tea and coffee.—October Ladies Home Journal.

Husband and wife are equal; the one not inferior to the other; the wife not a slave; not a housekeeper—but an equal, a companion. And just so far as a young man starts out with that idea fixed firmly in his mind—to make a companion, a comrade, a chum of his wife—just so far does he start out right.—October Ladies' Home Journal.

Because some opponents of the republican party, and some in it, have seen fit to say something good of McKinley after he is dead, they think their past virulent attacks on the president are blotted out. God pity those whose souls are so awarded by party prejudice, or gangrene by personal animosities that they have no commendation for a pure and noble life until it has passed beyond the reach of all human harm or aid.—Goldendale Sentinel.

A dispute over the question whether you should say "Tomorrow will be Friday" or "Tomorrow is Thursday" is needless, for either expression is allowable. "Tomorrow will be Thursday" means that, looking forward from today as the point of view, the speaker thinks of tomorrow as a future time, and says of it that it "will be" Thursday. "Tomorrow is Thursday" means that, without any reference to today, the speaker thinks of a certain day as "tomorrow," and says of it that it "is" Thursday.—Elizabeth S. Withey, in the October Ladies' Home Journal.

The Wasco Warehousing Milling Company recently ordered from Walla Walla county Washington, a carload of a new kind of seed wheat known as Salt Lake Club, which the Company will dispose of to the farmers of this county. Secretary Yager, of the milling company, informs THE CHRONICLE that Salt Lake Club is the equal of any wheat in the market for milling purposes, while its yield is greater than Blue Stem and the equal of the best. The company will dispose of the carload at about the cost to them laid down here, which will be in the neighborhood of 75 cents a bushel. Parties wanting some of it should communicate with Superintendent J. C. Yager at the mill.

J. D. Whitten, of Kingsley, a noted horse about midnight last night and returned home this morning bringing back with him in a covered carriage young Charlie Hix, son of John Hix, who has been an inmate of The Dalles Hospital for about two months, suffering from the effects of having fallen into the fire while recovering from a nervous attack at his father's home over a year ago. The poor lad has suffered a hundred deaths since the unfortunate occurrence and hopes of his restoration prevailed till a short time ago, when necrosis of the jaw bone set in and his weakened condition rendered an operation impracticable without the certainty of the boy's death while undergoing it. The lad's physicians say that the end is only a question of time. His parents have the profound sympathy of all who know the circumstances of the peculiarly sad occurrence.

Richard Roe, a stranger in these parts, was thrown into the city jail yesterday by Marshal Champlin, on the charge of having robbed the pockets of a drunken companion of the sum of $15. The companion also occupied a cell while he was sobering up, but before that took place the robber broke his way through a wooden door into the marshal's office, and finding the front door open made his escape. He has not been seen since and has, more than likely, skipped the town. Another prisoner who had been booked on a charge of drunkenness escaped in a precisely similar manner the day before.

A Washington correspondent, reporting the last meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution, uses these phrases in various connections: "A harassed and excited body of women," "the proceedings ran riot," "a vast amount of vital energy was expended," "excited and acrimonious debate," "expatriated the presiding officer almost to tears," "acrimonious and disorderly discussion," "a storm of indignant feminine screams and hisses," "the presiding officer chewed gum or candy constantly," "a sharp retort was lost in the uproar of the convulsions," "the bitterest personalities were indulged in," "the greatest general disorder prevailed," "one delegate cried in a shrill voice to another, 'Oh, shut up; you are talking all the time,'" "And yet there is not a doubt in any man's mind but that lovely woman is really still." "Such blandishment" was only taking a holiday.

Notice to Exhibitors.

All parties having pictures to enter or exhibit will please have them on the carnival grounds before noon Saturday if possible. There will be ladies at the booth to receive and care for them.

By order of the committee,
Mrs. E. GLENN, Chairman.

Another Sudden Death.

Yesterday afternoon between 2 and 3 o'clock a housemaid at the Bee Hive lodging house, on entering the room of one of the lodgers to make up the bed, found its occupant cold in death. The name of the deceased was Norman V. James. He was a single man of about 23 years of age, and was a member of the local branch of the Salvation Army. He had come here some months ago from Australia where his family still resides, and had no known relatives in the United States.

The local officers of the Salvation Army have taken charge of the disposal of the remains. They have gone to the expense of telegraphing to the man's father, George James, a banker, or retired banker of Homecroft, North Sydney, announcing the fact of his son's death and asking what disposition they shall make of the remains. Should no answer come before 10 o'clock tomorrow morning the funeral will take place at that time.

From letters found in the pockets of the deceased it is learned that he intended to leave this country for his old home in Sydney, in about three weeks, and was only awaiting a ticket from his father. The young man was well educated. His father had designed him for the British army, but army life was repugnant to him. He had no trade and seems to have had a hard time making a living as he was not strong and manual labor came very hard to him, although he was always more than willing to do his best.

An inquest was held on the remains this morning at the undertaking parlors of William Mitchell, but no facts were elicited that in any way tended to weaken the opinion that the man came to his death from natural causes. Dr. Grossdorfer had examined the body and, without pretending to certainty apart from a post mortem examination, testified that all the circumstances tended to show that death was the result of an epileptic fit. The jury returned the following verdict:

We, the jury impaneled by W. H. Bette, coroner of Wasco county, state of Oregon, to inquire into the cause of the death of the body now before us, after careful consideration of the evidence find as follows:

That the name of the deceased was Norman V. James, residence The Dalles, Wasco county, Oregon.

That in the lodging house of John Cary, in Dalles City, Wasco county, Oregon, on the night of the 24th day of September, 1901, the said Norman V. James, then and there being according to our best belief, suddenly came to his death by reason of an epileptic fit.

That at Dalles City, Wasco county, Oregon, this the 26th day of September, 1901.
