E. H. Moore, of Kaneone, sold a fine span of 7-year-old black geldings to Jeff Dripps, of this city, last evening for $225. They weigh between thirteen and fourteen hundred pounds each and are very stylish.

Jackson Engine Company No. 1, of The Dalles, will meet at the council chambers tomorrow (Saturday) evening at 7:30 o'clock, to make arrangements for attending in a body the carnival parade next Monday. 27c

A Hood River postmaster says the original Indian name of Hood River was Loo-lu-pam-me, and that certain pioneers christened it Dog River, from having to kill their faithful dog for food while in a state of starvation. This latter affirmation is probably just poetry and nothing else.

The Shaniko paper says: "E. Jacobson came up on Saturday's train and left for the interior the same evening. Everyone that saw Jake was forcibly struck with his improved appearance since his marriage, not but what he always was a good looking fellow."

The management of The Dalles carnival and district fair have appointed the Wednesday of the fair as Portland day and special efforts will be put forth to make the day a great success. A big excursion party is expected here from Portland and way towns on that day, when the fares by boat and rail will be reduced to nearly half rates.

At the coming district fair thirty-nine head of thoroughbred Ramboulet bucks and ewes belonging to the Baldwin Sheep & Land Company of Crook county, will be placed on exhibition. These sheep were recently imported by the Hay Creek company from France, where they were selected from a herd belonging to the French government.

Mart Rand is still the boss fisherman, says the Hood River Glacier. Wednesday he caught a rainbow trout, 36 inches long, with a No. 6 fly hook. He was three-quarters of an hour landing the big fish. Mart hasn't the papers for this fish story—no photographer was near, but the veteran fisherman, Sam Koplin, was a witness of the catch.

Dr. Oline, of Prineville, arrived here yesterday afternoon with his famous runner, Barney Barnato, and is camped on the fair grounds west of town. Another noted runner, Phillip Fair, owned by Jim Silvertooth, of Antelope, is also here and will contest for honors with Barney Barnato. The knowing ones say this will be one of the prettiest races of the season.

R. H. Weber, the Dalles nursery man, has a sample peach of the Late Crawford variety at the office of the Pacific Express Company which measures twelve inches in circumference and weighs fourteen ounces. The peach in question had fallen off the tree during the late rains and a squirrel had dug a hole in one side of it, else it is believed it would have weighed a pound.

As an outcome of the assault on the Chinaman at Wasco, Sheriff McGinnis has arrested five men, two named Smith, one Matney, Root and Dutton. The sheriff says the people of Wasco are not in sympathy with the perpetrators of the outrage, and gave him every assistance possible in the discharge of his duty. At the present time it is reported that the unfortunate Chinaman will not live.—Shaniko Leader.

About midnight last night a stranger entered the fruit and candy store of James White, in the East End, just as Mr. White had returned to the store from his customary visit to the midnight passenger train with hot coffee and sandwiches. The stranger asked Mr. White if he had any sandwiches on hand, and the latter replied in the affirmative, eyeing the stranger the while as he followed up his first question by asking: "Are you alone?" As Mr. White again answered in the affirmative the stranger shouted, "Throw up your hands," as he drew a revolver that White thinks was as long as his arm. White's suspicions had prepared him for this result and before the stranger had time to draw a bead on the candy man White fired a revolver right at his head, and the shot came so near ending his career that it knocked the stranger's hat off. Without waiting for a second shot the stranger picked up his hat and took to his heels. White rushed to the door after him and fired a parting shot, without effect, at another man who had been waiting outside and was evidently a partner of White's assailant. White describes the would-be robber as a man of 35 to 40 years of age, of sandy complexion with a sandy beard turned up at the ends. The man wore a light sack coat and a dark colored hat. As usual he got away and no trace of him has been found.

The Dalles Race Track and Grounds.

A visit to the new race track west of town yesterday afternoon was a revelation to the CHRONICLE man, who had not been on the grounds since the opening speed contest of Dalles horses early last summer. A force of carpenters was still at work putting the finishing touches on a commodious pool stand, and the time between this and next Monday will probably be fully occupied by the same force in building hog and sheep pens, in removing the closets from the inclosure within the race track and erecting them on grounds south of the track and at a proper distance back of the grand stand. Besides these a double fence will be built from the entrance gate on the east, so as to make a lane from the entrance gate to the first cross fence, a short distance back of the Mission orchard. This lane will prevent loose stock pasturing in the mission grounds, from getting outside while the fair is in progress.

The entire grounds are well inclosed with a substantial board fence eight feet in height. Stalls have been erected to accommodate forty head of cattle, and as many more stalls will be built as the entries may show to be needed. There are stalls for fifty odd head of horses, and their location and arrangement are all that could be desired. The grand stand looks substantial and comfortable and has capacity for seating 700 persons.

Three wells furnish abundance of good pure water. From one of them a windmill raises the water into a zinc cistern having a capacity of 2200 gallons. From this cistern the water is taken that is used to sprinkle the track. A one-horse power is also attached to the well to raise the water at times when the wind fails to drive the wind mill.

The track is under the special care of Andy Allen, who has put it in the finest possible condition and only asks that Jupiter Pluvius shall not be too liberal with libations that have hitherto served to assist him materially in his work. The absence of rain from this time until the end of next week, as Secretary Williams puts it, would make the track the shortest in the Northwest. The track and grounds, as well as the cattle and horse stalls, are a vast improvement on the old ones in Hammon's Addition. They are, in point of fact, something that The Dalles has a right to be proud of and for which the chief credit is due to the Gentlemen's Driving Association, through whose energy and liberality, supplemented by that of their fellow citizens of The Dalles, already nearly $4,000 have been spent to make them what they are.
