Smart Looking

In the woman who comes down the street with a trim-fitting pair of street boots, made on a straight last. Her tread is firm and solid, because the sole extends and sits broad on the bottom. She is indeed a sensible woman. Box call, wide kid, all sizes and widths; some with extension soles and rope stitch, the typical manish show, so stylish and sensible.

Special good values at $2.50, $3, $3.50 and $4.

Mrs. J. A. Douthitt, wife of Editor Douthitt of the Times-Mountaineer, was today awarded the McCrum table for the best loaf of yeast-raised bread. The incident proves this point, at least, that some country editors' wives have other accomplishments besides the ability to act as custodians of their husband's princely incomes.

The management of the carnival are specially indebted to Dr. Taskman for the handsome and rare plants and trees that he has loaned them. Some of the trees are from South America, where they are known as rubber trees. One of the plants is a century plant of great old; two others are of the variegated century variety and were given to the natives of Australia, where they are cultivated for their bark.

Emile Klindt, alias son of Henry Klindt, a prominent citizen of Dallas, is charged with the murder of a man named Tom, and is being held in the city jail today afternoon. He was arrested on his way home from the city jail.

spirited team that Mr. Klindt was driving got scared at something and got beyond the driver's control so that the wagon struck a rock and Mr. Klindt was thrown violently to the ground, where his head struck a sharp rock that cut a long and deep gash in his scalp and fractured the skull. Mr. Klindt lay unconscious on the road till he was found by a neighbor who was on the way to town and who procured help and had the injured man brought to The Dallas hospital. At last accounts all that could be said was that the man is in a dangerous condition.

THE BIGGEST CROWD YET.

The Wedding was the Great Attraction at the Carnival Last Night.

Whatever might have been the attraction at the fair last night the attendance was much the largest of any night yet, not many fewer than 8000 persons being on the grounds from a little after 7 o'clock till nearly eleven. Klindt county was largely represented and not a few were here from the district south of Tygh Valley. At a little before 9 o'clock the ceremony of presenting Queen Melvin with the diamond ring took place. Judge Bradshaw made the presentation in a few well chosen words and the queen graciously expressed her thanks.

The accent of the night was the wedding, and at 9 o'clock, the hour announced for it to take place, 3000 persons in thickly packed mass stood expectant upon or around the band stand. Promptly on time the bride and groom entered the grounds by the Federal street gateway. They were escorted to the stand in sight of the vast audience by Messrs. Lake and Bolton and a few personal friends from Tygh Valley and Sherman county. The preacher, Rev. J. M. Alexander, was in waiting. The hands of the high contracting parties were soon clasped, mutual vows were exchanged, and the words pronounced that made them legally man and wife, when the minister, in a short prayer, invoked the sanction and blessing of heaven on the relationship just formed. Then the editor of The Chronicle introduced the bride and groom to the spectators and all was over, save the hand shaking and congratulatory exclamations, from which so many of us who would have been delighted to participate were gratefully excused by a simple and laudatory conventionalism.

The bride and groom are quite a handsome young couple. The groom is C. W. Stricklin, of Green Valley, Sherman county, and the bride is Miss Gertrude M. Hill, of Green Valley. The bride looked particularly handsome in a gown of cream silk and white. Her eyes were filled to the brim with tears. Her hair was styled in the latest fashion, and she wore a crown of flowers. The groom was in a dark suit and a white shirt with a red tie. The ceremony was held in a large tent on the grounds, and the atmosphere was festive and joyous.

St. Paul's Cathedral. The young couple were presented after their marriage with a nice set of household furniture, so complete that scarcely anything is lacking to enable them to start housekeeping.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLE EXHIBIT

A Splendid Display, Unequaled by Any Previous Exhibit in the County.

The fruit and vegetable exhibit is rightly an important center of attraction at the fair. It is gratifyingly large, too, although not as large as it might have been if some districts outside the immediate vicinity of The Dallas had done their duty. Sherman county, in the persons of A. Hoppold and A. V. Underwood, of Riglo, have a wonderfully fine exhibit of peaches, apples, peaches and grapes, grown in about the driest part of the county and, of course, without irrigation. And Governor Moody, from the old Miller ranch at the mouth of the Deschutes, sends some very fine Solway peaches, two sample boxes of dried peaches and a jar of soft shell almonds. It will probably be a revelation to some people that we, Eastern Oregon folks can grow almonds, but the truth is we have soil and climate that will produce almost anything.

From Wanic we have a very fine box of Gravensteins and the only turnip in the exhibit, but its a monster, weighing 22 1/2 pounds.

J. N. Knight, of Mount Hood post-office, sends a box of Hyde's King of the West apples that are the admiration of everybody who sees them, and A. B. Billing, of the same place, sends twelve boxes of Ben Davis, Baldwins and Yalows that fully maintain the reputation of that neighborhood.

What the writer regards as the finest Early Crawfords in the exhibit is a plate sent in by C. V. Champlin from his Obasoweth creek ranch. They measure 1 1/2 inches in circumference.

E. D. Colby, of Ten Mile, has a plate of pond pears that look like small water melons.

W. H. Taylor & Son, of Dry Hollow, deserves special mention for a fine display of big pumpkins, and George Cooper of the same place for a fine display of water melons.

A. J. Anderson has a box of Solway peaches that are hard to beat anywhere. E. H. Weber furnishes a plate of the biggest onions we ever saw.

Rugh Farmer has a box of Gloria Mand apples that will easily weigh 25 to 30 ounces each.

L. L. McCannery has some uncommonly large Yellow of Washfield pears.

Joseph O'Brien, of Fairview, has a box of Ben Davis apples that cannot be beaten anywhere.

A. H. Chastrow of Hood River has eight crates of apples that fully maintain the reputation of the Hood River valley as an apple country, and that is all that need be said.

There is likely well represented with other exhibits from the counties of Clatsop, Multnomah, Washington, and Oregon.

Amos Root, William Johnson, and possibly some others whose names we didn't catch.

At a time too late for competitive entry Harry Cummings, of Harford, Morrow county, brought in some beautiful specimens of Irish potatoes of the Prairie Queen variety that are remarkable for their size and uniformity of shape. Also some very large table blood beets and a fine plate of onions of the New Queen variety. It is due to Mr. Cummings to say that he ran an advertisement at his own expense in the Hopedale Times asking the producers of Morrow county for samples to be brought here at Mr. Cummings' expense, but no one responded.

I. E. Jones brought in a half dozen of handsome specimens of the Early Breakfast variety that he raised on his place claim at the head of the John Day four or five thousand feet above the level of the sea.

F. A. Seufert sent in three boxes of very fine peaches of the "Salmon" variety, and A. M. Kelsey sent in some boxes of Solways that are admitted to be the very finest specimens of that variety on the grounds.

J. A. Fleck, of The Dallas, deserves special mention for a branch of a grape vine of the Chastlet Rose variety that seems loaded with fruit till it could hold no more, and for a cluster of Fleming Tokays that are actually as large as plums. No wonder a Los Angeles lady, looking at them said: "I never saw a finer bunch of grapes in twenty years residence in Southern California!" or an old wine maker from Germany avow that the Rhine never raised finer grapes than can be grown right here at home.

It remains to be said that the fruit exhibit met with commendation on every hand as one of the very best ever made in Waco county. This is the simple, cold fact, notwithstanding that only three exhibitors contributed anything to the result from a part of Waco county that some outsiders think is the only place in the district that raises good fruit.

To the three exhibitors from Hood River, in a special manner, and to all others in the district who have contributed to make the fruit exhibit the grand success that it is, the management of the fair and carnival extend their sincere thanks.
