

GLORY ENOUGH.

Oregon yields to no country on the American continent when the superiority of her products are in question. Only the other day we were notified that Oregon fruits had carried off the most important if not the most valuable prize given at the Pan-American exposition.

Again Oregon occupies a front seat, and on a velvet chair. Our collective wool exhibit was given the highest award and gold medal this morning by the jury."

And as if this was not enough glory for Dallesites, the commissioner adds:

"The jury also recommended a special gold medal for The Dalles Scouring Mills, as having the finest exhibit of grades of scoured wools on exhibition. All other individual exhibitors received a diploma of honorable mention, which is the highest award given to individual exhibits."

An extensive wheat buyer for a company that has warehouses at every important point in the Inland Empire claims that there is more wheat handled at The Dalles than at any one point in the eastern part of the two states. The reason is obvious enough when one comes to think of it. All the export wheat of Wasco county—something like 800,000 bushels—is shipped from The Dalles.

In the Moxie district, near North Yakima, Washington, there are at least twenty-five artesian wells that flow to the surface. The temperature of the water as it comes to the surface is 70 degrees and is largely used for irrigation purposes.

"It is pleasing to be assured that the gold stolen from the Selby Smelting Works was located by vision by a Portland occultist. This proves that the story of the confession of the thief and that his assistance was required in recovering the gold was a base California invention for the purpose of depriving Oregon of just glory."
